AIR TERMINAL TO OPEN ON TIME, FUEL HAULING DISPUTE SOLVED

Overweight Trucks to Cross Airfield and Avoid Highway as Radio Cars Accompany Them.

A dispute that threatened to delay the opening of the new terminal at Lambert-St. Louis Field, scheduled for 12:01 a.m. tomorrow, was resolved temporarily last night and the opening plans were left intact.

The difficulty was in transportation of gasoline from storage tanks in Robertson to the new terminal area at the south edge of the field. Loads normally carried by some airline trucks are in excess of the weight limits allowed on state highways, and a way was found to permit the trucks to cross the field, staying off Natural Bridge road.

Meeting Called.

Local managers of the airlines met for several hours with city officials yesterday and last night. It was agreed that the City of St. Louis should provide an automobile with two-way radio as an escort for each truck using the runways, to obtain clearance with the airport control tower for each step of the way.

Eastern and Trans World Airlines refused to agree to send their trucks across the field, for reasons of safety, until the radio-equipped escort was proposed. The other lines presented no problem since they use lighter loads of gasoline to refuel their planes.

Yesterday's meeting was called by Conway B. Briscoe, Director of Public Utilities.

Another meeting was scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday in the office of the airport manager, in the hope of working out a permanent settlement of the problem.

Meanwhile, city janitors will be on the job when the terminal opens, following Comptroller Milton Carpenter's refusal Friday to sign a contract with a private firm for janitor services.

City personnel department employes worked yesterday—normally a day off for most of them—arranging for the janitors after Mayor Raymond R. Tucker called on Personnel Director R. Elliott Scearce to make the needed 11 janitors and a supervisor available.

Carpenter said he had reconsidered his earlier approval of a proposed contract with a private janitor service firm and decided such a contract would violate civil service provisions of the city charter.

The Board of Aldermen at its Friday meeting went on record in support of Carpenter's position.

Closed Today.

Briscoe said the terminal would be closed to the public today to permit moving in of airline equipment and transfer of telephone and radio communication systems from the old to the new building. Facilities for handling air mail also will be transferred.

The structure was open for public inspection last Sunday and also the week-end before that when dedication ceremonies were held. More than 200,000 persons visited the building, whose unusual design has attracted international attention.

First use of the terminal by an airplane is scheduled for 12:33 a.m. tomorrow when Eastern Airlines Flight 447 will arrive from New York. First scheduled departure will be Delta's Flight 67, at 2:50 a.m., for Memphis, Tenn.

Termites Threaten 'Voice.'

3 St. Louis Area Women Win $280,000 in Irish Sweepstakes

Two to Divide $140,000 — Third Is a Domestic Servant at Busch Estate.

Three women living in the St. Louis area won a total of $280,000 in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes as a result of the victory of a horse named E.S.B. in yesterday's running of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, England.

Two of the women, Miss Celeste and Miss Bernice Ferner, living at 4898 Farlin avenue, shared one ticket and will divide $140,000 equally. The other winner of $140,000 was Mrs. Flossie Petersen, a domestic servant, who lives on Gravois road near Sunset road, in St. Louis county.

(Details of the running of the race will be found in today's sports section.)

Mrs. Petersen, who has worked as a maid at the Grant's Farm estate of brewer August A. Busch Jr. for 11 years, was stunned when a Post-Dispatch reporter informed her she had won a grand prize in the sweepstakes.

Thought She Won $1450.

"I was under the impression the race was run last week," she said, "and I had won only $1450."

This misconception grew out of her receipt of a letter Friday saying she had drawn E.S.B. in the sweepstakes and would receive a minimum of $1450 even if the horse ran out of the money.

Mrs. Petersen, who lives in a modest four-room cottage with her sister, Miss Dorothy DeLozier, a shoe company worker, said it was the first sweepstakes ticket she had purchased in several years.

"I bought it from LeRoy, the butler, who got it from an Anheuser-Busch driver delivering beer at the estate," she said. "I bought two other tickets from LeRoy for other people working at the farm."

Mrs. Petersen, about 50 years old, earns about $35 a week. She drives a small automobile of the late 1940s vintage. Her asbestos-shingled home has few modern conveniences.

'I Won't Work So Hard.'

Asked what she planned to do now that she had so much money, she sighed and said: "Well, I'll keep working for Mr. Busch, but I won't work so hard. You know the Buschs have 35 rooms."

Outside of that, she said, the only thing she could think of was that she would buy a new automobile.

The Internal Revenue Service estimated Mrs. Petersen will be able to retain only about $47,500 of the $140,000, the balance going for income tax. On the other hand, Miss Celeste and Miss Bernice Ferner will each be able to keep about $30,000 after taxes because they divide the winnings. The tickets cost $2.85 each.

3 ON TRIP FOUND; BELIEVED EXPOSED TO SPINAL DISEASE

MIAMI, Fla., March 24 (UP)—Suburban Hialeah police announced tonight they had found three young Washington interns who had been sought throughout the South for immediate treatment for exposure to a deadly disease.

The interns, on a Florida vacation, were picked up by police as they prepared to register at a Hialeah motel and were taken to Hialeah city physician, Dr. Tom Frell.

Frell reported the men all appeared to be in good health, but started a full-scale examination to determine if they had contracted spinal meningitis.

In Washington, physicians at George Washington University hospital said one of the interns definitely was exposed to meningococcal septicemia, a highly contagious disease that can kill within 48 hours. The two others also may have been exposed, the doctors said.

The hospital listed the interns as Dr. George Polis of Washington, and Drs. Martin Stoker and Stephen Alpis, both of Boston.

Physicians said that before they left yesterday afternoon, Polis treated a patient who later died of meningococcal septicemia. At the time Polis examined her, they said, a tap of the patient's spinal fluid showed negative.

KEFAUVER SHED COONSKIN CAP WHEN SON PROTESTED

Children Like Davy Crockett But 'Calendar Has Passed Me By,' Senator Says.

LOS ANGELES, March 24 (AP)—Senator Estes Kefauver disclosed today why he has discarded the coonskin cap in this campaign. His 10-year-old son David put his foot down.

"David told me the kids were all for Davy Crockett and were wearing coonskin caps, but the calendar has passed me by," Kefauver said. "I was told no more this time. I guess it embarrassed the kids."

Vierheller's Spring Buying Spree Adds 60 Specimens to Zoo

The St. Louis Zoo's sturdy station wagon, which sometimes doubles as a land-based Noah's Ark, will meet a cargo plane at Chicago next Tuesday and take aboard one of the most varied assortment of birds, reptiles and animals ever gathered by Zoo Director George P. Vierheller.

Zoo employes will pick up crates and cages containing 28 species and 60 specimens, ranging from electric eels and humming birds to—well, a Vierheller buying trip would not be complete without one—a chimpanzee.

Vierheller and Harry Kiener, vice president of the zoological board, made the purchases from animal dealers in Florida.

Most of the specimens fill shortages in various sections of the Zoo but Vierheller admitted the chimpanzee, a 28-pound male, was not absolutely necessary, the chimpanzee population being one of the largest at the Zoo.

"I just couldn't resist him," the Zoo director said. "Every time I see a chimpanzee, especially a well-trained one like this one is, I begin to visualize him as a coming star attraction in the chimpanzee act."

Other animals on their way to the Zoo include a Savannah fox, a dainty version of the North American gray fox; a large woolly monkey, claimed by Vierheller to be larger and handsomer than two specimens now at the Zoo; a pair of bush dogs, a species of small wild dog, and four fun-loving Florida otters.

The zoo has had no Jamaican streamer-tailed humming birds for several years. Two types of toucans, the fat birds with the big bills, are also listed among the acquisitions.

Reptiles in the collection include both native and tropical American snakes. The outstanding specimen is a nine-foot bushmaster.

For the first time since 1939 the Zoo will have some of those toothless, spineless and tailless—but not harmless—creatures known as the electric eel, which inhabit rivers of northern South America.

U. S. DROPS FIGHT ON DECISION THAT ATTACKS USE OF SECRET TIPSTERS

Decision Not to Appeal Marks Retreat in Battle Over Right of Accused to Face His Accusers.

By ANTHONY LEWIS
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, March 24—The Government has decided not to appeal to the Supreme Court a lower court decision condemning the use of "secret information" in security proceedings.

The determination against appealing, which became final today, marks a significant strategic retreat on the confrontation issue.

This is the controversial question of whether an accused security risk has a constitutional right to know and face his accusers or whether, as the Government has contended, informants' names must be kept secret in the interest of national security.

The opinion, which will now be left undisturbed, was handed down last October by the United States Court of Appeals in San Francisco, in the case of Parker V. Lester.

The court held that the Coast Guard's security program for maritime workers was unconstitutional because the seamen were not told the sources of the charges against them.

'Informers and Talebearers.'

The decision was widely regarded as the strongest attack by any major American court on what the opinion called a "system of secret informers, whispering and talebearers."

Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff described the ruling as having "obvious far-reaching implications for the various governmental security programs."

There has been intense interest among lawyers as to whether the Justice Department would petition the Supreme Court to review the case. Last January, as the closing date for a petition approached, Sobeloff sought and received a two-month extension from the court. The solicitor general is in charge of the Justice Department's Supreme Court business.

The extended filing period expired today. It did not simply go by default. The decision not to appeal was made by Sobeloff after consultation with many other officials concerned, including Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., and with their concurrence.

Just last year, in the case of Dr. John P. Peters, the Justice Department took a vigorous position in the Supreme Court against any requirement for confrontation in security cases. Sobeloff broke with his colleagues in that case and refused to sign the brief. The court decided the Peters case on narrow grounds, avoiding the confrontation issue.

Reason Test Was Avoided.

The basic reason for avoiding a further test in the Parker case was apparently a feeling that the Government was not likely to win in the Supreme Court. The Parker case presented major difficulties for the Government because it involved not a government job, as in the Peters case, but the right to private employment.

The Government always has argued that working for it is a "privilege, not a right." From that position it is contended that the government worker is not entitled to the constitutional guarantee of "due process"—including confrontation of his accusers.

In the leading case, Bailey vs. Richardson, the Supreme Court split 4 to 4 on this contention.

EVEN U.S. REDS QUESTION SOVIET STALIN SWITCH

NEW YORK, March 24 (UP)—Letters printed today in the New York Daily Worker indicate that American Communists have been shaken from their traditional uncritical attitude toward Russia by the Soviet government's campaign to debunk Stalin.

The letters were printed in conjunction with the Communist newspaper's first report from Moscow of Communist party secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev's speech assailing Stalin at the party's twentieth congress last month. The report was written by the Worker's Moscow correspondent, Sam Russell, and sent here by mail.

A letter signed "T.M." asked the Worker why its former Moscow correspondent, Joe Clark, "never wrote of any of these serious shortcomings during or after his long stay in Moscow."

A letter signed "A Hoosier worker," noted that "changes are taking place with world-shaking results" and American Communists must measure up to the situation "with really honest criticism and self-criticism."

Another signed "A.F." said "the critics of Stalin are ungrateful sons of a great father."

FARMERS RESENT LACK OF AID BY G.O.P., CONGRESS, GOV. FOSS SAYS

Dissatisfaction among farmers because the Administration and Congress have failed to help them in the cost-price squeeze was reported by Gov. Joe Foss of South Dakota on his arrival here yesterday to lead a pre-Easter downtown parade.

The parade, staged to draw attention to the annual Easter Seal drive, had all the necessary ingredients—clowns, floats, human bunnies, bands and men on horseback — but chilling weather held down the crowd and made bare-legged marchers uncomfortable.

Gov. Foss, national Easter Seal chairman, sat in the first car as the long parade followed a 15-block route over downtown streets, starting at Twelfth boulevard and Washington avenue and ending at the reviewing stand in front of Soldiers' Memorial.

World War Air Hero.

Foss, who has one child born with cerebral palsy and another who suffered from poliomyelitis, flew here in a National Guard plane. He was a Marine pilot and ace in World War II, and is commander of the Air National Guard in South Dakota.

A Republican, he said he favored 100 per cent of parity for farmers, and told of the "considerable feeling among farmers that Congress and the Administration haven't taken the bull by the horns "and given the farmers "a shot in the arm right now."

Foss predicted the Republicans will win the presidential election "if they get out and are willing to work." He said he was happy to report that President Eisenhower appeared to be in excellent health when he saw him recently in Washington.

"I've never seen him looking better," he said, adding that the President's appearance was in contrast to recent published photographs.

Long An Easter Seal Booster.

Gov. Foss said he had been interested for a number of years in the Easter Seal campaign, partly because of personal experience in the cost of illness.

In yesterday's parade, sponsored by the St. Louis Society for Crippled Children, clowns darted among spectators jingling collection cans. Those who contributed got a balloon.

Young drum majorettes were not the only ones who felt the chill wind. Kilt-clad members of a bagpipe unit stepped lively to keep warm, and pretty young women riding in four cars drew coats around frilly formals.

The Easter lily and bunny had prominent parts in the parade. Prancing horses wore lilies in their harnesses, and floats were bedecked with the flower. On one float were two children and a woman, all wearing bunny outfits.

Winners of Prizes.

First prize in the noncommercial class went to a float representing an Easter basket. It was entered by the Schnefke family, including Robert, who lives at 4217 Bates street; his brother, Jack, 4666 Penrose street, and their brother-in-law, Ert Storck.

The winner in the commercial class was a pony-drawn float carrying 4-year-old Greg Biggs, the "Easter Seal boy." It was entered by Adams Milk Co.

The parade was televised nationally, for the first time, by Columbia Broadcasting System. Not everyone found the near-freezing temperatures undesirable. Vendors did a brisk business selling popcorn and peanuts to spectators with sharpened appetites.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL INVITES VISITS BY U.S. STUDENTS

NEW YORK, March 24 (UP)—Ludmila Dubrovina, Russian deputy minister of education, issued a sweeping invitation today to American high school students and their teachers to visit the Soviet Union "and see how we live."

Speaking at the New York Herald Tribune forum for high schools Miss Dubrovina stressed peaceful co-existence and "the historical necessity of friendship between the peoples of the world."

Miss Dubrovina said Americans visiting Russia will find that the Russian teacher is "much loved and esteemed." She noted that Russian teachers receive pay equal to that of engineers and are entitled by law to exemptions and privileges including medical treatment, household expenses in some cases, bonuses, titles and decorations.

BRANNAN SAID TO HAVE URGED AIDING KEFAUVER IN MINNESOTA

11-State Group Reported Against Illinoisan Because He Won't Advocate Radical Farm Program.

(Related Article on Page 1C.)

(Copyright, 1956, Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, March 24—The defeat suffered by Adlai Stevenson in the Minnesota presidential primary was in part the work of prominent Democrats who decided that the party's standard-bearer in 1952 should be eliminated because he refused to advocate a radical solution for the farm problem.

The upset in Minnesota might have happened anyway with the help of Republicans who went into the Democratic primary with the intention of killing off the Democrats' front runner. But the victory of Senator Estes Kefauver could hardly have been so big without the behind-scenes help of Democratic leaders deeply resentful of Stevenson's course of moderation.

Predict California Defeat.

These leaders are jubilant today. They are freely predicting that Stevenson will do worse in the California preferential primary, which comes on June 5, than he did in Minnesota. They are convinced that beneath the tranquil surface of the Eisenhower prosperity there are deep discontents not only on the farm but in the cities.

Furthermore they believe that a Democratic candidate who exploits these discontents with an all-out attack can win even though several Southern states bolt the party.

At a meeting in Denver early in March, Democrats from 11 states discussed the outlines of a stop-Stevenson movement with special reference to the Minnesota primary.

Among those present were Frank McKinney, former Democratic national chairman who has never forgiven Stevenson for supplanting him after the Stevenson nomination in 1952, and Charles F. Brannan, Secretary of Agriculture in the Truman Administration. While Brannan will not discuss what went on at the meeting, he appears to have taken the lead in urging support for Kefauver in Minnesota.

"Stevenson says that he is for 90 per cent of parity on farm prices," Brannan told the gathering, "but he adds so many reservations that this is actually watered down to 60 per cent."

Paid for by Harriman?

Most of those present were not for Kefauver, except as a useful stopgap, but for Gov. Averell Harriman of New York. The belief was expressed that if Stevenson could be blocked then the nomination would go finally to the New York Governor. While all concerned will emphatically deny it, Harriman money is believed to be behind the stop-Stevenson movement.

For at least three years Brannan, author of the so-called Brannan Plan to have the Government compensate farmers directly for the difference between the market price for their commodities and parity, has been trying to persuade Stevenson to take a more drastic farm stand. Two months ago he called on Stevenson in Chicago to go over with him a proposal shortly to appear in a national magazine revising and modifying the plan he put forward as Secretary of Agriculture. Stevenson rejected it.

Brannan, who is now general counsel of the Farmers Union, was indignant. He felt that after all his efforts he had been given a brush-off. Even before this, however, reports had reached Stevenson's backers in Chicago that Farmers Union organizers in Minnesota were quietly telling farmers that Stevenson would not do since his stand on the farm issue was too mild.

Word Passed for Kefauver.

After Kefauver announced on Jan. 27 that he would challenge Stevenson in the Minnesota primary, the word was passed that Kefauver was the man.

Brannan denies that the Farmers Union, which has 35,000 farm family members in Minnesota, played any part in the primary. The Farmers Union has long taken a more radical stand on farm issues in contrast to the conservative American Farm Bureau Federation which backs Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and flexible price supports.

There were, of course, many

CAUDLE SAYS AID OF TRUMAN MADE CALL IN TAX CASE

Interpreted Talk as Effort to Get Him to Drop Mitchell Prosecution.

By THEODORE C. LINK
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WADESBORO, N. C., March 24—T. Lamar Caudle, who has been accused of intervening to stop prosecution in the Joseph Mitchell tax case, said today he received a call from the White House which he interpreted as an effort to persuade him to drop prosecution.

Caudle told the Post-Dispatch that when he was head of the Justice Department's tax division he had a telephone call on the Mitchell case from John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman, in 1948 or 1949. Disputing testimony before a congressional committee, Caudle contended he withstood "pressure" from many sources and insisted on pushing instead of hindering prosecution of the case.

Steelman, now a consultant in Washington and owner of two newspapers in Maryland, said he has no recollection of having discussed the Mitchell case with Caudle at any time.

'Pressures Were Mounting.'

In discussing the reported call, Caudle, who is now under indictment in connection with another case, said:

"Pressures were mounting almost daily from many sources and I knew I was standing alone.

"Dr. Steelman called me about the case. The substance of the conversation was that it seemed to him that, since everybody was unanimous about recommending no prosecution, why was I determined to send the case to the grand jury.

"I told Dr. Steelman the situation as I saw it."

Caudle asserted he then informed Steelman that "Mr. Truman's Administration would suffer" if every effort were not made to obtain sufficient evidence to convict Mitchell and Sam Ripps, Mitchell's brother-in-law, for income tax evasion.

A Congressional committee was told in hearings held in 1951 and 1952 that Caudle once disciplined a subordinate, John H. Mitchell (not related to Joseph Mitchell), an attorney in the criminal section of the tax division, when the subordinate insisted on prosecution of the Mitchell-Ripps case.

Fired by Truman.

Caudle was fired from his Justice Department job on the personal order of President Truman.

Mitchell, owner of Jefferson Loan Co., which had offices in St. Louis, was indicted in early 1950, pleaded guilty and went to prison under a three-year sentence. Ripps also was given a prison sentence.

Although Steelman said he had no recollection of calling Caudle on the case, he did not deny it.

"I generally handled executive matters," he explained. "However, I could have been

LONG-LOST WORK OF ART BY MONK IS FOUND IN MOSCOW

LONDON, March 24 (UP—A long-lost manuscript by the Venerable Bede, Britain's first known historian, has turned up in Moscow, it was reported here today.

The reports said a beautifully-illustrated parchment of church history, done by the monk in the early Eighth Century, is one of the many exhibits in the Soviet Union's first all-British art exhibition which now is under way.

The manuscript disappeared during the French Revolution nearly 170 years ago. It is superbly illuminated in red, blue and gold with elaborate monkish calligraphy in Latin.

LONE ARMED MAN ROBS BANK IN TAMPA, FLA., OF $85,000

TAMPA, Fla., March 24 (AP)—A lone armed man robbed the International Bank of Tampa of an estimated $85,000 today and abducted a bookkeeper.

Joseph Patrinostro, the bookkeeper, was released unharmed after being forced to use his personal car to drive the unmasked robber to another car awaiting him about 10 miles northwest of Tampa.

Apparently the man hid in the bank and came out after it closed. All the cash left in the teller's drawers was taken and then the robber ordered Pastrinostro to get what was available in the vault. Patrinostro did so.

FIVE TEEN-AGERS PLAY TAG WITH 14 DAIRY TRUCKS

Police seized five teen-age boys who they said engaged in a game of tag—using 14 dairy trucks.

TOKYO, March 24 (AP)—The first Pacific typhoon of 1956 was spotted today in the Caroline islands about 500 miles southwest of Guam. The storm, with center winds up to 87 miles per hour was moving northwestward. The United States Air Force named it "Typhoon Sarah," resuming the alphabetical sequence that ended with "Ruth," the last typhoon of 1955.

Napkins 'Good for $25' Have No Face Value, Auto Dealer Is Sued

SAN DIEGO, Calif., March 24 (UP)—Two junior college students today sought delivery of a 1954 car priced at $1200 in exchange for 43 paper napkins.

The napkins were obtained by Ronald Kollman and Robert E. French, each 22 years old, in a downtown cocktail lounge. Each napkin has an advertisement from a used car dealer which states: "This napkin good for $25 toward purchase of any car."

The San Diego Junior college students collected the 48 napkins and strolled into the used car lot. Everything went fine until they produced the paper napkins to pay for the car. The youths were refused and immediately filed suit in municipal court.

E. L. Scholder, owner of the lot, said the napkins only were "an obvious advertising stunt." He took no chances, however, and inserted notices in the San Diego newspapers proclaiming the napkins now are worth just as much as the paper they are printed on.

ARMY TO CREATE NEW PARATROOP DIVISION WITH ATOMIC WEAPONS

Commander Describes Unit as 'Fire Brigade' for Putting Quick Stop to Little Wars—to Be Ready in 1957.

WASHINGTON, March 24 (UP)—The Army will organize a brand-new type of paratroop division with its own atomic weapons next September and have it ready to go overseas in early 1957.

The commander of the new unit described it as a "fire brigade" for putting a quick stop to little wars.

Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker announced today the streamlined outfit will number only 11,500 men but will boast far more firepower than the usual airborne division of 17,300.

Its major weapon will be the "Honest John" rocket which can carry a nuclear warhead. No atomic weapon in the Army had been assigned previously below the field army or corps level.

Maj. Gen. Thomas L. Sherburne Jr., noted paratrooper who will command the new unit, told reporters three such divisions mights have stopped the Korean war "before it started" if they had been available in 1950.

He hinted that now-secret new atomic guns may be added later to the test organization's powerful weapons complement.

Training Starts Sept. 5.

While entirely new in organization, with no regiments or battalions, the division will fly the colors of an honored World War II outfit—the 101st Airborne of Battle-of-the-Bulge fame. Sherburne, who fought in the old 101st under Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, now Army Chief of Staff, will start training at Fort Campbell, Ky., Sept. 5.

Brucker said the division will embody the "most modern concepts of military science . . . organized for battle in an atomic war."

Sherburne, now Army deputy chief of staff for personnel, pictured the unit as a "fire brigade" for preventing or quickly ending little wars and an instrument for rapier-like thrusts deep in enemy territory in a big war.

The new 101st will be organized into five "combat groups" of about 1200 infantrymen each. Each group, able to fight engagements independently of the others, will include in its weapons a battery of five 105-millimeter guns, which later may be replaced by somewhat larger atomic-weapon-firing guns.

Other Weapons.

Besides the 105-millimeter guns, new weapons and equipment will include the 90-millimeter self-propelled anti-tank (spat) gun, 105-millimeter mortars, lightweight machine guns, 106-millimeter battalion anti-tank (bat) guns, a "family" of new lightweight trucks and "a great number" of light aircraft and helicopters for movement over the battleground.

All equipment, including "Honest John" rocket launchers, can be carried by air and dropped by parachute, Sherburne said, and the whole division can move in half the number of planes a normal airborne outfit needs.

The combat groups, designed for wide dispersal and swift action on atomic battlefields, will comprise five companies each numbering about 240 men per company, he said.

The division's job in war, the general said, would be to "land on the target, do the job and get out like a nest of hornets." He envisioned missions to destroy enemy supplies, plants and "even some key individuals."

Activation of the new 101st, Brucker said, shows the Army's determination to reach a "maximum degree of air transportability of all elements of the Army."

Sherburne said his orders were to train through next February and then have the outfit "ready to go." Its overseas post has not yet been decided, he said.

BROTHER TO JOIN EISENHOWER AT SUMMIT TALKS

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP)—The White House said today Dr. Milton Eisenhower, the President's brother, will join in the North American summit conference next week at While Sulphur Springs, W.Va.

The three-day session, starting Monday, will bring together President Eisenhower, Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada and President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines of Mexico for a discussion of mutual problems.

Dr. Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State University, toured South America for President Eisenhower in the summer of 1953.

Dr. Eisenhower will fly to White Sulphur Springs Tuesday morning to sit in on the talks. President Eisenhower will leave here by special train around 11 p.m. Sunday. He will return Wednesday morning.

Ruiz Cortines and St. Laurent will fly to Charleston, W.Va., Monday afternoon and transfer to smaller planes to complete the trip. Ruiz Cortines is flying to Charleston in President Eisenhowr's private plane, Columbine III.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles also will attend the conference.

President Lives as 'Recovered' Patient Six Months After Attack

Holds to Doctors' Routine of Near Normal Work Load With More Regular Rest and Exercise.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 24—Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was stricken by a heart attack six months ago today, is making it plain by his actions and attitude that he now considers himself, in his own words, "a recovered heart patient."

Although the state of the President's health is certain to be an issue in the forthcoming campaign, day-to-day concern over his condition has subsided to a degree that could not have been dreamed of in the first tense hours of his illness.

The coronary thrombosis which struck Mr. Eisenhower last Sept. 24 made it seem possible at the time that he might not finish out his present term and cast even graver doubt on his ability to run again. The prayers then were that he would live.

Now, however, the President has announced he will be available for renomination, and his doctors have declared that, medically speaking, he can stand another term.

Six-Month Period Noted.

The end of the six-month period today produced the first health questions White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty had been asked in weeks. Since Mr. Eisenhower's return from Thomasville, Ga., a month ago, the emphasis has switched almost completely from medical topics to politics and governmental affairs.

In response to questions by the Post-Dispatch, Hagerty said the President is continuing to follow the recovery routine prescribed by his physicians. This consists generally of a normal, or nearly normal, work load, but it calls for more regular rest than Mr. Eisenhower got before his illness.

As he did before the heart attack, the Chief Executive usually puts in a work week of five and a half days. Most days he quits around noon for the two-hour rest period recommended by his doctors.

Leaving his office at noon or shortly before, Mr. Eisenhower usually has a swim in the indoor White House pool. Washington's raw weather has accounted for the increased swimming. The President would prefer to play golf at nearby Burning Tree Club, but he has had only a few fair days for this.

Rests After Lunch.

After lunch, he usually lies down for a while, although he does not always sleep, Hagerty said. The President returns to his office about 2 in the afternoon and is at his desk until 5 or 6 p.m. His work day ranges from six to nine hours.

"Exercise is important in this thing, and that's why he golfs and swims," Haggerty said. Occasionally he will step outside to the White House lawn for a few practice swings.

Asked whether Dr. Paul Dudley White of Boston, chief medical consultant on the President's illness, planned to give Mr. Eisenhower another checkup in the near future, Hagerty said there were no definite plans.

Hagerty said the President's personal physician, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, sees him almost every morning and evening. The press secretary added, however, that he thought this would be the case even if Mr. Eisenhower had not suffered a heart attack.

GEORGE VISITS EISENHOWER

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP) — President Eisenhower and Senator Walter F. George (Dem.), Georgia, conferred at the White House for an hour late yesterday. James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, told reporters the only word he had was that it was "a strictly personal visit."

George, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, also said it was a personal visit in which he took up "three or four matters" with the President. He said they were matters concerning both foreign and domestic policy about which he would not elaborate.

Pink Slips for Motorists.

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—Starting Monday, toll gate attendants at all bridges and tunnels into New York City will present motorists with a small pink slip: "Use your brakes, your brains, but please don't blow your horn." The slips, 250,000 of them, are part of the city's anti-noise campaign.

SYRIA, JORDAN VIEW ISRAELI BORDERS 'AS ONE'

They Agree Attack on One by Jews Shall Be Regarded as Against Both.

DAMASCUS, Syria, March 24 (AP)—Syria and Jordan have agreed to consider their borders with Israel as "one military frontier," official sources said today, and any Israeli aggression against either border will be regarded as directed against both.

The informants said the agreement was reached at a meeting between Gen. Radi Ainnab, new commander of Jordan's Arab Legion, and Brig. Gen. Shawkat Shukair, Syrian army chief of staff, at the Syrian border city of Dera yesterday.

A communique, issued here and in Amman, Jordan capital, said the two army commanders conferred on "matters of common interest" and in an "atmosphere of Arab brotherhood."

Gen. Ainnab took command of the Arab Legion after its British commander, Lt. Gen. John Bagot Glubb, was dismissed by King Hussein.

Syria and Israel have agreed in principle to exchange war prisoners, according to official Syrian sources.

The two countries, however, have not yet reached "even an understanding" on other proposals by Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief United Nations truce observer, for easing tension around the Sea of Galilee, the sources added. Burns and Syrian officials talked for 90 minutes today.

Lebanon, Syria Premiers Behind Delay-U.N. Move.

The New York Times News Service.

BEIRUT, Lebanon, March 24—The decision by Lebanon and Syria, made public last night, to ask for postponement of a United Nations Security Council meeting on the Middle East situation, set for Monday, was reached by the Premiers of the two countries.

Premiers Said Ghazzi of Syria and Abdulah Yafi of Lebanon met last night at the resort town of Bhamdun, in the mountains between here and Damascus.

The Lebanese Foreign Ministry was said to have asked postponement of the Council session for one month.

There had been a generally favorable reception here of United States proposal for the United Nations session and of suggestion that Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold might fly out here himself to try to bring about a slackening of tension.

Reports from Cairo and comments in some of the Beirut newspapers then began to suggest that this might be a means of tricking the Arabs into a settlement with Israel.

After the conference between the Lebanese and Syrian premiers some of the Beirut newspapers declared they had agreed to protest against the United States-proposed resolution.

(In United Nations, N.Y., an Associated Press report said Syria and Lebanon planned to ask for permission to participate in the Council debate. Delegates Rafik Asha of Syria and Edward Rizk of Lebanon said they would submit separate letters to the Council Monday. They must ask permission to enter the debate because their countries are not members of the Council.

(Asha said he had canvassed the Council members on his plan and "I think there will be no opposition." A British spokesman said "it would be very difficult to refuse" such requests.)

SYMINGTON SEEN PICKING UP SPEED AS DARK HORSE

Stevenson Indicates He Is Bigger Threat in Nomination Race Than Kefauver.

By JACK BELL

CHICAGO, March 24 (AP)—Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri appeared today to be gathering strength as a dark-horse contender for the Democratic presidential nomination after Adlai E. Stevenson's upset defeat in Tuesday's Minnesota primary.

Stevenson and his supporters indicated in interviews they regard Symington as perhaps more of a threat to their own aspirations than Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who whipped Stevenson in the Minnesota vote.

The Stevenson camp does not dismiss Gov. Averell Harriman of New York as a possible nominee if Stevenson suffers further primary defeats that might knock him out of the race.

It is the apparent feeling of Stevenson's supporters, however, that a dark-horse nominee is more likely to emerge in that event, and Symington appears to be the first to come to their minds.

Won't Get Nomination.

Rightly or wrongly, many Democratic leaders feel that even if Kefauver wins primaries in Florida and California, he may be denied the nomination at the August party convention here. They would look for a repetition of 1952 events.

Four years ago, Kefauver led in the early balloting at the convention but lost the nomination to Stevenson, who had said he was not running for it.

Stevenson is putting all the chips down in an effort to stop Kefauver's popular vote surge cold in the May 29 Florida and June 5 California primaries.

Although victories in those two tests would put Stevenson back among the front-line runners, many politicians feel the political wounds inflicted on him in Minnesota will weaken his chances at the convention.

Kept to Sidelines.

Symington, former Secretary of the Air Force, has kept to the sidelines thus far in the battle for the nomination. He has directed most of his efforts into an attack on the Eisenhower Administration's defense program, contending that the United States is losing to Russia the race for air and missile supremacy.

Symington's campaign on this score does not appear to have caught on politically. But more will be heard on the subject from a Senate Armed Services subcommittee Symington heads.

The Missouri Senator is not regarded by his colleagues as any stump campaign fireball. Nor does he have any wide base of political support within the party.

But all this could change quickly if former President Truman should give Symington a nod, or if Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas should indicate public support for the Missourian.

Friend of Truman's.

Symington won his first Senate nomination over Truman's opposition. But the two apparently get along politically now. Truman's friends recently have been plugging Harriman, and there are some signs the former President personally would prefer the New York Governor.

However, many Democrats think Southern delegates would not go along with either Harriman or Kefauver because of their espousal of civil rights issues, and their strong position in support of the Supreme Court's order for racial integration in the schools.

The nomination of either Harriman or Kefauver possibly could signal a Southern walkout at the convention.

Symington is not so committed on these issues as to be objectionable to the South. On the other hand, he is not labeled as a Dixie candidate who would be unacceptable to northern Democratic leaders forced to deal directly with the racial question in big cities such as New York and Chicago.

Lately Southern members of the party have been booming Johnson, the Senate's majority leader. Johnson has said he is not running except possibly as a favorite son of Texas. He has made his principal objective this year the regaining of his health after a heart attack last July.

If Johnson means to prevent the growth of a boom for himself, he might try to turn the Southern tide toward Symington.

Butler Tells Democrats to End Congress Inaction to Aid Party

Calls for Results on Hell's Canyon, TVA, REA Measures Lest They Be Lost as Issues.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 24—The Democratic National Committee is putting pressure on its top members in Congress to come up with some legislative results—fast—for the sake of party prospects next November.

National Chairman Paul M. Butler specifically mentioned Senator Herbert H. Lehman, (Dem.), New York, and Wayne Morse (Dem.), Oregon, as those needing legislative action to bolster their campaigns this year.

Butler, under date of March 16, wrote Speaker Sam Rayburn (Dem.), Texas, and Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Democratic leader of the Senate, saying:

"I am fearful that our party and its nominees for President, Vice President, the Senate and the House next fall may be in a very weak position in the area of natural resources unless some action is taken to bolster our legislative record in this session of Congress."

Among matters emphasized by Butler were Senate and House bills on the Hell's Canyon project. These must be passed, the Democratic chairman asserted, because:

"Our campaign attack on the Administration giveaway at Hell's Canyon is meaningless if the Democratic Congress has not moved in the eighty-fourth Congress to stop it. This action is vital in the election of Democratic Senators and Representatives in the four Columbia basin states (Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho) and will be an effective issue in other sections of the country. . . This issue is not in Oregon and will be a vital factor in the re-election of Senator Morse and Representative Edith Green. . ."

Pending measures for Tennessee Valley Authority and Rural Electrification Administration funds also co-operatives, are vital to the Democrats, Butler told his party colleagues.

Of REA co-operatives, he said, many "are located in important states and congressional districts . . ." On TVA funds, he wrote: "Congressional action . . . favorable to TVA will be of tremendous help this fall throughout the TVA area."

Butler also stressed the Niagara power development bill, passage of which, he said "is of tremendous importance in the re-election of Senator Lehman and in the congressional elections in many districts in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio."

13 MAIN CITIES OF CYPRUS UNDER RIGID CURFEW

British Governor Acts to Head Off Violence on Eve of Greek Independence Day.

NICOSIA, Cyprus, March 24 (AP)—Field Marshal Sir John Harding tonight ordered an ironclad curfew on the 13 main towns and cities of Cyprus on the eve of Greek independence day celebrations.

The British governor imposed the curfew, effective from 4 a.m. tomorrow until further notice, with the intention of firmly preventing any outbreak of violence on the 135th anniversary of Greek independence from Turkey.

Upward of 160,000 persons were placed under virtual house arrest by the order. All persons in the 13 towns and cities must stay indoors during the curfew.

All vehicles were barred from the streets. Only persons with special passes, such as doctors attending an urgent case and newspaper correspondents, will be allowed in the streets.

The curfew included non-Cypriot resident such as tourists and transients.

As a result there will be no services in Cyprus churches tomorrow, though the government announced that radio programs for all faiths would be broadcast.

Greek Cypriots, who are campaigning for the right of self-determination, or union with Greece, were especially bitter during the day at rumors that the curfew would be ordered.

"If they put a curfew on us tomorrow," they said, "then we are going on strike tomorrow."

A general strike paralyzed the island for 11 days after Harding deported Archbishop Makarios, Greek Orthodox leader of the union-with-Greece movement, charging that he had abetted a campaign of shooting and bombing of British military personnel.

Earlier today, the British barred all commercial plane flights in and out of Cyprus tomorrow as part of the strict precautions against outbreaks of violence in the celebrations. The order completely closed down the airport.

SHRINE TO BUILD NEW HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN ON LINDBERGH

100-Bed Facility to Be Erected on Plot Just South of Clayton Road Donated by Doctors' Foundation.

Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children will erect a 100-bed hospital on Lindbergh boulevard just south of Clayton road to replace its old hospital at 700 South Kingsnighway, it was announced yesterday.

Ten acres of ground for the new hospital have been donated by the Doctors' Medical Foundation, which owns 108 acres in the Lindbergh-Clayton area and intends to develop a medical center there.

Architects are putting the finishing touches on plans for the new Shrine Hospital, and construction will begin within six months, said Rudolph W. Stuckenberg, chairman of the hospital board of governors. He gave no estimate as to cost.

Modernization Needed.

No decision has been reached as to ultimate disposition of the 100-bed hospital on Kingshighway. This was built in 1924 and is in need of modernization, it was explained. Stuckenberg said the new hospital will provide latest facilities for diagnosis and treatment, and will have the added advantage of ample room for parking.

The tract on which the hospital will be built is at the southern end of the Doctors' Medical Foundation property. It borders the west side of Lindbergh, starting 2000 feet south of Clayton, with a 600-foot frontage on Lindbergh and a depth of 726 feet. Part of the Shriners Hospital tract is in Frontenac, the remainder in an unincorporated area of St. Louis county.

The Doctors' Medical Foundation acquired the acreage in 1948. The foundation, which has 134 physician and a number of lay members, was chartered in 1947 as a non-profit organization seeking to expand general hospital facilities in the outlying area. It has been engaged in a campaign to raise $2,500,000 for construction of a 125-bed general hospital which would be the first unit in a $6,000,000 medical center with a total of 600 beds.

Shopping Center Opposed.

No date has been set for a start on the foundation's hospital. When the organization last year proposed to use 30 of its 108 acres for a $10,000,000 shopping center, its rezoning application was vigorously opposed by owners of property in the neighborhood.

A deed for the 10-acre tract donated to Shriners Hospital was formally presented to Stuckenberg yesterday by Dr. Augustin Jones, president of the foundation. Others participating in the ceremony were Dr. John L. Horner, vice president, and Paul J. McCarthy, executive secretary of the foundation; Harvey Beffa, past imperial potentate of the Shriners of North America, and Lester Kuhs, chief rabban of Moolah Temple.

EAST ST. LOUIS FIREMAN HURT IN FALL FROM LADDER

Capt. James Doyle of the East St. Louis fire department suffered a fractured vertebra yesterday when he fell from a ladder when fighting a fire at 307 South Tenth street, the home of Howard Bargney.

He was trying to get to the roof of the one-story building when he dropped 18 feet to a brick sidewalk. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis.

The fire damage was estimated at $25. Capt. Doyle, 37 years old, lives at 740 North Twenty-fifth street.

TWO MEN ROB DRUGSTORE ON VIRGINIA AVE. OF $65

Wilbur A. Hunter, operator of Hunter's Pharmacy, 2901 Virginia avenue, reported he was robbed last night of about $65 by two young men, one armed with a pistol.

Hunter said the two, one blond, the other dark, bought candy bars and paid for them, before announcing a holdup. One took cash from the soda fountain register while the other rifled the drug register and took cash from Hunter's wallet.

After the robbery, the men ordered Hunter to open a rear door through which they fled. Hunter was alone.

CITY SYMPHONY OFFERS TO TOUR ABROAD FOR U.S.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra last night offered to go abroad on a "cultural" tour under State Department auspices, to replace the Symphony of the Air whose planned trip has been canceled by the Government.

Officials of the Symphony Society sent a telegram to Missouri Senators Stuart Symington and Thomas C. Hennings Jr. urging that they ask State Department officials to send the St. Louis orchestra on the overseas tour.

Government officials dropped plans for the trip by the Symphony of the Air, a New York orchestra once led by Arturo Toscanini, after receiving allegations that some of the musicians were Communists.

In their message to Symington and Hennings, Symphony Society officials said the St. Louis orchestra "truly represents America's music culture at its finest and is certain to make our nation proud as its representative abroad."

MISSING STUDENT FOUND, APPARENT AMNESIA VICTIM

Alan Walton, 18-year-old student who had been missing since March 9 from DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind., was found yesterday at Central Library, Thirteenth and Olive streets. He apparently was suffering from amnesia, police said.

Police were called to the library by someone there who noticed the youth seemed to be ill. He was able to tell officers the name of his father, Charles W. Walton, an executive of a mining concern at Birmingham, Mich., and was taken to the home here of a great-uncle, Henry H. Walton, 2142 Del Norte avenue, Richmond Heights.

Henry Walton said the youth "seems to be coming out of it now," although he said Alan was unable to remember what had happened since he left the university. The father was to fly to St. Louis today and take the boy back home for treatment, Walton said.

YOUNGS DRY GOODS IN ALTON SOLD TO CHICAGO COMPANY

Youngs Dry Goods Co., Alton, has been purchased from Ely & Walker by Aldens Inc., Chicago, Robert W. Jackson, president of the Chicago corporation announced yesterday. The Youngs Co. made the sixteenth store in the Aldens chain.

The purchase price was not disclosed, but Jackson said the new store had been doing a business volume of about $1,000,000 a year.

C. B. Nance, manager of Youngs Dry Goods Co., said the store has about 60 regular employes and all will continue in their present capacities. He said the store will be air conditioned and repainted soon, and other phases of a renovation program will be completed next year.

CONGRESS OF NEWSMEN IN MONTEVIDEO CANCELED

MONTEVIDEO, March 24 (AP)—Organizers of the Third World Congress of Newspaper Men announced last night its conference scheduled for April 19 has been canceled.

The congress was sponsored by the International Federation of Journalists, which has headquarters in Czechoslovakia. The American Newspapers Guild said in a statement last week in New York that the international federation was Communist-dominated and criticized Uruguay for opening its door to it.

The congress's executive committee announced the meeting was called off because "the traditional democratic atmosphere" has been "perturbed by the pressure of outside forces."

ASSERTS MISSILES MAKE DISARMING PLAN ESSENTIAL

American and Russian improvements in inter-continental ballistic missiles make an enforceable universal disarmament plan the minimum requirement for human survival, J. T. Hageboeck, Midwest regional president of United World Federalists, told a meeting of its regional board yesterday at Medart's restaurant.

Hageboeck said the missile, an "ultimate" weapon, traveled so swiftly America and Russia are only 30 minutes apart.

SUIT OVER SUNDAY IN PRE-ELECTION FILING DEADLINE

Whether Sundays should or should not be counted in figuring the 15-day pre-election filing deadline for candidates for Creve Coeur city offices will be the issue at a hearing in Circuit Judge Franklin Ferriss's court at Clayton tomorrow.

James P. Wilson of Mosley road, a real estate dealer with offices in Clayton, filed suit yesterday against Creve Coeur City Clerk Fred Essen to force Essen to put Wilson's name on the ballot as a candidate for mayor at the city election April 3.

Wilson said he filed last Monday, but that Essen notified him Thursday he was two days late in filing. Essen said he had been advised by the city attorney, William Wyne, that Sundays are not included in the 15-day period, and that last day for filing thus was Saturday, Feb. 17.

Judge Fred E. Mueller, sitting for Judge Ferriss, issued an alternative writ of mandamus against Essen, returnable tomorrow.

Besides Wilson there is only one candidate for mayor of Creve Coeur, First Ward Alderman George E. Fliehman. The incumbent John T. Beirne, is not a candidate.

SUFFERS FRACTURED SKULL WHEN SLUGGED BY ROBBER

Edward E. Fenner, 72 years old, a stationary engineer, suffered a fractured skull yesterday when a robber slugged him and took his wallet containing $12.

The robbery took place in the power plant of the Evans & Howard Sewer Pipe Co., 5200 Manchester avenue. Fenner told police he was seated at a table when someone struck him from behind. He was knocked unconscious, and never saw the assailant.

At City Hospital his condition was listed as serious.

KIRKWOOD WILL CONDUCT MASS INOCULATION OF DOGS

Mass inoculation of dogs against rabies will be conducted by the Kirkwood health department Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at the city garage, South Taylor and Monroe avenues, it was announced yesterday.

A spokesman for the department said a fee of $1 per dog would be charged. The inoculation program in Kirkwood is being taken as a precautionary measure. Only one dog in that community has been found to be rabid.

CHARTER SLATE WON'T BE PICKED UNTIL FILING ENDS

Executive Committee of Citizens Group to Wait Three Days After Deadline.

The executive committee of the St. Louis Citizens Charter Committee will wait until after the deadline for filing of candidates for the charter board of freeholders before indorsing 13 candidates for the board, it was announced yesterday.

The executive group will submit its recommendations for approval of the entire citizens committee, at a meeting of the larger group April 9, three days after the filing deadline. The meeting will be held at 4 p.m. in Assembly Hall 3 at Kiel Auditorium.

After the final slate of candidates has been approved, the citizens committee will open its campaign for the election of these persons in the special election May 8. Tom K. Smith, committee chairman, said the campaign "will be an arduous one and we will need all the civic support we can obtain."

In letters to the 480 members of the citizens committee, Smith reported the executive group has been meeting almost daily, studying the backgrounds and experience of candidates and potential candidates. Before the work is completed, the qualifications of more than 75 persons will be reviewed.

"Throughout, the executive committee has kept in mind a thought a number of persons expressed at the first Kiel Auditorium meeting of the citizens committee—that whatever group of freeholder candidates is recommended should be a representative group.

"It should not be dominated by any one section or any one interest in our city.

"In addition, the executive committee has tried to make two facts clear—that it hasn't started this examination of candidates with any preconceived ideas as to who was or who wasn't qualified, and that it is not trying to commit any candidate to advance opinions on the charter study.

"All we are looking for is first-rate, experienced citizens who are interested in improving their city and who are willing to devote the time and energy that membership on the board of freeholders will require."

Smith said the screening group is trying to keep up to date on who intends to file, and that it still welcomes suggestions from anyone. He reported the work will continue past the filing deadline so all candidates will be given full consideration.

TWO HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Victor R. Humphreys, 2126A South Fourth street, suffered af ractured right hip yesterday when an automobile driven by her husband collided at Davis street and Pennsylvania avenue with a car driven by Richard D. Kerner, 6008A Kingsbury avenue.

A passenger in Kerner's car, Elmer Markowski, 4426 Randall place, suffered a fractured pelvis. Both the injured were taken to City Hospital.

SYMINGTON MAY WIN NOMINATION, ROLLINGS SAYS

He Points to Stevenson's Defeat—Asserts Labor Is Favorable to Missourian.

There is a "good possibility" that United States Senator Stuart Symington of St. Louis will be selected as the Democratic candidate for president, John I. Rollings, president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor, said yesterday.

He pointed out that Adlai Stevenson, since losing the presidential preferential primary in Minnesota to Senator Estes Kefauver, has lost ground and that his chances of being nominated at the Chicago convention had lessened considerably.

"Stevenson proved he could not arouse the people of Minnesota," Rollings said, "Although he is a brilliant man and would make a capable president, his standing has been injured."

With Symington going to the convention as a "favorite son" from Missouri, he added, the situation has all the possibilities that may lead to his acceptance by the delegates as the Democratic nominee.

Symington would be acceptable to labor, Rollings said, adding, "He has always had a very liberal point of view—a recent point of view in dealing with labor. When he was in business, his company's policies were of the kind with which labor could live."

Critical of South.

Rollings, who is scheduled to head the state's merged labor bodies, said he was of the opinion that the Democratic party would have to exclude the "Solid South" from its ranks, because the party could not continue in such a "misfit situation."

"It appears that two or three Southern states do not want to abide by the laws of the land," Rollings said. "If labor was so rebellious against law and order as set down by the United States Supreme Court, a lot of us would be in jail."

He referred to the Supreme Court's ruling against racial segregation in public schools in a panel discussion, broadcast by KETC, the educational television station, Friday night.

"Some Southern states seem to be fighting all things that appear to be good for America as a whole," he said, "including the organization of labor unions."

Rollings said if the Republicans retain Vice President Richard M. Nixon as President Eisenhower's running mate in the coming campaign "it will make our job easier."

No Big Labor Issue.

The job of labor leaders in a campaign, he explained, was to attempt to "sell" the rank and file members on voting for the candidate whose record shows he is friendly to labor. He added that there was no major labor issue apparent in the current campaign, except labor's old fight to rescind or amend the Taft-Hartley Act.

"For once and for all," he said, "I want to explode the myth that there is a solid labor vote. If some candidate or party has what we believe is a wholesome, progressive program or platform, labor leaders can sell it to their people and in some instances get out a large labor vote; but, generally speaking, there is no solid labor vote."

He said he did not know whether labor would indorse any presidential candidate, but he added that from the past records of Stevenson, Kefauver, Symington and Gov. Averell Harriman, they would be acceptable to labor.

Lon Hocker Enters G.O.P. Race For Nomination for Governor

St. Louis Attorney Asserts He Is Not Candidate of Any Faction of Party.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

LON HOCKER

Lon Hocker, St. Louis attorney and insurance executive, announced yesterday his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor in the Aug. 7 primary election.

In a formal statement, Hocker declared he is not the candidate of any faction of the state G.O.P. which engaged in a bitter intra-party feud last year, and said Missouri Republicans have an excellent opportunity to unite for the election of President Eisenhower and a strong state Republican ticket in November.

Hocker, who is expected to have strong backing of organization and non-organization Republicans in the St. Louis area, announced his candidacy at an informal reception for members of the Republican City Committee last night at Hotel Chase. He previously informed St. Louis county G.O.P. committee members of his intention to run.

His First Race.

Making his first race for elective public office, the 46-year-old lawyer-businessman said he has received "overwhelming and unsolicited" offers of support from Republicans throughout Missouri in recent weeks.

"With a united party offering the people of this state a progressive program of businesslike administration," Hocker said, "I know that it will be possible next November to rescue this magnificent state of ours from the economic and political doldrums in which it has drifted in these post-war years of unprecedented national prosperity."

Declaring he has no political debts and has made no political commitments, Hocker asserted "I am not and will not be the candidate of any group, faction, or person within or without the party."

He said he hopes to have the backing of all Republicans, and he appealed for the support of Democrats and independent voters who want sound, progressive state government.

Heads Insurance Firm.

A former president of the St. Louis Bar Association, Hocker served as chief hearings counsel for the United States Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights, headed by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr., a Democrat. He resigned as committee counsel last November to return to St. Louis as president of the Missouri Insurance Co.

Hocker announced he is severing his business connections here to make the race. He has taken a leave of absence from the insurance firm, and has resigned as a director and secretary of the Globe-Democrat and as a director of the Chippewa Trust Co.

"The Globe-Democrat should be entirely free to comment on my conduct of the campaign," he said. "Also, as I think it is nothing short of ridiculous for the state to be deprived of interest earnings on its idle funds, I must not retain a position with any bank which has such a deposit."

Veteran of World War II.

A graduate of Princeton University and Washington University school of law, Hocker was a member of the City Plan Commission in 1940-43, serving as chairman of the commission in 1943. He is a Navy veteran of World War II and served on the board of governors of the Missouri Bar and as a member of national bar committees.

Joseph M. Whealen, a division manager of Ralston Purina Co., already has filed for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Others mentioned as possible G.O.P. candidates for the nomination are Albert E. Schoenbeck, general counsel for the Wabash Railroad, and Circuit Judge Randolph H. Weber of Poplar Bluff.

State Senator Leo J. Rozier of Perryville also considered entering this race, but announced last week he would not run.

Candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor are L. C. Carpenter of Columbia, State Commissioner of Agriculture, and Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr. of Jefferson City.

World Trade Week.

WASHINGTON, March 24 (UP) — President Eisenhower today proclaimed the week of May 20 as world trade week.

DEPUTY POLICE HEAD IN COUNTY TO QUIT

Raymond W. Hensley to Be Lieutenant in Kansas City Again.

Raymond W. Hensley, deputy superintendent of the St. Louis county police, will leave that post next Sunday and return to his duties as a Kansas City police lieutenant, the Post-Dispatch was told yesterday.

Hensley, who was in charge of the Kansas City Police Academy, was granted, six months' leave of absence from that post when he came here last Oct. 1. His appointment as deputy superintendent, at a salary of $6600 a year, was not described as temporary, however.

Neither Hensley nor Superintent Albert E. DuBois would comment on the former's return to his Kansas City police position, at less salary than he received here. A successor probably will be selected from a municipal police department in the county, it was indicated.

Patrolman Joseph Wohlschlaeger, veteran county law-enforcement officer, has resigned from the department to resume his duties as a deputy sheriff. His reason for quitting as a policeman, he told the Post-Dispatch, is that he considered the command of the new department "inexperienced".

Wohlschlaeger, who lives in Affton, was a law-enforcement officer for 25 years, as deputy sheriff and deputy constable, before he was taken into the new county police department last year. As a deputy sheriff he will be a process server, the former police duties of the sheriff having been transferred to the police department.

FOUR TEACHERS APPOINTED BY WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

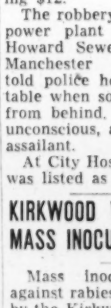

Appointment of four new teachers to the faculty of Washington University in the liberal arts college and the School of Medicine was announced yesterday by Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley.

Norris K. Smith, instructor in fine arts at Hunter College, N.Y., has been named assistant professor in the department of art and archaeology. Edwin D. Black was appointed an instructor in speech in the English department. He has been at Cornell University since 1953.

In the medical school Dr. John R. S. Shields, director of anesthesiology at Children's Hospital in Winnipeg, was named assistant professor of anesthesiology in the department of surgery. Dr. Bela I. Hatfalvi will be an instructor in anesthesiology. Since 1952 he has been house physician and assistant in anesthesia at Amherst Clinic and Hospital.

CAUDLE SAYS AID OF TRUMAN MADE CALL IN TAX CASE

asked by some of the men in the more political group, such as Matt Connelly (President Truman's appointments secretary) and Don Dawson (an administrative assistant to the President) to make a call of that type.

"I made it a practice, as my secretaries will tell you, to preface any call I might make with the statement that: 'This is your responsibility and I am merely seeking information.' At the close of the conversation I would repeat the same thing."

Steelman said he believed that if he made the call it more likely would have been to Charles Oliphant, then attorney for the Internal Revenue Service, than to Caudle.

"I am not denying I made the call but I think I would remember it under the circumstances," Steelman told the Post-Dispatch. "If I did call it was probably at the request of Connelly, Dawson or Boykin."

Representative Frank W. Boykin (Dem.), Alabama, was named, along with Caudle, by a witness before a congressional committee as having intervened to discourage prosecution of Mitchell, who lives in Mobile, Ala.

Boykin was "always calling the White House" on all types of requests for information on varied subjects, Steelman recalled. Steelman said he did not know Mitchell, Ripps or anyone connected with the tax case except Government attorneys such as Caudle and Oliphant.

Caudle has said Boykin made several calls to him in behalf of Mitchell and Ripps when the tax case was being considered for prosecution. Boykin acknowledged making the calls, saying he was seeking only "routine information."

The Post-Dispatch has reported that Mitchell offered to contribute $70,000 to the Democratic National Committee during the 1948 presidential campaign when he was seeking to avoid prosecution for tax evasion.

Shortly afterwards S. Acey Carraway, then finance director for the Democratic Committee, received $5000 as a loan from Mitchell's Jefferson Loan Co. Only $100 has been repaid, although principal and interest now amount to more than $6000.

Caudle and Connelly are awaiting trial in United States District Court in St. Louis on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Government.

TOP DEMOCRATS' ANTI - STEVENSON SESSION DISCLOSED

elements in the Stevenson defeat.

A curious and unwitting combination of the extreme left and extreme right contributed to it in towns and cities. Fellow-traveling elements purged from the Democratic - Farmer - Labor organization under Senator Hubert Humphrey and Gov. Orville Freeman were out for revenge. The fact that voters in rock-ribbed Republican towns were found preponderantly in the Democratic primary for Kefauver is taken by Farmer-Labor veterans as sure proof of a quiet, skillful and highly successful Republican effort to sabotage Stevenson and throw the Democratic party into confusion and conflict.

G.O.P. Town for Kefauver.

For example the town of Edina, Minn., wound up in the Democratic column. Edina, as Senator Hubert Humphrey puts it, is as Republican as Mark Hanna's tomb. Hanna was Ohio's great Republican boss of the end of the last century. He master-minded the McKinley Administration from his home on Lafayette square only a three-minute stroll from the White House.

Information has reached Humphrey that doctors and lawyers in small towns were saying more or less openly just before the primary vote on Tuesday that they intended to leave their own party, where there was no contest, and go into the Democratic primary to get rid once and for all of "that so-and-so Stevenson."

But the farm issue was paramount. Brannan and other Democrats hostile to Stevenson go back to the Stevenson farm speech at Sioux Falls, S. D., on Aug. 28, 1954. That speech, Brannan says, was the start of Stevenson's trouble with the farm vote. In the speech Stevenson said:

"While I don't think flexible supports will work as advertised, I hope I am wrong. Nor am I afraid of experimentation and new ideas and I say as I did at Kasson, Minn., two years ago (I have not changed my mind), that 90 per cent supports are not necessarily the permanent or only answer. The old system was far from perfect.

Parity Standards 'Arbitrary.'

"The price parity standards based on 1909-14 were arbitrary. Discrimination between the so-called basic commodities and the others which are of even greater total value could not be defended. There was a mechanism for acquiring but not for the management and disposal of surpluses. It benefited the least the farmers who need help the most; and it is hard to reconcile high support prices, tariffs and quotas with a liberal international trade policy."

The political pressure to dump American surpluses on the world market today threatens the whole American position on aid and trade. Under-developed countries such as Burma and India have big cotton surpluses, too, and even American gifts of cotton such as recently went to Indonesia seem to jeopardize their chance to sell the only commodity by which they can get urgently needed foreign exchange. It was this kind of situation which Stevenson anticipated. He went on to express further doubts about current "solutions" for the farm problem:

"In short, I doubt if we have yet found a satisfactory stabilizing mechanism for maintaining fair farm prices. Perhaps the solution does not lie in just the alternatives of the so-called flexible price supports demanded by the Administration and the 90 per cent supports. Perhaps there are other partial solutions at least."

In recent months Brannan has sent memorandum after memorandum to Stevenson at his headquarters in Chicago. But as he told the group that met at the Brown Palace Hotel in Denver, he didn't even get thanks for his pains. Or if Stevenson replied it was in a more or less flippant vein.

Brannan's Ambition.

Brannan is said to have political ambitions of his own. He is expected to announce shortly that he will seek the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat now held by Senator Eugene Millikin of Colorado, a Republican. Although Millikin has been ill for many months he declared recently that he would seek re-election. Some observers here believe that Brannan's ambitions go even higher and that he would be more than happy to accept the vice presidential nomination on a ticket with Harriman. He has continued to be close to former President Truman and it is believed that he has conferred with him several times during the last year.

The same forces within the Democratic party will be working against Stevenson in California that did in Minnesota. There the farm issue is not so important. But in a state that runs to political extremes from the lunatic fringe of the right to the lunatic fringe of the left, Kefauver's style of campaigning with the broad promise and the wide appeal should go over big.

What is important to realize in Minnesota is that the stop-Stevenson Democrats could exploit an apparently deep-seated revolt. They are saying that this revolt has long since turned from Secretary Benson to the President as the real target of blame for the continuing drop in farm prices. If this is true—if the prairies are on fire with revolt, as this agrarian radicals of another day expressed it—then the Republicans as well as the Democrats have a serious object lesson in the Minnesota election.

3 ST. LOUIS AREA WOMEN WIN IN SWEEPSTAKES

Louis headquarters of the Army Transportation Corps, Supply and Maintenance Command, reported that the winning ticket she and her sister held was retrieved from a waste basket.

"Frank A. Jaeger, a liaison officer in the transportation corps office, was selling the sweepstakes tickets. He ran out before I had a chance to buy one. But then he found a book of tickets which somebody had thrown in a waste basket. My winner came from that book."

She Couldn't Believe It.

Miss Ferner said she refused to believe Jaeger when he informed her Thursday night she had drawn a horse named E.S.B.

"I couldn't believe there was even a horse with a name like that," she said.

Yesterday morning when Celeste went to Washington University to take an examination in a business extension course, she informed her teacher, Donald E. Miller, that she had a horse in the Aintree race.

"He turned to the class and told them, 'We will remain silent for one minute and pray that Miss Ferner's horse comes in first.' All the class joined in a short prayer."

Miss Ferner said she was not nervous as she took the examination, which was given while the steeplechase was being run in England.

"I didn't give any serious consideration to the possibility of my horse winning until I started home on the bus," she said. "Then I suddenly started getting excited and nervous."

As she entered the modest first-floor flat in which she lives with her sister and parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ferner, she noticed a Post-Dispatch photographer who was waiting for her.

She stood in the doorway, looking around, wide-eyed.

"What's this all about?" she asked.

Everybody in the room tried to talk at once, to tell her she had won $140,000.

'It Can't Be True.'

"Oh, it can't be true, it can't be true," she shouted. She cried a little, clapped her hands and rushed through the house kissing, in turn, her father, mother and sister.

"Now I understand how those people on that program, 'The $64,000 Question,' feel," she said.

Asked if she thought she might receive some offers of marriage as a result of her fortune, the jubilant red-haired woman grinned broadly.

"I guess this makes me eligible," she said.

Her eyes lighted up when she discussed the possibility of buying an automobile. The Ferners do not own one. She said she and her sister, who had remained in the background during the celebration, had made no plans.

"We won't make any until we actually have the money in our hands," she said. "You know, a bird in the hand."

Her father is a retired musician. Years ago, before the advent of talking pictures, he led orchestras at the old Delmar Garden Theater and the Marquette and St. Charles theaters.

The odds against two winning tickets being held by residents of the St. Louis area are considered to be high. There were only 11 other major prize winners in the United States.

Two other residents of the area drew horses which failed to finish in the money. They will receive about $1450 each.

Mrs. Ann Miles, who is employed in the collection department of Freund's jewelry store, 420 North Sixth street, held a ticket on the steeplechase favorite, Carey's Cottage, which was an also ran. She lives at 7445 Rockwood avenue, Affton.

Eugene T. Shotrow, a used car lot manager of 6766 Corbitt avenue, University City, drew Sandy Mount, which was entered but was scratched before post time.

Two others won consolation prizes amounting to about $230 each. They were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kasten, 5340 Nottingham avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Boyle, 4608 Ray avenue. Kasten is employed as a clerk at the Missouri Pacific Railroad office and Boyle is a production engineer.

Sellers of sweepstakes tickets receive about $2800 if any ticket sold by them draws the race winner. They receive lesser amounts for other winners. The drawings are held in Dublin, Ireland.

ATOMIC ENERGY ACT FOR STATE OFFERED BY BAR

St. Louis Association Sends Proposal to Governor and Urges Action on It.

A proposed atomic energy act for Missouri creating an advisory council to draft legislation to protect the health, safety and welfare of the people and promote private atomic energy activities in the state was sent yesterday to Gov. Phil M. Donnelly by the Bar Association of St. Louis.

In an accompanying letter, T. Hartley Pollock, president of the association, suggested that Donnelly submit the proposed measure to the Legislature for action during its present special session; and emphasized the need to review the state's workmen's compensation laws in the light of atomic hazards.

A committee of the bar association, headed by J. Raymond Dyer, made a study of atomic energy acts passed by eight other states and the Federal Atomic Enregy Act of 1954. This study disclosed that the federal act does "considerable in the way of promoting peaceful uses of atomic energy," but leaves to the states necessary changes in litigation procedures and workmen's compensation insurance requirements, Pollock said.

"The bar association feels a responsibility in this matter," he said, "and it felt it should get things moving so that the state of Missouri would not be left behind other states in the development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes. Atomic energ yindustries moving into Missouri would want laws protecting them and their employes."

Patterned on Illinois Act.

The act the committee proposed for Missouri is patterned after that of Illinois and incorporates some of the features of the Rhode Island and California acts.

The advisory council would be required "to make a thorough investigation of the social and economic impact that the use in this state of atomic energy and all related facilities may have on the health, safety and welfare of the citizens of this state."

Also it would investigate "any developments in the commercial, industrial or other beneficial uses of atomic energy elsewhere which, if carried on within the state of Missouri, may enhance the growth and prosperity of this state."

In its report to the association, Dyer's committee noted a "need for readjustment in the traditional litigation procedures in radiation injury cases."

"And with the present difficulty experienced in obtaining atomic energy disaster coverage our present Workmen's Compensation Laws requiring insurance coverage for all personal injury hazards, the need for overhauling our laws to fit atomic age situations is clear," the committee said.

A Responsible Medium.

"The proposed advisory council would provide a responsible medium for consideration of these problems," the report added.

Noting that no commercial uranium deposits had yet been discovered in Missouri, the committee's report said, however, that the Mallinckrodt Chemical Works in St. Louis is now processing uranium ore for the Atomic Energy Commission and is under contract to operate the AEC's feed materials plant now under construction at Weldon Spring.

The proposed act provides for 20 members of the advisory council, including two state Senators, two members of the House, two representatives of industry, two representatives of labor, two persons representing scvience and technology, two physicians and two attorneys to be appointed by the Governor. In addition the State Commissioner of Agriculture, State Geologist, Director of Insurance, chairman of the State Commission of Resources and Development, State Conservation Commissioner and director of Public Health would be members.

An appropriation of $50,000 for the council's work also is in the proposed act.

London Printer Dispute Ends.

LONDON, March 24 (AP)—More than 8000 London printers, dismissed six weeks ago in a wage dispute, will return to work next Tuesday. Publishers and employes reached agreement last night to hold joint talks on the dispute which has held up production of numerous weekly magazines and periodicals.

13 FRENCHMEN, MOSLEMS KILLED IN ALGERIA REVOLT

ALGIERS, March 24 (UP)—Thirteen Frenchmen and Moslems were killed in scattered violence across revolt-torn Algeria today.

The death toll mounted steadily despite the French Government's determined military and political offensive designed to end a month of fighting in this northwest African territory.

Under the military phase of the operation, France poured thousands of troop reinforcements into Algeria to bolster the security forces battling the rebel "Army of Allah" and marauding extremist guerrilla bands. Two French regiments, pulled out of the Atlantic pact defenses in Germany, arrived by ship in Oran yesterday.

United States Ambassador C. Douglas Dillon arrived today in Rabat, French Morocco, by plane from Tangiers on his tour of northwest Africa. He will be received by Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef during his stay.

Tunisia was preparing for its first elections as an independent nation. An estimated 750,000 Tunisians are expected to participate in tomorrow's elections for a constitutional assembly.

DEMOCRATS HOPE TO NAME TRUMAN STATE DELEGATE

Resolution Prepared — Ex-President Would Have Full Vote at National Convention.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 24—A resolution recommending that former President Harry S. Truman be named a Missouri delegate to the Democratic National Convention this year, has been prepared for action by the Democratic State Committee here Monday.

Although Truman has said he does not want to be a delegate, the resolution proposes that the former President be one of four Missouri delegates-at-large, each of whom would have a full vote in the national convention.

The others to be recommended as full-vote delegates-at-large are United States Senators Stuart Symington and Thomas C. Hennings Jr., and Gov. Phil M. Donnelly. Under the proposal, other Missouri delegates would have only one-half vote each.

Meeting May 28.

The Democratic State Committee, headed by Wilbur F. Daniels of Fayette, is meeting to issue a call for a Democratic state convention in Jefferson City May 28, and to set up machinery for the election of the Missouri delegation to the national convention.

The committee is expected to adoph a resolution indorsing Symington for the Democratic nomination for President, and requesting the state convention to adopt a similar indorsement of the St. Louis county Senator.

Missouri Democrats who are backing the Symington "favorite son" movement were greatly encouraged by the upset victory of Senator Estes Kefauver over Adlai E. Stevenson in the Minnesota presidential primary last Tuesday. They feel the Stevenson defeat greatly enhances Symington's chances of winning the nomination for President as a "dark horse" candidate.

Missouri will have 38 votes in the Democratic National Convention, which poens Aug. 13 in Chicago.

Vote Split Proposed.

It is proposed that Missouri Democrats split all its convention votes, except for four of the delegates-at-large, and name a full contingent of alternates. This will permit the state to send a delegation of 130 members. Missouri had 34 votes in the 1952 Democratic National Convention, and was represented by a delegation of 84 delegates and alternates.

Under the pending plan, there would be 24 other delegates-at-large with a half vote each, and 14 alternate delegates-at-large. In addition, each of the state's 11 congressional districts would elect four delegates with one half vote each, and four alternates.

The state convention will name all delegates-at-large and their alternates. It also will elect a man and a woman as Missouri members of the Democratic national committee, and select the state's 13 Democratic presidential electors.

It is proposed that each of the 114 counties and each ward in St. Louis be allotted representation in the state convention on the basis of one delegate, or one vote, for each 600 votes or major fraction thereof cast in the county or ward for Stevenson as the Democratic nominee for President in 1952.

POLICE CAPTURE BURGLAR AFTER 10-MILE CHASE

Seized After He Crashes Into Parked Auto, Man Admits Jennings Theft.

A 10-mile automobile chase at speeds up to 80 miles an hour through three St. Louis county towns and a section of northwest St. Louis ended early yesterday in the capture of a burglar.

Several shots were fired by police in the chase, in which officers from Jennings, Wellston and St. Louis participated. No one was injured.

The prisoner, who said he is on parole from a term for burglary, was booked as Johnnie B. Wright, 24 years old, a Negro, living in the 1400 block of Goodfellow boulevard. He admitted, officers reported, that he broke into a warehouse of contractors, 6406 West Florissant avenue, Jennings, and sotle copper wire valued at $450. The wire was recovered after he abondoned his auto.

Patrolman William Walker of Jennings saw an automobile leave an alley behind the Myers firm at 5 a.m., and flashed the red light on his police car to signal the driver to halt. Instead of stopping, Wrightturned east in West Florissant avenue, and picked up speed.

The chase went through sections of Jennings, Wellston and Pine Lawn. Walker fired four shots and tried several times to force Wright to the curb, but was outmaneuvered by Wright who drove through red lights at high speed. Meanwhile, Wellston and St. Louis police were alerted and attempted to halt the flight.

After passing into St. Louis, the route led east to Kingshighway. Wright doubled back to Wells and Blackstone avenues, where he struck a parked automobile. He jumped out of his machine and vaulted a fence, as Patrolman Walker fired another shot at him. Wright tried to hide underneath porch steps, but attracted attention when he accidentally broke a milk bottle. He then was arrested.

Wright told officers his burglary term was for stealing material from another warehouse of the Myers Co., at 7030 Manchester avenue, Maplewood. He said he also had served a burglary term in Mississippi, officers reported. He was booked at Jennings suspected of burglary, and at Page boulevard district for multiple traffic violations.

PAKISTAN SIDES WITH U.S., SAYS FIRST PRESIDENT

New Republic to Adhere to Southeast Asia, Baghdad Pacts, Reject Neutralism.

KARACHI, March 24 (INS)—The first President of the Pakistan Republic today sharply rejected neutralism and placed his country's new-born independence firmly on the side of the United States in the cold war.

In an interview with Frank Conniff, New York Journal-American correspondent, just one day after he had taken the oath of office, President Iskander Mirza pledged Pakistan's firm adherence to the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty and the Baghdad Pact and called them agencies for peace.

"We do more good for peace by belonging to these pacts than those people who go about the world shouting they are neutrals," he said, in an obvious reference to India's Prime Minister Nehru.

"We joined the pacts in cold calculation," he went on. "We reject a policy of neutralism because it presupposes war. It presupposes that two powers are going to get into war and you are going to stand on the sidelines.

"That policy is the surest way to start a war."

President Mirza received Conniff and Randolph A. Hearst, president of the Hearst Publishing Co., in the presidential office.

Follow Russian Visitors.

The American party arrived just as a Red Chinese delegation headed by Marshal Ho Lung was departing and only an hour after Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan and a Russian delegation had concluded a lengthy conference with Mirza.

"I told the same thing to Mikoyan and the Russians," the President said. "I told him participation in the pacts meant we were for peace. It meant we did not think war was inevitable.

"Mikoyan did not say anything about United States aid nor did he offer us any Russian aid, but he did keep referring to our belonging to the pacts. Now he knows where we stand on that issue."

'Have Warmed Up.'

President Mirza said the Mikoyan group ha been "friendly and conciliatory."

"A change has come over those fellows in the last two months," he said, referring to the Russians. "They used to be very cold. Now they are very warm.

"America must not soften up. You can not accept these things at face value. But you must have your experts probe beneath the surface to see if this new Russian attitude is the real thing."

Hearst asked if the Russians had mentioned the recent visit of Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party first Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev to India, in the course of which they took India's side in the Kashmir dispute.

Mirza smiled.

Ignored Issue.

"As a matter of fact, I raised the issue twice, mentioning Bulganin and Khrushchev by name," he said. "Both times the Russians simply ignored it."

Kashmir, of course, is the most serious source of contention in this part of the world today, with both India and Pakistan claiming the right to it.

"We say let Kashmir decide what it wants," said Mirza. "But India has no intention of consenting to a plebiscite. They know that 98 per cent of the people would vote to join Pakistan.

"The Indians are playing a clever game. They are much better at propaganda than we are. They are trying to bring up the possibility of a Pakistan attack to frighten you from giving us any more aid.

"The border incidents are supposed to frighten you, not us. They want us to look aggressive so you will cease giving us aid. . . .

"It's laughable to believe we would think we have the capabilities of attacking India. Their armed forces are at least triple ours."

Nehru Rejects Proposal.

In an interview with Nehru yesterday in New Delhi, William Randolph Hearst Jr., editor in chief of the Hearst newspapers, suggested a formula for ending Kashmir tension. He asked what India's reaction would be to a joint United States-Russian guarantee of India and Pakistan borders.

Nehru rejected the proposal, saying the dispute was a "family affair," that it could be settled like an argument among "brothers."

Mirza, asked for his comment, said:

"If India would agree, I would agree. But a family affair! The other day they killed 20 of our men on the border."

Then the President slammed his fist on the table.

"India will not be happy until you stop giving aid to Pakistan. Nothing else will satisfy her. America must remember that."

Expresses Gratitude.

The President spoke with deep admiration of the United States and expressed gratitude to the American people for the help they have given Pakistan.

"Two years ago," he said, "I had just taken over as Governor in East Bengal when we had a terrible flood. The land looked like one sheet of water. I took my troubles to Mr. Heinz who was there with the American economic mission. He sent off three telegrams.

"Well, the planes started coming in like they were from heaven. They carried everything—food, medicine, inoculations against cholera and so forth. Your American troops worked alongside our troops, wading through water up to their hops giving inoculations against Cholera."

KEFAUVER SAYING NO ONE'S FOR HIM EXCEPT PEOPLE

Optimistic on Return to California, Using Same Tactics That Won in Minnesota.

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, March 24—Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee continued to criss-cross the freeways and byways of this heavily-populated area today in his energetic hunt for enough votes to beat Adlai E. Stevenson in the showdown June 5 primary election.

It was a new Kefauver who campaigned here in this latest courtship of California's 68 convention votes. He was more cheerful, more openly optimistic about his nomination chances, and surer than ever that he will win California's preferential primary and go on to capture the party nomination for President.

Convinced that his victory over Stevenson in the Minnesota primary was due largely to his attack on Democratic leaders there for allegedly putting obstacles in his path, the Senator hit the same theme here, contending that the California party "bosses" sought to freeze him out by committing themselves early in the year for Stevenson.

Sample of His Strategy.

The line he is taking is that no one is for him except the people.

"The fact that some Minnesota political leaders put obstacles in my way there caused the people to give me an even fairer hearing," Kefauver told reporters in Los Angeles. "There is substantially the same situation here. Recognized leaders of the Democratic party here have tried to make the picture so black for me that I wouldn't dare come in. They should have known that I don't discourage easily."

He said the whole picture has changed since his triumphs in New Hampshire and Minnesita, and he's feeling "mighty good" about it.

"I went into Minnesota against great odds and won," he said. "And here in California I'm getting stronger every day."

Many congratulatory messages and long-distance calls from party members all over the country, he said, have made it clear that he's now considered a valid vote-getter.

He termed the primary in California as second in importance, next to Minnesota, because it will be the last race preferential election prior to the party convention which opens in Chicago Aug. 13. Kefauver went into the 1952 convention with the largest number of pledged delegates, but lost when Stevenson permitted himself to be drafted.

Aware of Significance.

Repeating that "my campaign is clicking," Kefauver added: "Whoever wins in California will have a distinct psychological advantage. The result will have much to do with the nomination."

On the subject of desegregation, Kefauver repeated his opposition to the Powell amendment, which would deny federal school aid funds to states which have not put desegregation in force.

"It would be unfortunate to penalize children because grown folks are arguing," he said. "Education has been neglected for too many years in too many states."

He said, in response to another question, that he would not make an issue of President Eisenhower's health. He said he himself is much too homely to ever make an issue of anyone else's looks or health.

He will, he went on, concentrate on four issues in his campaign. He said he will attack the Administration's handling of the farm problem, and of foreign policy, and will accuse it of favoritism to big business and failure to keep its promises to organized labor.

Nursing Injured Thumb.

In Los Angeles, as in San Francisco and elsewhere, Kefauver shook hands with everyone within reach, despite a bandaged thumb injured by a driking glass in New Hampshire.

Today he got an early start by breakfasting with the women's club at Huntington Park. Also on his agenda was a luncheon address before an American Legion post in Chino, dedication of the new Chino high school, an address at an outdoor meeting of Spanish-speaking citizens for Kefauver, dinner with the postal clerks union and numerous private conferences with political leaders, and other minority groups.

Tomorrow he will appear on two local television programs, after attending church services. He also will make an informal talk at the Mt. Sinai Baptist church in the early afternoon, be the guest f honor at a Beverly Hills garden party and attend a reception in the evening at the Beverly-Wilshire Health Club. Last night he canvassed the Long Beach area.

FR. V. J. BLUM NAMED DEAN AT ST. LOUIS U.

Succeeds the Late Rev. Macelwane as Head of Institute of Technology.

The Rev. Victor J. Blum S.J., has been named dean of St. Louis University's Institute of Technology, it was announced yesterday by the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert S.J., president of the university. He succeeds the late Rev. James B. Macelwane S.J.

Father Blum, who joined the faculty of the university in 1944, has served the Institute as associate dean since 1950. He received his A.B. from Xavier University in 1931 and his Ph.D. from St. Louis University in 1944. He is a member of a number of engineering and scientific societies.

The Institute of Technology offers programs of study in engineering and the earth sciences on both the undergraduate and graduate levels. Its present enrollment is 413 students.

The long range development program of the University, announced last December, calls for a gradual buildup of the Institute to an enrollment of 1500. One of the high priority items in campus development is a new building for the school.

COMMITTEE OF 93 CHOSEN TO PUSH SCHOOL TAX RISE

Leaders in Education, Business, Government, Labor, Religion and Civic Affairs.

Ninety-three St. Louisans have been appointed to serve on the Citizens School Tax Campaign committee to work for passage of the proposed 15-cent increase in the school tax rate, which will be submitted to the voters April 12, it was announced yesterday.

Arthur Blumeyer, committee chairman, said the new committee members are leaders in education, business, government, labor, religion, politics and civic organizations. Blumeyer is being assisted by Echeal T. Feinstein, attorney, and M. Leo Bohanon, executive director of the Urban League of St. Louis, serving as vice chairmen of the campaign.

Rate Now $1.15 on $100.

The proposed tax increase would make the tax $1.30 on each $100 of assessed property valuation. The present rate of $1.15 per $100 of assessed valuation has been in effect for the past three years.

If the new rate is approved, Blumeyer said, it would remain in effect for two years. The Missouri State Constitution authorizes a maximum school tax rate of 89 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation. Any levy above that figure must be approved by the voters.

Blumeyer said the additional money which the new tax rate would bring in is essential if the Board of Education is to grant salary increases to teachers. Such an increase is needed, he said, so the school system here can attract well-qualified, first-rate teachers.

New Classrooms Planned.

In addition to teachers salary increases, the increased rate would make it possible to build more classrooms and reduce teacher-load. Also, it would permit many needed repairs to present buildings and offset a $1,000,000 operating deficit, Blumeyer said.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, in a recent statement, indorsed the proposed $1.30 rate, saying "I fervently hope this measure is approved overwhelmingly at the polls." He added that approval of the new tax would permit the schools to continue to supply free text books, modern teaching aids and schools for physically handicapped children.

The St. Louis School Patrons Alliance and the League of Women Voters of St. Louis also have indorsed the proposed new rate, stating that it is necessary if the school system is to remain one of the best in the country.

COLLEGE SUIT BLAMES FOUR FOR LOSING $100,000 WILL

CORYDON, Ia., March 24 (UP)—Iowa Wesleyan College Friday named a prominent judge and three of his relatives in a suit alleging that a will to an estimated $100,000 estate administered by the judge "has been lost or destroyed."

The college, in an unusual suit filed in District Court, seeks to prove the late Mrs. Winafred Miles Carter made a will five years before her death last Aug. 5 and the will was in existence at the time of her death. The college contends the will provided that the bulk of the estate would go to the college on the death of Mrs. Carter's sister.

District Judge Tedford W. Miles, 56 years old, Croydon, a nephew of Mrs. Carter, as well as administrator of her estate, said, "There was no will left by Mrs. Carter at the time of her death."

Mrs. Lois M. Jackson, 73, South Pasadena, Calif., Mrs. Carter's sister, has signed a petition stating that her sister died without leaving a will. Also named in the suit in addition to Judge Miles and Mrs. Jackson, were Arno Tedford Naeckel, 22, Bettendorf, Ia., a grand nephew of Mrs. Carter, and Lyn Miles Naeckel, 15, Bettendorf, a grand niece.

GREEK COMMUNITY HERE MARKS INDEPENDENCE DAY

Greek Independence day will be observed by the Greek community of St. Louis with religious and patriotic services at St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church, 4957 Forest Park boulevard, starting at 11 a.m. today, and by a dance this evening at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson.

The evening affair, starting at 8:30 o'clock, will include a program of native dances by young men dressed as evzones and young women clad in traditional Greek costumes.

Principal speaker will be Dr. Chauncey E. Finch, professor of classical languages at St. Louis University. Greece won its independence from the Ottoman Empire in 1821.

LANDLORD PASSES THE BUCK

CLEVELAND, March 24 (AP)—A property owner who was fined $32 in Municipal Court yesterday for sanitation violations told four tenants their rent would be raised $2 a week until the fine is paid.

"I am tired of running down to City Hall," said Andrew Hibyan, who lives in suburban Solon. "For three months I've been telling them to keep the place clean."

ALASKA PRIMARY OF SIGNIFICANCE FOR DEMOCRATS

Both for Statehood So Stevenson, Kefauver Are Expected to Be Judged on Merits.

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, March 24 — Alaska, where the voter cannot choose a President, may have a significant effect on the selection of a Democratic candidate for the nation's highest office.

The territory will hold its first presidential preferential primary April 24, as authorized by the 1955 Legislature. The Democratic primary will be the third in the country where Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Adlai Stevenson will both be entered.

To keep the Kefauver bandwagon in high gear, Alaska's 12 delegates, each with one-half vote, will have to go to the August convention with a vote confidence from the electorate. By virtue of a resolution adopted by the Alaskan Democratic convention in January, the delegates are to go uninstructed. But there is no doubt that they will be swayed by the results of national primaries and particularly the wishes of the voters in the April 24 primary. Among the Democratic delegates are former Gov. Ernest Gruening and E. L. (Bob) Bartlett, Alaska's voteless Representative in Congress.

On the Republican ballot, the names of President Eisenhower and Senator William F. Knowland of California will appear, the Senator's name was entered before the President's decision to run again was announced.

Stevenson Sentiment:

It is the Democratic contest that will hold the center of attention both in Alaska and in the nation. Before Kefauver's two primary victories, it was the opinion of Alaskan political observers that Stevenson was the most likely winner.

The 1952 presidential standard bearer made many friends during a visit to all parts of the territory in July 1954. He criticized the Republican Administration for their lack of action on statehood.

Similarly, Senator Kefauver repeated his long standing support for statehood during a flying visit to Anchorage and Fairbanks in October 1955. Sentiment is growing by leaps and bounds for statehood as a result of the signing of the proposed state constitution in February. Voters will be asked to ratify the constitution at the primary, April 24.

In view of the strong pro-statehood position of both Democratic candidates, Alaska voters are expected to judge them on other merits. Kefauver's New Hampshire and Minnesota victories are seen as weaning lukewarm Stevenson supporters and those on the fence.

Alaskans like a fighter and to many Kefauver gives the impression of being a more aggressive opponent of President Eisenhower than the less outspoken former Illinois Governor.

Few Leaders Taking Sides.

Democratic leaders throughout the territory have refrained generally from any public indorsement of either candidate. They feel that both are good presidential material. The thriving city of Anchorage (metropolitan population 63,000) is the only place where any support has emerged openly on a group basis for the Democratic candidates. Win Boohr, a former Tennessee resident now a barber in Anchorage, leads a "Kefauver for President" club.

In friendly opposition is Attorney J. Earl Cooper who heads a pro-Stevenson grdup.

What really would tip the primary scales for Kefauver would be for him to return to Alaska and make an active personal campaign. Political observers believe that he would have little trouble defeating Stevenson in the primary by such a move. There are reports that the Senator is considering such a trip. If he decides to fly north, Stevenson and his backers will surely have to consider a similar journey in order to slow down Kefauver's bid for the presidential nomination.

BLOODMOBILE SCHEDULE LISTED FOR COMING WEEK

Clouds Seen on Mars, Could Be Volcanoes, Scientist Says

Astronomer Thinks Planet May Be in Stage Earth Was In Before Life Appeared on It.

COLUMBUS, O., March 24 (AP) — Peculiar clouds on the face of Mars could be vast billowings of volcanic dust and steam, a Michigan astronomer said today.

If so, the clouds are added evidence for a theory that Mars is racked by volcanoes. Wind-blown deposits of volcanic ash could cause some of the strange marking on mars including perhaps some "canals."

By this theory, Mars might still be in early stages of changes such as the earth experienced before life appeared on this planet.

The volcanic theory is advanced by Dr. Dean B. McLaughlin of the University of Michigan. He has proposed that some dark areas — sometimes thought to be vegetation—could be drifts of volcanic ash. Some so-called canals might be pathways of fallen ash, and others might be cracks or faults on Mars's face.

The earth's oceans are perhaps due to water brought up from its interior by volcanoes. Mars might be in the same process now, with oceans yet to come to spawn life.

Today Dr. McLaughlin told the American Astronomical Society that some observations of Martian clouds are at least consistent with the theory of volcanic activity.

From a check of various astronomers' sightings of clouds, he said that clouds have been observed intermittently for the last 25 years over one particular area.

These clouds therefore seem associated with some mechanism at a fixed spot on the face of Mars. On earth, clouds often rise regularly along mountain chains, but Mars has no large mountain ranges, Dr. McLaughlin said, and apparently there is not much water vapor on Mars to form ordinary clouds.

Within past decades, the shape of some of the dark-colored areas near cloud spots has changed, he added. The way they have changed, with some lines fanning out from them, suggests changes in the way volcanic ash is being deposited or blown about. The dark seas could be near active volcanoes.

"The coincidence of the area of cloud formation and the area of conspicuous surface changes is too close to be dismissed as accidental. Whether correct or not, the hypothesis of volcanic activity at least gives a fully consistent explanation of the observed facts," Dr. McLaughlin said.

PERON REPORTED PLANNING TO FLY TO ROME APRIL 10

MILAN, Italy, March 24 (AP) —Severo Vailati, an Italian coffee importer, said today former dictator Juan D. Peron of Argentina plans to fly to Rome April 10 and then tour Europe.

Vailati said he is a friend of Peron and visited him recently in Panama. Peron went into exile first in Paraguay and then at Colon, Panama, after his downfall last September. The United States made him move from a hotel it owned in Colon. He took an apartment in Panama City.

Vailati said Peron would spend some time in Rome and in a villa on Lake Como.

U. S. WON'T FIGHT COURT ATTACK ON SECRET TIPSTERS

thus upholding a lower court decision for the Government.

But the courts often have held that private employment is a right protected by the due process guarantee. The Court of Appeals' opinion in the Parker case said: "The (seamen's) liberty to follow their chosen employment is no doubt a right more clearly entitled to constitutional protection than the right of a government employe to obtain or retain his job."

Furthermore, in any court argument the Government would be charged with trying to extend the principle of secret informants potentially to all private employment, not just maritime workers.

The port security program, which was challenged in the Parker case, covers about 500,000 seamen and longshoremen. Under law they can work only if they have security cards issued by the Coast Guard.

If the local Coast Guard office has doubts about any maritime worker, it lifts his cards and then holds a hearing at which time the burden is on him to prove his right to get it back.

In the Parker case, a number of seamen whose cards had been lifted went to court and asked for an injunction against the security program. The names of informants were not disclosed and, in fact, the Coast Guard board members did not know the names.

Judge's Instructions.

District Judge Edward P. Murphy ordered the Coast Guard to give the seaman a general summary of the charges and testimony against them, but he specifically excluded any guarantee of confrontation, saying:

"The Federal Bureau of Investigation has uniformly insisted that practically none of (its) sources will continue to be available to it if proper secrecy and confidence cannot at all times be maintained with respect to the original source of the information."

The seamen went to the Court of Appeals for the ninth circuit and said that Judge Murphy's opinion did not go far enough. The opinion there was written by Judge Walter L. Pope, with Judge Thomas F. McAllister concurring.

Judge William Healy, dissenting, said that the confrontation issue should be left for the Supreme Court to decide.

The majority opinion said, in summary, that unless some kind of confrontation was required, the seamen might not really know the charges against them sufficiently to make a defense. The court said it might be possible to draft new Coast Guard security regulations qualifying "in some degree" the right of confrontation, but the present regulations were unconstitutional.

By not appealing to the Supreme Court, the Government avoids the risk of an adverse opinion that would carry even more weight. It is certain, nevertheless, that lawyers depending all kinds of security cases will be citing the Parker opinion given by the Court of Appeals from now on, especially because the opinion makes a broad attack on the whole institution of informants.

AERO CHAPTER BACKS ALL-MILITARY FIELD

St. Louis Unit Favors Adequate Facilities for Reserve and National Guard.

A resolution indorsing the proposal to establish an all-military airport in the St. Louis area for testing and military flight operations has been passed by the board of directors of the Greater St. Louis Chapter of the National Aeronautic Association, it was announced yesterday.

Harold Herrin, president of the chapter, said copies of the resolution were sent to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, William E. Neumeier of the air co-ordinating committee, United States Senators Stuart Symington and Thomas C. Hennings, and United States Representatives Thomas Curtis, Leonor Sullivan, Frank M. Karsten, Clarence Cannon of Elsberry, Mo., and Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas.

Herrin said the chapter's directors believed that military aviation required separate facilities in St. Louis because of the already heavy traffic at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

"It is also most necessary that the Government encourage the continued development of an adequate Reserve and National Guard training program in this area," the resolution said. "It is equally necessary that separate facilities for these operations be provided."

MASS PRODUCING JET AIRLINERS, RUSSIA CLAIMS

Use of Planes in International Service Expected Soon, Spokesman Declares.

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW, March 24 (AP)—The Soviet Union has carefully laid plans to beat the rest of the world into the jet age of international civil flying, a top Soviet official indicated today.

Marshal S. F. Zhavoronkov, bemedaled chief of the Soviet Union's civil airline Aeroflot, said today huge jet commercial craft like the one which took the Soviet security chief, Gen. Ivan A. Serov, to London have gone into mass production.

Zhavoronkov told reporters at a diplomatic reception that early production "bugs" have been ironed out and full-scale use of the plane is expected soon.

The plane, known as the TU-104, is the civilian passenger version of the Soviet air force's medium jet bomber which caused a sensation when it appeared over Moscow's Red Square on May day two years ago.

It was first believed by western military attaches that this was merely a prototype, but it has since become clear that military production is far advanced. Now, according to Zhavoronkov, civilian production also is well along.

500 Miles An Hour.

The plane, reported capable of carrying 50 to 60 passengers at 500 miles an hour, is bigger and probably faster than Britain's projected Comet III which is not yet in production.

If production is going on as claimed, it also puts the Soviet Union ahead of the United States, where it is expected to be several years before civilian jets enter regular commercial service.

Zhavoronkov said current plans are to put the Russian planes into international rather than domestic service. Negotiations are now going on with Norway, Sweden and Denmark on behalf of the Scandinavian Airlines for direct flights between Copenhagen and Moscow and between Stockholm and Moscow. The agreement is expected before Swedish Prime Minister Erlander arrives here next week.

It appeared possible that Aeroflot would use these jets on those routes in the near future.

Other projected lines would link Moscow with Kabul in Afghanistan, New Delhi in India and Peiping in China.

The Soviet marshal said eventually Russia plans a direct Moscow-to-London jet service "if the traffic warrants it."

British Were Amazed.

The sleek Soviet jetliner made its first flight outside the Iron Curtain Thursday when it landed in London with Gen. Serov. Some British newspapers expressed amazement at its size and obvious power and speed.

However, there were second thoughts among British aviation experts later. These voiced criticisms that the giant jet engines were placed too close to the cabin, that the plane was too big for economical short hops and too small for long flights.

Viewing the plane from beyond the guarded perimeter at London airport, some aviation experts estimated its length at 120 feet, its wing span at 140 feet. The total thrust of its two engines is rated at 40,000 pounds—as much as the combined power of the four jets on Britain's Comet.

The Russians were reported to have asked for 8000 gallons to refuel the TU-104 for the return flight. Experts estimated this would give it range of more than 4000 miles.

One point that raised eyebrows in London was that the big Soviet plane was fitted with oxygen masks at each seat. Experts said this meant that the cabin was not pressurized.

3 SLOT MACHINES SEIZED IN RAID NEAR GRANITE CITY

Illinois State Police confiscated three slot machines and made one arrest Friday in a raid on the Sand Prairie Hunting and Fishing Club on State Aid Route 35 about five miles east of Granite City, Capt. Ezra Brantley, battalion commander, announced yesterday.

Brantley said police had received a number of complaints that the slot machines, though installed in an ostensibly private club, had been open to public play for some time. A plain-clothes officer had played the machines a short time before the raid.

Charges of possession of gambling equipment were filed against Richard Reese, president of the club, in county court of Madison county, Brantley said. This was the first raid on active slot machines in the East Side area in several years.

ANOTHER SNOWSTORM HITS NORTHEASTERN PART OF U.S.

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—The snow-weary Northeast was punched again today by a spring snowstorm, its third in nine days. The new storm was expected to dump between 12 to 16 inches of snow on southwest Maine and smaller amounts in other New England areas.

The new storm forced cancellation of Boston's St. Patrick's day parade for the second time, knocked out until next Tuesday the New England welterweight title bout between Walter Byars and Bobby Murphy in Boston, and halted horse racing at Lincoln Downs race track at Lincoln, R. I., for the ninth straight day.

NOEL COWARD'S APPEARANCE REINSTATED ON FORD HOUR

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP) —Noel Coward will star in one of his own plays, "The Happy Breed," after all, on the "Ford Star Jubilee" telecast of May 5.

Ford canceled the CBS-TV appearance after the British playwright had done two shows for it, claiming his appeal was not wide enough. Charles Russell, co-producer of Coward's television shows, said the trouble seemed to stem from plans to do "Present Laughter" May 5. The feeling apparently was that this was too sophisticated for the mass TV audience.

Then "The Happy Breed," a more homey story, was suggested and Coward's appearance was reinstated.

PRESIDENT SENDS NOTE TO ISRAELI CHIEF OF STATE

'Peace and Prosperity' Message Contains No Mention of Request for Arms.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JERUSALEM, March 24 — President Eisenhower has sent American wishes for "peace and prosperity" to Israel in a personal message to President Yitzhak Ben Zvi, it was announced today.

The message, dated March 19, was delivered yesterday to President Ben Zvi by Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, a Zionist leader in the United States who heads the state of Israel bond drive there.

Mr. Eisenhower made no direct reference to the United States request for a special meeting of the United Nations Security Council on the Middle East crisis or to Israel's four-month-old request to buy United States defensive arms. But he stressed American efforts toward "a satisfactory and peaceful solution of the problem."

The letter follows:

"Through my friend Dr. Ebba Hillel Silver, who is about to visit Israel, I should like to take the opportunity to convey to you my warm personal greetings on the occasion of the celebration of Passover, your historic festival of freedom, and on the eve of the eighth anniversary of the establishment of Israel.

"I have followed with admiration the progress and development of your country. The American people wish your young state peace and prosperity.

"Permit me to assure you that the American government is earnestly and in the friendliest of spirit exploring every avenue to bring about a satisfactory and peaceful solution of the problem which confronts Israel and its neighbors. We shall all need patience, mutual confidence and good will to help us along the way.

"With best wishes, sincerely, DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER."

Cause of Plane's Ditching.

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP) — Improper management of the fuel supply system and faulty techniques for restarting stalled engines caused the ditching of a cargo plane in the Pacific 1000 miles west of Honolulu last Sept. 24, the Civil Aeronautics Board said yesterday. Three of the five crew members aboard the Flying Tiger Line Douglas DC-4 lost their lives in the crash.

FARM OFFICIAL, UNDER FIRE, OUT OF MONTANA JOB

State Chief of U.S. Agency Dropped — Inquiry Pending Into His Activities.

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP)—The Farmers Home Administration said today it had dropped Carl O. Hansen as its Montana director. Hansen's activities had been under investigation.

Robert B. McLeaish, the agency's administrator, said he telephoned Hansen, giving him the choice of resigning or going on annual leave. He said Hansen later telegraphed his resignation.

"We don't want a man on the place while he is being investigated," McLeaish said.

He added that the Department of Agriculture, of which the agency is a branch intended to help the small farmer, had received what he called "rumors" that Hansen had been using government time and facilities for personal business affairs.

Virgil Highfill, a member of McLeaish's staff and former Home Administration Director for Arkansas, is being sent to Montana to take over the state office temporarily.

The Washington Post and Times-Herald reported Hansen said by telephone from Bozeman, Mont., last night that McLeaish told him "there were quite a lot of accusations there and we should have your resignation."

The newspaper quoted Hansen as saying he asked McLeaish if there "didn't need to be some proof for those charges." Hansen was quoted as saying McLeaish replied that was not true in Hansen's case as he was an "excepted" employe. Apparently this was a reference to exemption from civil service status for the position.

Hansen was quoted also as saying the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee has been investigating charges made against him "by disgruntled former government employes."

An article by Drew Pearson, printed in Friday's Post-Dispatch, said that there is conclusive evidence that Hansen has been acting as a wool buyer and also helping direct the affairs of a radio and television station in Billings, as well as charging political long-distance calls to the Government. Pearson said also that Hansen was spending some of his time and some Government money in an effort to elect Wesley D'Ewart to the Senate although the Hatch Act bars political activity by Government officials unless they are of Cabinet or "Little Cabinet" rank.

Pearson said also that when Hansen should have been helping farmers borrow money to meet the drouth disaster he was employing persons whose services he used for unofficial and political purposes including his personal and private business.

MALENKOV STIRS BRITISH HOPE BY BIG TRADE TALK

Some Say Russians Will Buy One of Everything They Need, Then Duplicate It.

MANCHESTER, England, March 24 (AP)—Georgi Malenkov, busily pushing the Kremlin campaign to win friends in Britain, is dangling hopes of big trade deals.

"We are convinced," the former Russian premier is telling industrialists during his tour of British power plants, "that business ties between us will be developed."

Such statements appeal to the British electrical industry, now battling harder than ever to boost exports of such heavy equipment as turbo generators and transformers. The industry hopes soon to supplant the motor industry as Britain's No. 1 exporter. It is seeking new markets now that economic woes at home are cutting down domestic demand.

Malenkov used the "more trade" line during his tour of Metropolitan Vickers which made heavy generating gear for the Russians before World War II.

Recalls Past Dealings.

"We are happy to visit a firm with which we have had long business connections," Malenkov said. He didn't mention that in 1933 the Reds arrested five Metropolitan Vickers engineers and jailed four of them on charges of spying and industrial sabotage.

Just how much ruble trade will come to Britain from Malenkov's tour is impossible to forecast. Some British experts who have followed the Malenkov tour believe the Russians will buy heavily—but will order one of everything they see and then produce similar plants themselves.

Sale of some types of gear are restricted under the United Nations embargo on the export of strategic materials to the Soviet bloc. Britain's trade with Russia remains an insignificant part of its world trade—in spite of previous Russian campaigns to step it up.

One British official said the Russians seem to be, after "know-how." "Once they get it—and quite possibly they have it already—they will be hardly likely to spend millions buying from us," he said.

Malenkov Sees Big Race.

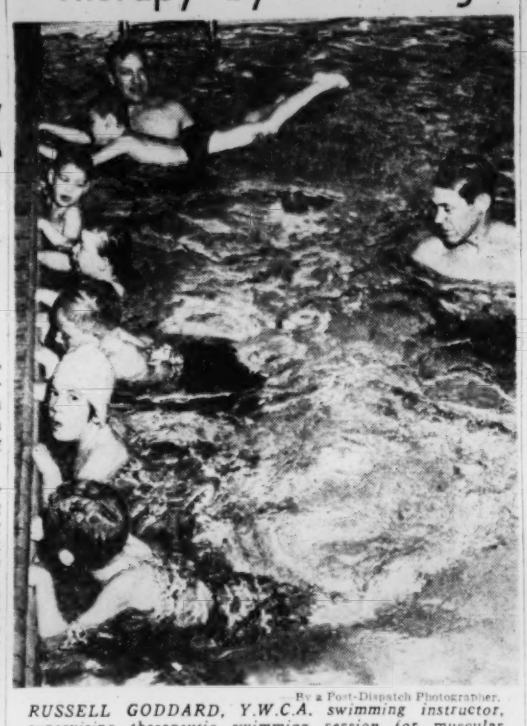

Malenkov went to the Grand National sweepstakes today and joined the crowd in sympathizing with Queen Mother Elizabeth over the unlucky break which kept her horse Devon Loch from winning.

He told reporters he enjoyed himself "but I regret that the Queen Mother's horse fell when so near to victory."

Malenkov saw the race from the front row of the stands about 50 yards from the royal box where sat Queen Elizabeth II, her mother and Princess Margaret.

MRS. CULBERTSON, BRIDGE EXPERT, DIES

Cerebral Hemorrhage Is Cause — Taught System With Ex-Husband.

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—Josephine Culbertson, internationally famous contract bridge expert and former wife of the late Ely Culbertson, died yesterday at a Manhattan Hospital of a cerebral hemorrhage. She was 58 years old. Culbertson died last December.

Mrs. Culbertson and her husband gained wealth and fame when they introduced and taught the Culbertson contract bridge system. They challenged the team of Lenz and Jacoby in a test of systems in 1931. The tournament ended in a victory for the Culbertsons.

When their marriage broke up in 1937, Culbertson commented: "I have lost a grand slam doubled." However, the Culbertsons remained friendly after their divorce and continued their business partnership under the name of Culbertson, Inc.

Since Ely Culbertson's death, a bridge column by Josephine Culbertson has been appearing in the Everyday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch.

MRS. STANLEY STONER DIES, MEMORIAL SERVICE MONDAY

Rumsey, was in charge of Red Cross volunteers at the time of the influenza epidemic in St. Louis and received a medal from the French Government for services here in World War I. She was one of the founders of the medical social service department at Washington University and allied hospitals and worked for many years in the department.

Her husband, who died in 1944, was director of military relief for the Red Cross's southwestern division in World War I, and after the armistice was sent to Palestine as deputy commissioner. Surviving is a daughter, Mrs. Marian Stoner Carling. Memorial services will be at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, 110 North Warson road, Ladue, with private cremation.

TWO KEY SENATE DEMOCRATS NOT SOLD ON AID PLAN

George and Ellender Reflect Strong Opposition Despite Personal Plea by Dulles.

WASHINGTON, March 24 (UP)—Two key Senate Democrats said today the Administration has not convinced them of the need for a long-range foreign aid program or for $4,859,750,000 in new funds.

Senator Ellender of Louisiana, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said bluntly, "I intend to oppose increasing our foreign aid expenditures and putting any part of the money on a long-term basis."

Chairman George of Georgia of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles "still has to sell the program to Congress." He vigorously opposes President Eisenhower's plan to put the foreign aid program on a 10-year continuing basis.

The statements reflected strong Senate opposition to the President's foreign aid plans despite what amounted to a personal plea by Dulles last night for public support.

In a nation-wide radio-TV report on his recent Far Eastern tour, Dulles said the United States must keep a military and economic "protective umbrella" over free Asian nations or lose them to Communism.

He said his tour convinced him more than ever of the need for the Administration's stepped-up foreign aid program and new authority for long-range economic projects to combat Communist programs.

Ellender, in a radio broadcast, said he will fight "to cut all economic aid" from the aid bill for fiscal 1957 which starts July 1. He said the request for increased aid funds "came with ill grace, particularly at this time."

George noted that Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. told a House committee earlier this week that Congress would have a year-to-year check on long-range foreign aid commitments through annual appropriations bills.

"What need is there for a 10-year program if Congress is to review it every year?" George asked.

(Asserting that American foreign aid has been "too late and too little," Walter P. Reuther today proposed that the United States contribute 2 per cent of its gross product each year for 25 years for economic and technical help to less developed nations, the Associated Press said.

(Two per cent of the present gross product of this country would be about eight billion dollars.

(Reauther, president of the United Automobile Workers, made his proposal for a world fund for "peace, prosperity and progress" in a letter to Secretary of State Dulles. He said Russia should be asked to make a similar commitment to the world fund. Reuther said foreign economic aid programs have been "planned and executed in a spirit of bargaining which has cost us dearly.")

Senator Says Dulles 'Should Start Thinking.'

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, March 24—A Democratic Senator today stoked the simmering controversy over Secretary of State Dulles's brand of personal diplomacy.

Senator Jackson of Washington blistered Dulles for spending "weeks of precious time" trotting about Asia "doing what others could do just as well, indeed, I think better."

Charging that the effect of the Secretary's travels was to downgrade the importance of United States ambassadors all over the world, Jackson said:

"He should stop talking and, if it is not out of order, start thinking. Mr. Dulles should cease being a salesman and start being a statesman.

"As a matter of fact, the Secretary of State is not in Washington long enough to run his own department. He is away so much even his own career staff doesn't know what he is thinking."

The Senator's speech, prepared for delivery tonight before the Democratic state convention at Brewer, Me., was made public here by his staff. Although Jackson was unable to reach Brewer in time to deliver the speech, he authorized its release as a statement.

Measles Speeds Vacation.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 24 (UP)—Lehigh University started its Easter vacation at noon today, five days earlier than had been planned, because of an outbreak of measles. The disease has stricken 29 students since the first case was reported in mid-February.

HIGH SCHOOL CERTIFICATE TESTS BY APPOINTMENT NOW

A new plan has been established whereby state high school equivalence certificate examinations can be held by appointment instead of twice a year, it was announced yesterday. Residents of Missouri who are 21 years of age or older may now take the examination within a month.

The plan was worked out by the Adult Education Council of Greater St. Louis, a United Fund Agency; the Missouri Department of Education, and the St. Louis Board of Education. It enables persons lacking high school diplomas to take an examination to show their general education is equivalent to a high school education.

Persons wishing to take the examination may obtain application forms from the Adult Education Council, 721 Olive street. Written requests should include a stamped self-addressed envelope. The State Department of Education will notify candidates of the time and place of examination appointments.

DEFENDS APARTHEID POLICY OF S. AFRICA

Educator Says Chaos Would Result if Negroes Got Franchise.

The apartheid policy of the South African Government aims not only at "reserving certain rights, privileges, and duties for whites in South Africa," but also at offering Negroes the same opportunities in their own communities, Ernst G. Malherbe, president of the University of Natal, said here yesterday.

Malherbe said "complete chaos" would result if South Africa were forced by pressure from outside the country to give the universal franchise immediately to the country's Negroes, who number 9,200,000 out of a population of 13,700,000.

The South African educator, who spoke to the English Speaking Union of St. Louis at the Bogey Club, said that democratic governments dedicated to free speech and government for the people by the people had evolved in homogeneous societies like that of the United States, but that "the world has not yet figured out a form of participation in government for heterogeneous societies."

He added that South Africa is heterogeneous not only racially but also culturally, since "90 per cent of the black people are still a primitive people."

"While it may be undemocratic for a small minority in any country to dominate the electoral system," Malehrbe said, "it is stark folly to elevate the trappings of Western democracy into a fetish, the worship of which will infalliby destroy all the principles and justification of democracy.

"If the black people of South Africa are uprooted from their traditional social framework, with no new roots, they will have little or nothing to lose. And so they can go following strange gods, one of them the Communist ideology."

WIFE CALLS ON TAX BOARD TO FIND MISSING TAXPAYER

DES MOINES, Ia., March 24 (UP)—A new problem came before the Iowa tax commission recently.

An Iowa housewife wrote: "I have the tax form you sent, but my husband left home Dec. 16, and I have had no trace of him yet so he can file his income. If you can locate him please do so—then notify me."

MERCURY OUTBOARDS

We've been state distributors for Johnson's Evinrude, Elto, Lockwood, Cadillac, etc., and we gave them all up for a Mercury dealership.

Grossmann's Boat Store was established in 1907, making it the world's first outboard motor shop. When it comes to experience, I've sold most of my competitors when they were still customers.

Do like I did—switch to Mercury. I'll see to it that you get more power, more speed and greater dependability. See Joe for a better propeller for your outfit, any brand, now in stock. If you want a good-riding wooden boat, see the inimitable 13- and 15-ft.

LYMAN RUNABOUTS

You can tell a Lyman by the way it rides. Priced at $465 and $515 delivered. If you want the finest in aluminum boats, choose

LARSON CRESTLINER

17 models to choose from—12' Sportsman, $209. 14' Seaman, $259. 16' Admiral, $395. 18' Hardtop, Cruiser $1084. And, if you have a flare for speed, I'll guarantee my 4-passenger

SWITZER CRAFT

To do 50 miles per hour. 14' all fiberglas $670 delivered complete with forward steering, windshield.

14' Thompson, 25 Evinrude, Sterling trailer, cover complete, $649. 14' Yellow Jacket, 25 Johnson steering, cover, etc., complete $649. 12' Thompson 3½ Mercury, $135. 14' Chriscraft 4.2 Champion, $140. 6 gal. cruising tanks, $14.95. 14' boat covers, $10.95.

We recondition propellers, $4 each. DEALERS: We have a proposition for you on life preservers, hardware, paints, etc., that can't be beat. Come down to the old Boat Shop and see more outboard boat stuff in one place.

REMEMBER, Mercury's got horsepower!

NOTICE!

Statistics show that in 1955 about 60% of the outboards sold of 25 hp. and over had electric starters. Only MERCURY has a 12-volt electric starter and GENERATOR. This enables you to have lights, sirens, radios, etc., on your boat without fear of running down the battery. See the Mercury Mark 30 and Mark 55 before you buy at

ANTI-TITO PURGE RULINGS LIKELY TO BE REVERSED

Red Satellite Leaders Fear Results—Trials Held in Stalin's Last Years.

By TOM WHITNEY

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—Soviet satellite chieftains may soon be forced against their will to reverse the judgments of their notorius anti-Tito trials and persecutions in Stalin's last years.

These purges in Kremlin-controlled eastern European countries from 1948 to 1953 claimed the lives of Rudolph Slansky of Czechoslovakia, Laszlo Rajk of Hungary, Traicho Kostov of Bulgaria, Koci Xoxe of Albania and many other leading Communists executed with them. They destroyed the political careers of Wladislaw Gomulka in Poland, Ana Pauker in Romania, Paul Merker in East Germany and others who suffered with them.

It would see mto follow from the current Soviet denunciation of Stalin's rule of terror during his last 30 years as Communist dictator that all these judgments must be re-examined. Satellite leaders do not want to do it. They fear the results will shake their positions and their regimes.

Afraid to Face Issue.

The Kremlin leaders in Moscow also have been afraid to face this issue so far. But it looks as thouwh they can not delay much longer. Information from behind the Iron Curtain suggests that machinery is already in motion.

Unconfirmed reports from Prague indicate that a mixed Soviet-Czechoslovakian commission was set up in October 1955 to study the Slansky trial. These reports say former deputy minister of foreign trade Evzen Loebl, one of the three defendants at the 14-man Slansky trial who escaped execution with life sentences, was released from prison or permitted a "vacation" of several weeks recently. There is another report that Czechoslovak journalists met early this year to discuss preparation of public opinion for a partial revision of the Slansky trial.

Other sources suggest that perhaps Slansky and his codefendants will be rehabilitated of charges of "Titoism" but remain still convicted of "Zionism."

Tried With Clementis.

Slansky was secretary general of the Czechoslovak Communist party and one of the two top men in the country until 1951. He was purged later that year and put on trial with 13 others including former Foreign Minister Vlado Clementis in November 1952.

The trial had strong anti-Semitic overtones. Slansky, of Jewish origin, was charged with being a foreign spy, cooperating with Yugoslavia, attempting to introduce Titoism in Czechoslovakia and attempting to restore capitalism.

As in most of the anti-Bito purge trials in eastern Europe of these years, the names of the Americans Noel and Herman Field were dragged in as "American agents" with whom Slansky allegedly was in communication. The Field brothers were released by the Communists in 1954 and cleared of espionage charges.

From Bulgaria there are unconfirmed reports of the release of two men convicted of Titoism together with the executed Communist party chieftain Traicho Kostov.

Victim in Poland.

In Poland the chief victim of the anti-Tito campaign was Gomulka, secretary general of the Communist party and a first deputy premier. He was dismissed from his official positions in 1948 and 1949 and placed under arrest.

He was scheduled to be put on public trial but it never happened. There were reports a year ago he had been released. More recently it was said he was seen at his mother's funeral and has been observed riding around Warsaw in a Government limousine. Gomulka's chief rival was Boleslaw Bierut, who may have played a key role in Gomulka's downfall. Bierut died a short time ago in Moscow. This could ease the way for Gomulka's complete restoration.

In Hungary and Albania there were also big treason trials. In Budapest, Rajk, former minister of internal affairs and later foreign minister and one of the top party leaders, was put on trial in 1949 on charges of Titoism with seven other defendants. Three of them including Rajk died on the gallows.

In Albania Lt. Gen. Xoxe, former deputy premier, was shot in June 1949 after being convicted of Titoism along with four other defendants.

Hungary, Albania Slow.

All along Hungary and Albania have been the slowest of the satellite countries in catching up with the Kremlin's rehabilitation of Josip (Tito) Broz, president of Yugoslavia.

In Romania, Mrs. Pauker, who escaped trial for treason because of Stalin's death, has been variously reported under house arrest and released. But she has never been publicly cleared of serious accusations made against her in the press.

It is thought that Tito himself is pressing the Kremlin for reversal of the anti-Tito trials in eastern European countries. It's believed the Kremlin will sooner or later listen to him.

The reepreussions on satellite regimes cannot be fully foreseen at this date but they are certain to be significant. Most of the present leaders in eastern European countries owe their present positions in considerable part to these purges.

U.S. AIMS TO SEE WHAT U.N. COULD DO IN MIDEAST

To Watch Discussion to Learn How Far Council Might Go in Easing Tensions.

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP) — The discussion of the Middle East situation in the United Nations Security Council, scheduled to open in New York Monday, will be watched by Administration officials for indications of the extent to which the United States, Britain and France can rely on the United Nations to deal with tensions threatening the peace of that area.

The heart of the problem is Russia's attitude. An American resolution would have U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold start negotiations to get both sides in the Arab-Israeli dispute to pull back their forces from the troubled border areas where isolated gun-fights could lead to general war in the Middle East.

United States officials believe Russia will go along with this resolution. They hope that if the Russians do so it may be an initial Soviet step toward co-operation in preventing or putting down aggression in Palestine.

Mr. Eisenhower met today with some of his top diplomatic and defense advisers. Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the session had no connection with the Middle East tension.

It could have been concerned with any number of matters such as the President's "open skies" disarmament proposal, now involved in discussions in London, or the security of United States air bases in troubled North Africa.

What Hagerty called one of a "series of routine technical briefings" brought to the White House Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr., Allan Dulles, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Air Force Donald A. Quarles, Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. Nathan Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff.

Hoover talked with Mr. Eisenhower alone for 15 minutes before the larger conference got under way.

A request to delay the Security Council meeting came last night from Rabsik Asha of Syria and Edward Bdzik of Lebanon.

It was understood the Arab diplomats acted because their governments felt prestige demanded that they be invited to the council table even if they took no part in the debate. Neither Israel nor any of the Arab nations is a council member.

Mollet Says Mideast Arms Embargo Must Come Soon.

PARIS, March 24 (UP) — French Premier Mollet said today an embargo on arms to the Middle East will have to be imposed "very soon," possibly by the United Nations.

He urged that the United States, Britain and France work out a common policy in the Middle East.

Mollet spoke to a touring group of American publishers, editors and radio commentators at a reception in his official residence.

"The time will come very soon when an embargo on arms, possibly through the United Nations, will have to be made," Mollet said.

Asked whether and Arab-Israeli war is imminent, Mollet recalled that he conferred two weeks ago on the subject with British Prime Minister Eden.

"It is necessary for all our countries to have a common policy," he said.

He added that the British-sponsored Baghdad pact would have to be changed to place more stress on Middle East economic development.

The position of Israel must also be considered, he said.

The French premier, stressing he was speaking as "a friend," said United States aid had not always been successful because of the way in which it was given.

He said it must be frightening for Americans to look at the results United States aid sometimes had in the past.

"Too often, let me say, some of the people you had passing it out over here distributed it in such a way that instead of making friends you gained enemies," Mollet said.

HARRIMAN SAYS HE STILL IS 'NOT ACTIVE CANDIDATE'

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP) —Gov. Averell Harriman said today the outcome of the Democratic party primary in Minnesota has brought no change in his status of being "not an active candidate" for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The governor has repeatedly described himself as not an active candidate but some political circles have suggested that Senator Estes Kefauver's defeat of Adlai Stevenson in Minnesota has helped Harriman's chances.

Harriman was told today that New York State Democratic Chairman Michael Prendergast said in a speech in Haverstraw last night that if Harriman's name should be entered for the presidential nomination it would be presented not "as a favorite son but as a regular candidate."

Harriman was asked what this meant and replied: "Prendergast talks for himself, not for me."

Later today the subject of Harriman's status again was broached to the Governor as he left by plane for a week's vacation in Florida.

Reporters asked Harriman if he now is an "active" candidate. "I have no comment," the Governor replied. Then he added: "There is no change in my position."

GROSS OF $20,000 IN ART MUSEUM SALE

102 Private Purchasers at Pre-Christmas 'Collector's Choice' Exhibit.

Sales "grossed somewhat over $20,000 in City Art Museum's "Collector's Choice" exhibition of last December, Charles Nagel, director of the museum, announced yesterday. His report, first complete account of the pre-Christmas sale, appears in the latest number of the museum Bulletin.

The museum itself purchased 11 objects from the loan show after it closed Dec. 18. Private purchasers totaled 102, three of them from other cities. Sales included 153 objects lent by 22 out-of-town dealers and 17 objects submitted by St. Louis area artists, all award-winners in the museum's Missouri show series.

"Comments from the public were almost universally favorable and included many requests that the event become an annual one," Nagel wrote. The sale was the first of its kind ever held at the museum.

Siegfried Reinhardt, whose oil painting titled "Monument" was bought for $765 out of the exhibition, is the subject of an illustrated Bulletin article by Miss Mary Powell, supervisor of education at the museum. She describes and praises his "Pieta," oil-and-wax painting purchased by the museum out of Reinhart's Artist' Guild show of 1951. Reinhardt is a member of the Washington University School of Fine Arts faculty.

Tintoretto's "Minerva Pursuing Venus," Morton D. May's gift to the museum in honor of Perry T. Rathbone, former director here, is the subject of an illustrated article by William N. Eisendrath Jr., the museum's assistant director. May, president of Famous-Barr Co., is an art collector and a benefactor of the museum.

Wild Guest Stops Church Party, But Fast Work Saves Services

Jewel Baptist Men Perform Beyond Call of Duty to Erase Trace of Visiting Skunk.

Services will be held as usual today at Jewel Baptist Church, thanks to a work detail that performed beyond the call of duty after a skunk disrupted a Sunday school social Friday night.

The skunk was discovered in the kitchen by the Rev. Harold J. Fuggian, pastor, as 100 persons were in an education building adjoining the church, 4657 South Grand boulevard.

Apparently the animal with the malodorous potential had crept under a stove as a group of women was washing dishes and preparing fresh coffee after supper.

"I noticed something was wrong and called the board of trustees," the Rev. Dr. Fuggian said. Trustees Ed Kohne and Al Goell rallied to his assistance. The news broke up the gathering. All but a few promptly went home.

Jack Phillips, an officer of the Humane Society of Missouri, arrived early yesterday to find the kitchen area sealed off and a hard core of resistance, including the Rev. Dr. Fuggian, still at the scene. Only then did it become clear that the skunk was a wild one, in full possession of its powers.

"The little fellow got excited about three times and the odor was tremendous," the pastor said. Phillips had a hard time seizing the animal. Finally, groping under the stove, he grabbed it by a leg and thrust it into a burlap-covered cage.

Officer Phillips's maneuver took more than an hour and won high praise from the Rev. Dr. Fuggian, who also complimented the courage shown by men of the church. The skunk was taken to the Humane Society shelter at 1210 Macklind avenue.

SOVIET RELIGIOUS RISE INDICATED BY 3-YEAR ANALYSIS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., March 24—"Considerable evidence that the influence of religion is on the rise in the Soviet Union" was reported today to the Eastern Psychological Association by a Brooklyn college psychologist.

Dr. Ivan D. London, reporting on a three-year study of 500 wartime and postwar Russian defectors to the United States, Germany and Chile, said there were indications that the religious revival behind the Iron Curtain, "far from being a mere survival from the past, is becoming a new force, so much so that, at least temporarily, the Soviet powers-that-be have renounced the idea of launching a frontal attack against it."

Dr. London's paper, presented before some 1500 psychologists, was prepared in collaboration with Oleg Anisimov of New York.

It said that "with the growing recognition of the inadequacies of the Marxist materialist interpretation as applied to both man and the universe, there has arisen . . . a religious belief almost primitive in its simplicity and affirmation."

SENTENCED TO 199 YEARS FOR ILLINOIS KIDNAP-KILLING

WOODSTOCK, Ill., March 24 (AP)—Robert Phillips, 28 years old, of Rockford, Ill., today was sentenced to 199 years imprisonment for the kidnap-murder of a Harvard (Ill.) grocer.

The grocer, Lyle Larson, 45, was abducted, pistol-whipped and shot to death as he knelt in a corn field near Elgin last Dec. 22.

Phillips pleaded guilty to a five-count indictment eight days ago. Circuit Judge William Carroll passed sentence today.

Phillips told police he went to the Kroger store in Harvard and waited for Larson to close up. He accosted the manager outside and was struggling with him when some friends of the manager chanced by.

Phillips then forced Larson into his truck, drove up dirt roads and ordered him out of the car and started pistol-whipping him. Larson was pleading for his life when he was shot in the back of the head, police said.

Phillips testified today that he was an alcoholic and under the influence of liquor at the time of the attempted holdup.

3 BRAZIL TOWNS REPORTED SEIZED BY RED-LED BAND

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 24 (AP)—A ban dof 200 armed men reportedly led by a Communist have seized three towns in northeast Brazil and chased away police, press dispatches reported tonight.

The reports from Goiania, capital of the state of Goias, said two persons were killed and several wounded in a clash between the armed band and state and local police.

These accounts said the small police departments at Amarox Leite, Porangatu and Formoso were outnumbered and forced to flee after a brief exchange of fire. The band then occupied the towns. The press accounts said the band was led by Jose Rufino, a Communist.

G.O.P. SENATOR FEARS FARMERS MAY NOT VOTE

Goldwater Condemns Farm Bill as 'Ridiculous' — Butler Also Speaks.

FRENCH LICK, Ind., March 24 (AP)—Senator Barry Goldwater (Rep.), Arizona, said tonight that "the farm situation is not good" and added, "I'm afraid of an apathetic attitude among farmers who might not vote for either party."

Goldwater and Paul M. Butler, Democratic national chairman, spoke at a meeting of the Indiana Associated Press.

Goldwater said that if such a "sitdown vote" should develop among the farmers and in the South the November election could be very close.

He said further of the farm question, "One of the biggest troubles is that too many politicians from both parties have gotten into it." He called the farm bill passed by the Senate "a ridiculous piece of legislation."

Of the coming election Goldwater said, "It's my guess that we have a 50-50 chance of winning control of the Senate."

"The Republican party unity is better than it was a year ago, but there are still some splits," Goldwater said.

Butler said that Senator Estes Kefauver's victories in the Minnesota and New Hampshire primary elections were not conclusive.

"Many more primaries are needed to show the strength of the presidential candidates," the Democratic national chairman said.

CONNECTICUT RULES OUT AMBASSADOR-DELEGATES

The New York Times News Service
Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Company.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 24 — Connecticut Republican leaders have ruled out the designation of two United States Ambassadors who live in this state—John Davis Lodge and Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce — as delegates to the Republican National Convention.

Lodge, former Governor, is Ambassador to Spain, and Mrs. Luce is Ambassador to Italy. The state leaders said yesterday they have received information from National Republican leaders that President Eisenhower does not favor the designation of Ambassadors as convention delegates and does not want them to take an active part in the forthcoming election campaign.

RESTAURANT'S SAFE FORCED OPEN AND ROBBED OF $375

A safe containing $375 was forced open Friday night in the Thompson restaurant at 718 Olive street, it was reported to police yesterday. Burglars rolled the safe into the kitchen, where they could not be seen from the street, and knocked off the combination. Cash registers containing $50 also were looted.

Anthony Reinhardt, the manager, said he could find no evidence of forced entry. The burglars may have hidden in a rest room and been locked in when the restaurant closed for the night, he reported.

MAN INJURED BY DEBRIS FROM HOME BEING WRECKED

The roof of a house at 1829 North Ninth street collapsed yesterday as a wrecking crew was demolishing the one-story structure, and flying debris injured John LaMacchia, a neighbor.

LaMacchia, 79 years old, was using the telephone in his home at 1831 N. Ninth when tumbling bricks smashed a hole in a wall and showered him with debris. He was treated at City Hospital for shock, cuts and bruises. Other members of his family escaped injury.

DEPUTY RESIGNS, BLAMING HIMSELF FOR JAIL BREAK

JEFFERSON CITY, March 24 (AP)—Edward H. Diemler resigned as a Cole county deputy sheriff today because, he said, "I feel I am to blame" for the escape of two dangerous convicts last Tuesday night.

Diemler, 58 years old, was on duty when Alphonse D. Davis, 19, and Willie Fields, 22, Negroes, got him to enter their cell on a ruse. The two men, Davis facing charges of rape and armed robbery in an earlier escape, fled from the jail. They were captured 22 hours later. During the period Jefferson City was tense, with many families keeping loaded guns handy.

Diemler's resignation to Sheriff Ben Markway said: "I feel I am to blame for the recent escape of prisoners which caused you and the community so much trouble and I should no longer expect you to employ me. Had I followed your procedures and rules for entering the prisoners' cells, the escape could not have occurred."

Diemler, a deputy sheriff since August 1954, was not hurt by the jailbreakers.

PICTURE MURKY ON STALIN RIOTS IN SOVIET STATE

Censorship Covers Story of Demonstrations in Late Dictator's Home Republic.

The New York Times News Service. (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, March 24—More than a week after the first reports of pro-Stalinist riots and other demonstrations in Soviet Georgia the situation there is still far from clear.

The Soviet censor, who has been exercising a tight rein on foreign correspondents in Moscow, and the restrictions on communications between Tiflis and Moscow have contributed to the lack of clarity.

The position as expressed in London by Georgi M. Malenkov, Minister of Electric Power Stations, by the rector of Tiflis University in a telephone interview today and others has been that the West is making much ado about nothing. It is granted that about March 9 there were government-approved demonstrations of students and workers in Tiflis marking the third anniversary of Stalin's death. The actual anniversary, however, was March 5.

The following assertions about the situation in Tiflis have been made public in the last week or so by one or more of the following Soviet sources: Tass, the official news agency; the Georgian Communist newspaper Zarya Vostoka (Dawn of the East), and the Tiflis radio:

1. "Hostile elements" exist in Georgia along with "provocateurs" and "hooligans." The suppression of these elements has been publicly demanded by Zarya Vostoka and by a speech delivered by the first secretary of the Georgian Communist party.

2. Political education among Tiflis University students has been a "failure." This charge was made by Zarya Vostoka, which said this had led "at times to unfortunate consequences." The newspaper has spoken of "amoral conduct on the part of individual students and violation by them of the requirements of Socialist legality."

3. It has been necessary to put 15,000 agitators at work in Tiflis to explain the new Soviet line, presumably the new sharply lower official estimate of Stalin, to the populace of the city. This is a far greater number proportionately than is normally at work in Moscow.

Italian Reds Gagged After Row Over Anti-Stalin Drive.

ROME, March 24 (UP)—Leaders of Italy's Communist party, biggest outside the Iron Curtain, today slapped a gag on Red Parliament members because some had balked at the Kremlin campaign to shatter the myth of Joseph Stalin.

Italian Red leaders ordered party members to keep quiet after "leaks" told of violent squabbles over Moscow's decision.

Party boss Palmiro Togliatti allowed Communist Parliament members to speak their minds freely at a party debate Thursday, but some revealed to newsmen that the session was a stormy one.

Togliatti was reported to have quelled the anti-Moscow revolt only by conceding Stalin's "greatness" despite his many errors.

Some observers saw Socialist leader Pietro Nenni's defense of Stalin as a move to capture the leadership of Italy's left-wingers from Togliatti.

Nenni, a Stalin peace prize winner, in a magazine article, deplored the denunciation of Stalin by men who worked with and for the Soviet Premier for some 25 years.

FLOYD H. CORLISS, MEMBER OF KSD NEWS STAFF, DIES

Floyd H. Corliss, a member of the news staff of Post-Dispatch radio station KSD for 12 years, died of a heart ailment yesterday at David P. Wohl Jr. Memorial Hospital following an attack Jan. 16. He was 60 years old.

Mr. Corliss, who lived at 5741 McPherson avenue, came to KSD from the Webster Groves News-Times after work as a copy editor on the old St. Louis Times, the Cleveland Press and newspapers in Grand Rapids, Mich., and Ames, Ia.

Surviving are his wife, the former Maud Florence Rodgers, and four sons—Herbert, of 5867 Maple avenue, Maplewood; Donald, serving in the Army at Fort Riley, Kan., David and Richard.

Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Cullinane undertaking establishment, 3320 North Kingshighway. Burial will be in Mt. Lebanon Cemetery.

ADDRESS OF ABBA EBAN CHANGED TO SATURDAY

His subject, "The Challenge to Freedom in the Middle East," is expected to touch on the recent Russian-Egyptian arms deal which has caused widespread alarm among his fellow countrymen.

Persons planning to hear him have been told to obtain tickets at the Y.M.H.A.-Y.W.H.A., 724 Union boulevard.

Sun Flare Likened to Exploding 100,000,000 H-Bombs at Once

Movies Taken Feb. 10 Throw Light on What Astronomers Reported as 'Remarkable Occurrence.'

COLUMBUS, O., March 24 (AP)—In violence equal to 100,000,000 H-bombs exploding all at once, the sun suddenly shot a tongue of flaming gas into space.

One billion tons of the sun's mass of gases were expelled. A huge knot of gas shot away at 700 miles a second, or 2,500,000 miles an hour.

All this, some movies showed today, was what happened last Feb. 10 when astronomers reported a "remarkable occurrence" on the sun, a record flare rising in fire from the sun's edge.

This flare set a record for speed among all such flares yet observed, Dr. Donald H. Menzel, director of the Harvard Observatory, told the American Astronomical Society.

The movies were taken with a coronograph, a special instrument kept trained on the sun, to study flares, at the Air Force Sacramento Peak Observatory in New Mexico. The flare studies are joint research by Dr. Menzel and Elske P. Smith, Howard Demastus, Harry Ramsey, and George Schnable of the Sacramento Peak Observatory.

First came a bubble of gas, expanding at 60 miles a second, on the eastern edge of the sun. It grew steadily more brilliant for five to 10 minutes. Then suddenly a top knot of the bubble sped up to 700 miles a second.

This knot, about 20,000 miles in diameter, shot out 200,000 miles before becoming too faint to see.

The force to produce this sudden acceleration was more than 1000 times the pull of the earth's gravity. It required energy equal to exploding 100,000,000 H-bombs, Dr. Menzel said.

Most of the billion tons of gas expelled was hydrogen.

Ultraviolet light energy from the flare played hob with radio transmission for a time by affecting the ionosphere which usually bounces radio waves back to earth.

The cause of sun flares or prominences is not fully known, Dr. Menzel said. They could be caused by shock waves from tremendous upsurges of gases in the sun's atmosphere, or they could be due to electrical and magnetic forces near an active sunspot group.

The coronograph is a telescopic instrument with a disc that masks the sun's face, except for its edges, like a permanent eclipse. It takes four pictures a minute to record the activity of flares.

Stop Worrying Over Wrinkles, Creases, Facial Furrows, Dry Skin!

By John Abbott

Do you know why your skin is dry and wrinkled? It's all quite simple, really! Your skin is dry and lined for one, and only one reason! Because the water deep in your face is always evaporating—robbing your face of the constant moisture it requires to stay fresh and smooth! And it's this never-ending evaporation that causes the outer layer of your facial skin to become brittle, hard, dry and lined!

Originally, it was thought that oils could keep your skin moist and supple! But even if you suffer with an over-oily complexion, you know that oil hasn't prevented your skin from becoming dry and wrinkled! The only thing that can keep your face soft and supple is water itself! Water which stays deep in the pores of your skin, constantly refreshing your face the way water freshens a lovely flower!

When you wash your face every morning, you are doing only half the job of dealing with dry skin! You are remoistening your skin, true, but that water by itself cannot penetrate any deeper than the surface of the skin. And even if you had the strange ability to rub water deep into your pores, you still wouldn't be preventing the water from evaporating once it got there! And this is the nub of the problem. This is what skin specialists have spent years trying to discover—something that actually could carry water down into your dry, parched skin .... keep it there ... maintain its moisture there!

AT LAST! NATURE SUCCEEDS WHERE OTHERS HAD FAILED!

For years, skin specialists vainly searched for just such a water-retaining agent! And one failure followed on top of the other! But one day scientists heard about a new natural element found in all living cells of animal and plant life! It was called LECITHIN—and it was excitingly reported that Lecithin had the ability to hold water—to carry water—to maintain moisture! And because Lecithin has these fantastic qualities, it is doing a sensational job in industry after industry—wherever the special need exists to prevent dryness ... to maintain freshness!

Lecithin is being used in the oleomargarine industry because it prevents water from draining out. Lecithin is being used in a leather industry because it restores and preserves suppleness even to tough, dry, leathery skins!

Lecithin is being used in the chocolate industry because it prevents delicate fresh aromas from evaporating.

Lecithin is being used in the baking industry because it imparts increased moisture to baked goods! Yes, wherever a natural chemical is needed to maintain moisture, Lecithin—nature's own wonder—succeeds where others failed!

The long hard search was over! Skin specialists knew here at last is the agent that can carry water deep into the deserts of your skin and keep it there. Apply it to dry complexion ... and moisture in the skin can be retained ... facial freshness can be restored!

Imagine! Now you can stop peering into your mirror night after night ... anxiously watching the lines deepen in your cheeks ... the crows-feet wrinkle into dry furrows around your eyes ... deep shadows and ugly lines that seem to be screaming ... you look O-L-D!

Now—you'll discover how an amazing new formula ends your Dry Skin problem ... helps eliminate lines, wrinkles, creases and furrows from your face—keeps your complexion moist and flower fresh ... actually makes you look 3 to 7 as much as 15 years younger! Yes, without using any messy greases, spilly powders or burning soaps, you can own a skin that looks bathed by the angels! Now with just a simple pleasant application of nature's own miracle formula, you can thrill to a complexion that is young ... radiant ... BREATHING with the feel of fine silks! Here's the full story—told for the first time today ... about a miraculous new discovery that puts the best years of your life back in your face! Actually saves you hundreds of dollars in expensive beauty treatments!

TESTS PROVED IT WOMEN LOOKED 15 YEARS YOUNGER!

Skin specialists went ahead and blended this miracle formula! They called it B-21—and then put it to the test! B-21 was tried on hundreds of women—women of all ages—from all walks of life. It was medically tested on women of 30—in those dangerous years when deep disfiguring changes are being wrought in the face! On 60-year-old grandmothers whose skins were as dry and creased as prunes! On young girls whose complexions were marred by ugly dry scales! On movie and TV actresses whose complexions had been dried to a crisp by the hot lights!

In each and every case, the results were mazing! Old-looking dried-out complexions came to life again! Wrinkles ... crowsfeet ... deep facial furrows were miraculously smoothed out! Complexions became radiant with a breath-taking flower-freshness Women looked 3 ... 7 ... as much as 15 years younger! Yes, they felt reborn with the bounce of irresistible youth!

And now amazing B-21 can work the very same wonders for YOU! And for a price so fantasticaly low you'll jump for joy! Yes, NOW you can have the very same fabulous B-21 formula that might have cost you as much as $25 a jar! That's right! Until recently, raw Lecithin was sold in drug stores for as much as $14 a pound! It wasn't until chemists discovered that Lecithin could be extracted from the health-giving soybean plant in such huge quantities that low-cost mass production of it became possible!

And that's the only reason why it's now possible for YOU to buy this fantastic new dry-skin treatment — B-21 with Lecithin — for the low, low price of only $3.50 plus federal tax! That's right! Only $3.50 brings the most miraculous answer to the problem of dry, wrinkled, old-looking complexions that history has ever known!

TRY B-21 AT NO RISK! MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE!

But this is just the beginning! We want you just to TRY B-21 at NO RISK for one full month! Yes, without risking a penny, give your dry skin the B-21 treatment for 30 days! And then, if you're still not convinced that B-21 with Lecithin has accomplished the complexion miracle of a life-time—you simply return the unused portion and get your FULL REFUND!

Each night you smooth this amazing formula into your face — and each morning you go to your mirror with your heart pounding! You see your dry, parched skin change day by day into a smoother, softer, sparkling complexion! Lines and wrinkles begin to smooth from sight! Your skin feels dewey-fresh! Your complexion is petal-smooth! Yes, NOW, with just these easy, pleasant applications nightly, you thrill to a complexion that makes you look and feel Years YOUNGER! Order YOUR jar of the new and wonderful B-21! Not just "another face cream" — but a fabulous FACE-REFRESHER that re-dews and re-news your complexion ... keeps it moist and blossoming! Thrill to the complexion you've always dreamed of — the new natural way — the B-21 way!

Remember! You have nothing to lose but the dried-out look of age! And you have a radiant, fresh new complexion to gain!

Estes Kefauver

That Tireless Campaigner From Tennessee

Homespun Touch Paying Off—Other Senators Do Not Hold Him in Highest Esteem, However.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright 1956, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, March 24.

WHAT makes Estes run? The answers to that question vary widely, depending on the perspective from which the tall, loose-jointed Senator from Tennessee is viewed. But there is no difference over how he runs. Made apparently of some indestructible stuff found only in rare deposits in his native state, Senator Kefauver is stayed on his appointed rounds by neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night.

The mere contemplation of his appointed rounds from now until the June 5 primary in California would exhaust a man with a less formidable physical equipment. This reporter was privileged to see the Senator's appointment calendar for the 15-week period that is likely to determine his fate. He will be batting back and forth between the East Coast and the West Coast like a ping-pong ball, with brief pauses in Washington for a day or two and a stopover in Tennessee.

That is how he has been running ever since he was bitten by the presidential bug five years ago.

THIS WEEKEND he is on tour in California on an hour-to-hour schedule beginning at eight in the morning and running late into the evening. He flies back to Washington Tuesday night, spends a day or two here, flies to Tennessee for fund-raising dinners over the next weekend and then takes off for Florida, where he launches his campaign for the 28 votes that state's delegation will cast at the Democratic convention in Chicago. The Florida primary is on May 29, and if Kefauver should defeat Adlai E. Stevenson there and add the 28 to what he already has from New Hampshire and Minnesota he would greatly increase his momentum for the nomination.

After three days in Florida, he flies to Nebraska for a day, to New Jersey for two days, to Maryland for a day, to New York for a day, to North Carolina for a day and then back to Florida for three more days of stumping. From Florida he takes off for a week in California and a day in Portland, Ore. He sleeps, when he sleeps, sprawled out in a seat on a plane. He begins to talk as he comes down the ramp to whomever may be gathered there, and he never stops until he gets on another plane.

He does all this, if one may believe the ardent supporters who staff his small headquarters here, on a shoestring. The persistent rumor is that Kefauver has received indirect financial backing from Gov. Averell Harriman funneled through Tammany Hall as part of a concerted kill-Stevenson movement. This the Kefauver backers deny.

In refutation of what they say is a deliberate effort to discredit the Senator they show a detailed tabulation of campaign contributions thus far. The gifts in amounts for the most part of $50 and $100 add up to $67,259.

The psychology the Senator exploits as he bats across the country is that of the homespun little David standing up to the Goliath of political bossism and corporate power. He appeals to deep discontents that he believes are widespread beneath the surface picture of glowing prosperity and happy well-being painted by the Eisenhower Administration. The results in Minnesota show that he may very well be right and that the shadow of discontent is much darker than anyone in Washington had hitherto suspected.

The Kefauver image viewed from close-up by his fellow Senators is a dim one. It is an understatement to say that he is disliked by both Democrats and Republicans, with few exceptions. Democrats in the Senate, including those who agree with his liberal views, complain that he does not carry his share of the load. He cannot be counted on to stay on the floor of the Senate or do the spade work in committee essential to the legislative process.

The close-up image in Washington is of an opportunist grabbing for himself every possible opening. He took the chairmanship of a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee investigating crime and racketeering and the politics of crime, and parlayed it before the television audience into nation-wide fame. This together with the coonskin cap that came out of his fight against the late Boss Ed Crump of Tennessee gave him his first leg up on the presidency.

In January of this year Kefauver wanted to be chairman of the Anti-Monopoly Subcommittee and conduct hearings into the growing concentration of economic power in a few giant corporations. Here was another TV opportunity with sensational headlines skillfully produced for edition times across the country. It was reported that Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, of Texas, stepped in the way to keep Kefauver from this assignment.

Kefauver himself absolves Johnson. But powerful pressures were brought, presumably by the corporations that would have been investigated, and the monopoly hearings were eventually conducted by the late Senator Harley Kilgore, of West Virginia, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee until his death a month ago. They produced little other than abstract analysis of anti-monopoly laws.

ESTES KEFAUVER
Monopoly's consistent enemy.

While his motives in seeking to run the monopoly investigation may have been mixed, his record on monopoly has been consistent. Throughout his career—10 years in the House and now in his second term in the Senate—he has fought against the power of monopoly and business concentration. He has hewed to this line even when interests in his own state have threatened him with reprisal. His stand has earned him the allegiance of many former New Dealers still in Washington.

It was thanks largely to Kefauver's persistence that the Dixon-Yates power deal was finally investigated. Kefauver has given long and effective support to the Tennessee Valley Authority.

IF THE WASHINGTON IMAGE is clouded, blurred it may be by professional jealousy, it is in any event largely irrelevant. Residents of the District of Columbia do not have the vote except in a token presidential preference primary. What counts in these primaries is the image in the country.

Judging by the elections in Minnesota and New Hampshire, the Senator has succeeded in projecting the image of the homespun David. He reaches out a big hand, he rings and he says, "I'm Estes Kefauver and I hope you'll vote for me." Although he will be 53 years old on July 26, there is about him a boyish quality that is said to attract women voters. He wants you to be kind to him, to like him. He radiates that flattering appeal as he hops from town to town and from crossroads to crossroads.

Manager of the Kefauver campaign is F. Joseph Donohue, a Washington lawyer whose rating in the party as a professional is high. Donohue held various Government offices under former President Truman, ending as a Commissioner of the District of Columbia. He spends nearly as much time on the road as the Senator, paying his own way and accepting no salary, according to a spokesman in Kefauver headquarters. Another figure out of the Truman Administration active for the Senator from Tennessee is J. Howard McGrath, former Attorney General. McGrath is a "consultant" and gives only part time to the cause.

There are few important names attached to the Kefauver candidacy. Hard at work at headquarters here is Mrs. Mabelle Kennedy of Pawhuska, Okla., banker and rancher who was active in Democratic politics in her own state. Mrs. Kennedy is said to help with funds from time to time when the treasury is empty. In a steely voice she says that she is dedicated to the Kefauver candidacy because he is working for the farmers, and if something isn't done soon for the farmers and ranchers they will all be broke.

This is all in the pattern of the homespun hero who isn't afraid to wear a coonskin cap and plead for the common man's vote. But beneath this guileless surface Kefauver is a shrewd and a sophisticated politician. He knows very well the stakes he is playing for and the odds that are against him. With unflagging energy in the tradition of the old-time campaigners he is going right on pursuing the highest office in the land.

Russian Attack on Stalin Aimed Only at His Methods

Soviet Objectives Are the Same as Ever—Capitalist Overturn, Victory for World Communism.

Writer of the following analysis has visited Soviet Russia five times during the last 30 years. His last visit was in June, 1955.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 24.

AS details trickle out of Soviet Russia about the secret speech to the twentieth Communist Congress in which party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev downgraded the once-glorified Stalin, it is evident the new "collective leadership" in the Kremlin was more concerned about the late dictator's terroristic methods than about his long-range policies.

Khrushchev's emotional three-hour denunciation of the self-sanctified Stalin as a blood-thirsty egomaniac and military bungler gives the United States and the rest of the free world at least a temporary opportunity to exploit the ideological uncertainty the speech has caused behind the Iron Curtain and in the uncommitted countries. Whether the Eisenhower Administration will be able to pick up the valuable windfall will depend partly on how far the Communists go in trying to obliterate the tremendous buildup Stalin gave himself through the world and partly on the free world's skill in revising its own anti-Communist program to fit the changed conditions.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER, at his press conference this week, not only overlooked a propaganda possibility but also indicated that he had not been fully briefed when he was asked for his reaction to the continued attack on Stalin by the new Soviet regime.

After observing that only the people carrying out the new policy could tell positively what they are doing, he said:

"There is all sort of speculation, but there is one thing about it and this may have some influence: I suppose that most of you have read at least some parts of Stalin's 'Problems of Leninism.'

"Well, now in that you find certain doctrine, but these leaders, this collective leadership, is now following other methods in other areas in its foreign relations.

"Therefore, you (they) had to repudiate something about Stalin and possibly they just go the whole way and repudiate the man as well as some of his doctrinal works."

Students of Russia and Communism are studying every word that has come out of the twentieth Party Congress. As yet the text of the Khrushchev speech is not available. Nor have the intelligence agencies or foreign reporters been able to get hold of the letter being circulated among party leaders in Russia and the outside world which gives the Russian party's central committee's orders on how to carry out the substance of Khrushchev's repudiation of his former boss.

This letter has already caused dismay and uncertainty in Russia itself and has divided party leaders, some of whom were

NIKITA KHRUSHCHEV
". . . It can never happen again . . ."

Stalin's proteges, in the United States, France, East Germany and Italy. Diplomatic and news reports tell of unrest in the satellite countries, but so far the State Department has received no word about the reaction in Red China, where Mao Tse-tung is said to have regarded himself as the ideological successor to Stalin.

The three volumes of text of the speeches to the twentieth Congress, made available in this country from Communist radio broadcasts, prove what students of Communism have always known—that a profound knowledge of semantics is necessary to understand the Communist, and particularly the Russian, speeches and writings. For instance, when the Kremlin speakers denounced "the cult of personality," they were really referring to Stalin's one-man despotism; when they talked of "collective leadership" they meant their own rule by a small group of self-appointed party bosses.

Experts who have weighed every word in the published speeches to the Party Congress say that they have found nothing that repudiates Stalin's policies or principles. They point out that the criticism was solely as to Stalin's methods. The present collective leaders, like Stalin, invoke the writings of Lenin to justify whatever they want to do. The Soviet objective remains the same, overturn the "reactionary" and "capitalistic" countries and world domination by the "people's democracy" through Communism.

There can be no question that the Kremlin's collective leadership is following methods different from Stalin's, but they did not repudiate any of Stalin's doctrinal works, as the President implied.

Replying to another question at this press conference, the President said the Allied leaders to whom he had talked had not questioned that the basic Communist objective has not changed and, therefore, he believed they would not allow their guards to fall carelessly or complacently. He added that our own peaceful aims were not well understood abroad, but he did not indicate whether this country had any positive plans to capitalize on the present troubled situation in Russia.

The events leading up to, and subsequent to, the denunciations of Stalin's methods at the twentieth Party Congress by Khrushchev, Mikoyan and other top leaders show that the shattering of the Stalin legend was on a carefully calculated timetable that started three years ago at Stalin's death. The process has been gradual, with the dramatic episode coming on Feb. 24, near the end of the Congress.

Downgrading of Former Red Dictator Follows Plan — May Give U.S. Propaganda Opening.

The question can be legitimately raised that the Congress itself was timed for the two major purposes of destroying the god-like "big brother" image of Stalin and of arousing the Russians to put ever more effort into the sixth five-year plan.

ALTHOUGH THE CONGRESS itself formally approved decrees drafted by the party bosses, it charted no new course and made no decisions on its own. It merely cheered and ratified what the party leaders had done and planned, and the members went back to their homes to spread the latest official word.

When the party members went back to their bailiwicks to report on the Congress, the news began coming out through the slightly relaxed censorship about the quickly suppressed local revolts in provincial republics, notably Georgia, the native land of Stalin and Lavrenti Beria, head of his secret police, who, with his top associates, was executed for treason in December, 1953.

The ground has been partly prepared for orders they brought. The downgrading of Stalin's memory because of his terroristic methods within the Kremlin as well as throughout Russia and the satellites had started gradually almost immediately after his funeral. He was buried with Lenin in the red marble mausoleum outside the Kremlin walls, but the party and Government publications began omitting his name and stopped referring to him—as they had during his lifetime—as the greatest world leader, the greatest scientist, the greatest architect, the greatest historian and the great humanitarian.

Malenkov was installed as his successor as Prime Minister. It soon became evident, however, that Khrushchev, Bulganin, Mikoyan, Kaganovich and other members of the ruling clique were ganging up to save their own lives and power to make Malenkov only the nominal head of the party and the Government. The public tip-off came in July, 1953, when Beria and his associates were arrested and Stalin's secret police were stripped of most of their powers. The collective leadership was not taking chances that Malenkov or someone else might combine to follow Stalin's methods of murder and exile.

Since Stalin's death, there have been three successive heads of the security police. The latest is Gen. Ivan A. Serov, now in London to prepare for the visit of Khrushchev and Bulganin next month.

Diplomats in Moscow during the past three years reported on the gradual changes from the "hard" attitude of Stalin's regime to the "softer" methods of the new rulers. They also warned there was no evidence of change in the immediate Soviet objectives which were to be attained by breaking up the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance and the ousting of American forces from overseas bases in Europe, the Middle East, Africa and Asia.

DURING THESE THREE YEARS, however, a new factor became evident—the probability that Russia plus the more advanced satellites could give the United States and Western Europe competition in the economic field. This is the latest Russian challenge to which the Eisenhower Administration and the Democratic Congress have not yet found an answer other than extension of the foreign economic aid program.

The threat of economic competition is possible because of the success of the fifth or postwar five-year program and the prospects of success for the sixth, which like its predecessors, will emphasize the building up of heavy or productive industries at the expense of light or consumer goods industries. Coupled with this planned economy is the extensive education and training of promising scientists and technicians from Russia, the satellite and the "neutral" countries.

Russia, for all its vast geography, is still a "have not" nation, with a large deficit of foods and fibers. In this economic competition with the United States it can absorb the products of industrially underdeveloped countries which produce raw materials and do it on a barter basis for its own industrial products and those from Czechoslovakia, West Germany, Poland and Hungary. Because it is a dictatorship unhampered by a budget-conscious legislature or electorate it can finance these international deals at two per cent, a rate lower than a "capitalistic" country or private enterprise can meet.

When Malenkov "resigned" from the Russian prime ministership in February last year, confessing "insufficient experience," the collective leadership came officially into full power and the Russian "new look" in diplomacy had a chance to take in more territory. The Austrian peace treaty, blocked by the Kremlin for 10 years, was signed and the new bosses put on jovial faces at home and abroad with their campaign to make friends and influence people. At the same time they began bartering Communist arms to Egypt and offering armaments to other Middle Eastern and Asian countries.

American and other free world diplomats knew for certain that the defamation of Stalin was in full swing when Khrushchev and Bulganin visited Tito in Belgrade and blamed the separation of Yugoslavia from the Communist bloc on lies Beria had told Stalin and Foreign Minister Molotov. Some American diplomats believe they may have tipped off Tito

Will President Take Foreign Aid Fight to People?

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 24.

EVIDENCE is accumulating that if President Eisenhower desired to take his case for a foreign aid program directly to the people he might find more support for it than he is presently getting from Congress.

Polls taken by Senator Thomas E. Martin (Rep.), Iowa, and Representative Harrison A. Williams Jr. (Dem.), New Jersey, and the indorsement by Gov. George N. Craig of Indiana, a Republican, of the President's $4,859,975,000 foreign aid program, indicate a surprising amount of international sentiment.

In addition, the formation of a new Committee for an Effective Foreign Aid Program, headed by Morris Llewellyn Cooke, Philadelphia engineer, and Dewey Anderson, director of the Public Affairs Institute of Washington, has been announced. Next month a workshop meeting of the National Conference on Economic and Social Development will be held in Washington; one of the conference objectives is to stimulate interest in foreign aid.

While no firm conclusions can be drawn from these developments, they tend to show that the generally negative attitude of Congress toward the Administration proposals may not be a completely accurate reflection of the national mood.

Last Jan. 14 Martin sent out 41,886 questionnaires to Iowans selected without regard to party affiliation. He tried to reach every twentieth householder in Iowa. He received 6393 replies to the questionnaire, an unusually high percentage of returns. Martin asked 36 questions, of which the first four had to do with foreign policy.

Of those answering, 78 per cent approved Mr. Eisenhower's foreign policy, 68 per cent favored continuing foreign military aid, and 69 per cent favored continuing foreign economic aid for another year. But in answer to the question, "Do you favor putting foreign economic aid on a new long-term footing?" 72 per cent said no.

A year ago Martin sent out a similar questionnaire. Replies to two questions disclosed that 62 per cent of the persons questioned were opposed to ending foreign military aid and 60 per cent were opposed to ending foreign economic aid. This would seem to indicate that the number of Iowans in favor of foreign military and economic aid has increased substantially in the last year.

Although Williams is a Democrat, his district is estimated to be normally 60 per cent Republican. Williams's election to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Clifford P. Case, now a Senator, was unexpected. His district consists entirely of populous Union county. At the end of January, 75 volunteer workers set out under Williams's direction to reach as many families as possible with a 12-point questionnaire.

Final results will not be available for another week or so, but samplings of batches of 100 questionnaires indicate Union county voters favor the Administration proposals by a proportion of about three to two.

Williams divided his foreign-aid question into two parts. He first asked whether the voter favored the President's proposal of long-range economic aid. One sampling showed 71 persons for the suggestion and 25 against. This proportion was noted in other samples and was rather surprising to Williams's staff, since most persons agree that the inexpensive and effective program of Point Four technical aid is sound. It is the long-range basis for economic aid that has become controversial.

One explanation may be that the second part of the question coupled the inquiry with Mr. Eisenhower himself while the first did not, although technical aid is part of the Administration program. If this is correct it indicates people are more likely to follow a course indorsed personally by Mr. Eisenhower than one which is not specifically identified with him. It is a further hint that if Mr. Eisenhower took his case to the people he could get results.

Last Wednesday in a speech in New York, Gov. Craig asserted foreign economic aid must be continued for "even 75 years" if that is necessary to win the cold war. He urged a two-generation commitment be given careful consideration.

Gov. Craig's stand was considered significant because of the isolationist traditions of Indiana. The state is represented in the Senate by Homer E. Capehart and William E. Jenner, and the predominantly Republican House delegation includes such men as Charles A. Halleck. All are conservatives.

In announcing the formation of the Committee for an Effective Foreign Aid Program, Anderson and Cooke said in part:

"Our committee will launch a program seeking to enlist the people of this nation in our cause. We will offer our views to the Administration and co-operate in its efforts to make economic aid more effective. We shall be critical of any failures to do so.

"We believe that President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace proposal and President Truman's Point Four program are by all odds the most constructive departures in recent American foreign policy. But both have tended to become propaganda devices, administered grudgingly and with many scoldings. We deplore that America is not fully applying its available talents to the struggle for economic growth in underdeveloped countries."

The committee membership of 130 includes Roger Baldwin, former St. Louisan identified with Civil Liberties movements; Dr. William Scarlett of St. Louis, retired Episcopal Bishop of Missouri; former Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan; novelist Pearl Buck; economist Stuart Chase; Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas; Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem.), Minnesota; Gov. George M. Leader of Pennsylvania, and others representing labor, farm, civic, business and religious organizations. A number of former administrative officers of federal foreign aid programs also are included.

A conference to be held in Washington April 10 will be built around the program of the Point Four Information Service, a clearing house for exchange of ideas and information among about 25 organizations with Washington headquarters whose members are interested in some aspect of technical aid.

Representatives of about 75 organizations from other parts of the country will attend the conference. They will hear and question heads of Government foreign aid programs.

These organizations offer forums for the dissemination of information and could become a part, if perhaps not a major one, of an Admininstration campaign. In 1947 various groups got behind the Marshall Plan for European recovery. Outstanding business men such as Paul G. Hoffman, later administrator of the program, lent their help.

It is probable that in an election-year some leading Republicans would be reluctant to become members of a "pressure" group for fear that might imply criticism of Republican policy.

The tenor of President Eisenhower's special message to Congress last Monday and subsequent testimony before congressional committees by Herbert Hoover Jr., Under Secretary of State, and John B. Hollister, director of the International Co-operation Administration, indicate the Administration may be content with a moderate appeal in behalf of foreign aid rather than a do-or-die fight.

What seems to be missing in the foreign aid picture is the presence of an advocate. There is no one, within or without the Administration, who at the moment might be called a champion around whom the various forces favorable to foreign aid could rally.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Thoughts on a Primary

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I should like to try to explain what I believe the garden-variety voter thinks about primary elections.

1. The garden-variety voter does not vote in primaries.

2. The g.-v. voter does not think seriously about presidential candidates until shortly before the conventions.

3. In one-party sections of any state, the g.-v. voter usually registers, for various reasons, in the political party which invariably controls his particular section. In my section, I know many voters who ardently support Adlai Stevenson, but who are registered Republicans.

4. In my section, Adlai Stevenson's nomination is literally taken for granted by the g.-v. voter, including not only Democrats, but Republicans who would vote for no other Democrat for President. The enthusiasm for Adlai Stevenson has not abated. The respect for his intelligence and integrity has increased.

5. Since the g.-v. voter pays little attention to primaries, if he was for Adlai Stevenson before any and all primaries, he still is and will be, because he believes that Adlai Stevenson would honor the great office of the presidency. ELISE LOEB.
Elkins Park, Pa.

Again the people speak. Stevenson has the organization, Kefauver has the folks. CHARLES LEWIS.
Union, Mo.

Democrats in New Hampshire and 236,000 of them in Minnesota, have very clearly expressed themselves at the polls as wanting Kefauver as their nominee for President.

Now comes Mark Holloran, Democratic National Committeeman for Missouri, with the amazing statement that if the common people of Florida and California also express this same preference, then they will probably get Senator Stuart Symington.

How cockeyed and callous must one be to be a Democratic politician and to so completely ignore the properly expressed wishes of the common people? INDEPENDENT.

I can't understand all the concern over the probable Democratic candidate for President. What difference does it make if the candidate is Stevenson, Kefauver, Harriman or some dark horse? The Democrats can't beat Ike even if they run Marilyn Monroe. FRED E. PROBST.
Jefferson City.

Political observers, in trying to analyze Senator Kefauver's upset primary victory over Adlai Stevenson in Minnesota, have cited among the reasons the Senator's folksiness, 100 per cent parity pledge, and his skill in playing the "underdog."

It is a sad commentary on the state of mind of the American electorate —just as it was in 1952—when smiles, foolish promises and emotional appeals make a greater impression than sincerity, honesty, intelligence and reason.

'Prosecution by Fear'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As I travel throughout the country I always manage to get my copy of the Post-Dispatch. As one who has lived under Hitler and seen McCarthyism at work, let me congratulate you on your local exposes of the denial of civil liberties.

Since St. Louis should, at least in part, reflect the philosophy of the great Pulitzer, it must amaze you to find your community unable to grasp the dangers of despotism.

My first year philosophy students could understand why telephone taps and secret microphones are immoral. Everyone is endowed with the right to be free from an invasion of his privacy.

The right is given by the moral law; to violate it is immoral. You and your staff are to be honored for your diligence.

I was shocked to read recently that a St. Louis Circuit Court grand jury searched their room for a hidden microphone. This is not a healthy climate and shows you how this prosecution by fear spreads.

If the conditions you have uncovered in St. Louis were to be found in every town in the land, America would be in mortal danger.

MRS. LANCE DIEGUID.

Something New

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

There'll be something brand new added to the Sunday Post-Dispatch on April 1, you tell us.

Here's hoping it's a new editorial page with an intelligent sense of direction for things American.

Or is that hoping for too much?

J. J. BONE.

Fake Patriotism

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In your deliberations and writing on the subject of the Dirksen amendment, I hope you will seriously consider among other aspects the following which occur to me:

1. It smells highly of fake patriotism and self-interest.

2. It would hamstring the President and his representatives in international proceedings.

3. No treaties would have trustworthiness abroad.

4. It is to the Constitution even worse than spot-zoning is to city planning.

MRS. WALLACE M. KELLEY.

Do It Right—or Wait

The Senate has been debating a most important matter this week. It is this:

What if any changes ought to be made in the present method of electing the President which gives the nominee who carries a state all the electoral votes of that state even though he wins the popular majority in the state by only one vote.

What is wrong with this outmoded system is that the nominee who wins the popular vote in the nation can lose the Electoral College vote. This has happened several times and it can be expected to happen again. For example, in 1876 Democrat Samuel J. Tilden of New York won the popular majority by a quarter million votes but lost in the Electoral College, 184 to 185, to Republican Rutherford B. Hayes of Ohio. In 1888 Democrat Grover Cleveland of New York won the popular vote by more than 100,000 yet lost the electoral vote, 168 to 233 for Republican Benjamin Harrison of Ohio.

These frustrations of the popular will caused political turmoil and a similar result would be a bad thing for the country in the coming or any other presidential election. Actually, slight shifts in the popular vote in key states would have given an electoral majority to Republican Thomas E. Dewey of New York eight years ago.

Since the desirability of changing the system is apparent the question is: How?

Last Sunday we discussed this issue with the consequence that several of our readers took our editorial to be an indorsement of the Kefauver-Daniel proposal which is now pending in the Senate.

The Post-Dispatch position is what it long has been. We favor the abolition of the Electoral College as an outmoded fifth wheel. We favor the election of the President and Vice President by the popular vote of those citizens who go to the polls.

Senator Douglas of Illinois who has made a careful study of the Kefauver-Daniel proposal says that it has grave defects. One of these is that it would permit a state to apportion its electoral vote on the basis of congressional districts now heavily weighted in favor of rural areas against urban areas.

The Illinois Senator has figured out that with the Kefauver-Daniel system at work, the defeated President nominee in 1952 might actually have won the electoral majority because of the dual system it would accord to the states.

Another provision of the Kefauver-Daniel proposal would throw the presidential election into the Senate and House, sitting jointly, if the leading candidate won less than 50 per cent of the vote. This provision would have tossed the 1948 election into Congress. A sure result would be to encourage the formation of splinter parties.

In our opinion the Senate is debating the Kefauver-Daniel amendment too soon. If there were any committee hearings we missed them. It would make sense for the Judiciary Committee to hold hearings on the several electoral reform proposals. Senator Humphrey of Minnesota proposes abolition of the Electoral College and presidential choice by popular vote. Senator Mundt of South Dakota and Representative Coudert of New York propose keeping the Electoral College and apportioning each state's vote in the ratio of its popular vote.

Something has gone haywire in the leadership in the Senate when it will take up precious time on the Kefauver-Daniel compromise without first giving it a thorough sorting out in committee.

In the debate last Tuesday Senator Kefauver told Senator Barkley of Kentucky, an old opponent of the Electoral College, that he, Kefauver, also favored straight out popular vote. If the Tennessee Senator will work hard to that end in the Judiciary Committee for a week or so perhaps he can induce the committee to hold hearings and report out a clean-cut amendment.

Meantime the Senate should hold up action. The country has waited a long time for electoral reform. Let us do it properly even if it takes a while longer. No proposal, whether sound or half-baked, would apply to the 1956 election anyway.

TV From Moscow to Siberia

Moscow has revealed an ambitious blueprint for a television network that would link European Russia with the Soviet Far East. Although it involves criss-crossing the whole nation with coaxial cables and the building of 180 automatic television relay stations that would work without human hands, the job is to be completed by 1960, Moscow says. As a further idea of the immensity of this task there is the fact that right now there are only 12 Russian cities that have TV broadcasting facilities and they are scattered from Moscow to Vladivostok.

If this is done—and it may be—it will mean only more of the regimented type of education and entertainment which the Kremlin deems fit for the masses. It will not help them to understand the outside world nor even to resolve political and moral difficulties within their own nation. That will be the irony of what will be an amazing feat if it is carried out.

Slow-Down for Mr. Hoffa?

The developing struggle within the International Brotherhood of Teamsters may seem unedifying. But actually it may be a sign that there is a vigorously democratic spirit within a union often regarded as boss-dominated. The fight centers around James R. Hoffa of Detroit, one of the union's vice presidents who seems in a hurry to get to the top.

In New York Martin T. Lacey, president of the Teamsters' Joint Council, has gone to court to keep John J. O'Rourke, a Hoffa protege, from taking over his position. And in the meeting of the international board members at Honolulu efforts are being made to "put the brakes" on Hoffa by giving individual unions more independence in negotiations, and by blocking a $400,000 loan to the International Longshoremen's Association negotiated by Hoffa.

This loan is a direct affront to the AFL-CIO. The AFL expelled the Longshoremen and granted a charter to a successor union in the effort to rid the New York waterfront of racketeering. Since then the combined AFL-CIO has threatened the teamsters' union with expulsion if it extends financial aid to the ousted organization.

No doubt Hoffa feels that expulsion would be no great blow to the teamsters. Other unions have withdrawn from the AFL on occasion and have not suffered notably from the lack of affiliation. And the teamsters are in a more strategic position than most. Often they make or break another union's strike by deciding to respect or to cross its picket lines.

A national labor federation can be effective only to the extent that its members voluntarily accept its authority and its discipline. A majority of the teamsters' board may decide that loyalty to the AFL-CIO is more important than Mr. Hoffa's ambition. He is only the ninth of 11 teamster vice presidents, and he may yet be told that the union is not a one-man affair.

We Were Once Colonists

Secretary of State Dulles is back in Washington after a goodwill trip to 10 Asian countries whose population totals 700,000,000 people. The outstanding fact about these countries today is, as Mr. Dulles said in his report Friday, that "more than 600,000,000 of these people were colonial people until as recently as World War II. Now they are independent nations."

This change in status of these formerly subjugated peoples is one that pleases Americans generally. Noting the zeal of Asians for independence, the Secretary of State told his radio and television listeners:

> The United States is able sympathetically to understand that attitude. We ourselves were once a colony.

If the United States can understand the feelings of the peoples of North Africa, the Middle East and South Asia, so would it be helpful if the British and French would make more of an effort to understand the sympathetic regard of the United States peoples for those who bear the yoke of colonialism today. Sooner or later these situations must be faced for what they are. Indochina is a tragic example of what happens when time runs too long.

Secretary Dulles was as hopeful as he could be in his report. Yet he did not overlook the seriousness of the Asian situation and here he turned his findings into support for the Eisenhower Administration's foreign aid program. The choice, he said—and in this he is, in our opinion, entirely right—is either help the free world or see the forces of despotism take control.

Much remains to be done through diplomatic channels. SEATO can and should be expanded to include more Asian peoples. The U.N. can and should be doing more in the several interrelated explosive situations in the Mediterranean. To these ends, we hope Secretary Dulles will devote himself steadily for the next several weeks.

For a while someone else can make the State Department's speeches. Someone else can worry about the role of foreign affairs in the campaign. But only John Foster Dulles, so long as he is Secretary of State, can be the responsible over-all planner of our foreign policy. He has at best an overwhelming job that goes around the clock day after day.

Underground Parking Goes Ahead

The three-story underground parking facility in Kansas City has accommodated nearly 100,000 automobiles since it was opened last December. City officials, who had estimated that it would take about a year to familiarize the public with the advantages in underground parking, are encouraged by the results thus far. Apparently the 1200-car garage is well on its way to achieving the success of the Union Square Garage in San Francisco and the Pershing Square Garage in Los Angeles.

The Kansas City facility is only three blocks from the department store area, is across the street from the Municipal Auditorium and is to be topped by a park. It offers substantial proof that St. Louis might well refurbish its old dream of a parking facility across from Kiel Auditorium. Such a project may well become a reality in time if St. Louis is ever to solve the downtown parking problem.

Righthander Ike is going to open for the Senators for the fourth year in a row and that tells you how the Washington fans like his pitching.

Money That Belongs to Missouri

The fight to enable Missouri to collect interest on its bank deposits may be on the way to becoming a political issue in the governorship campaign. If that is necessary to bring about reform, so be it. The issue is a legitimate one.

L. C. Carpenter, one of the gubernatorial aspirants, charges that the Missouri Bankers Association request to Gov. Donnelly to put the matter before the special session of the Legislature is but a disguised attempt to block it. This may link the matter with supporters of another Democratic aspirant, Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr. But it is hard to follow Carpenter's logic unless he can show that the legislators are ready to vote down the change.

Meantime the State Attorney General has given an opinion that the question may not be submitted to the special session. But he could be wrong. After all the matter cannot be settled by the legislators; they may only submit a constitutional amendment to the voters which, if approved, would enable the state to collect interest on the millions of dollars it keeps in various Missouri banks. Mr. Carpenter is circulating petitions to have such an amendment submitted at the November election.

Most Missourians probably do not care how it is put before them, but we feel sure that they would vote to have the state collect interest on state money. No matter what technicalities have caused a situation under which the banks, but not the state, may profit by these deposits, it should be corrected.

Missouri is entitled to the money, and it could use it for its schools, its mental hospitals and many another good purpose.

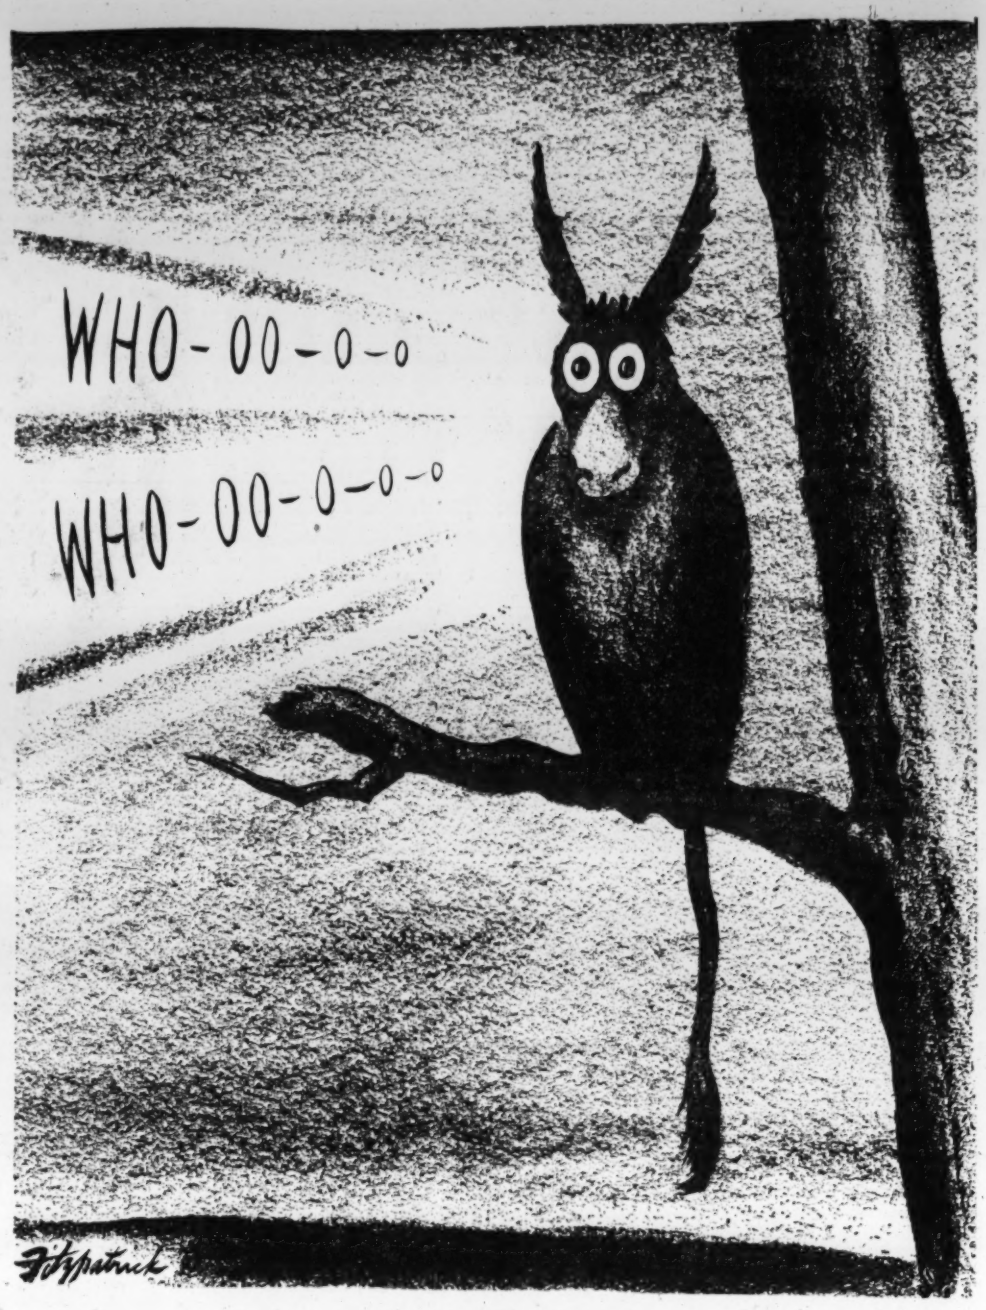

Refrigerators Safe for Children

Seven months ago we asked whether it was beyond the manufacturers' ingenuity to develop an electric refrigerator which could be opened from within so that children who playfully crawled inside would not be trapped. The Admiral Corp. now informs us that it has invented an inside safety release and placed it on new models.

As this corporation notes, mandatory laws were already well on their way, with statutes in some 30 states and Congress considering national legislation. In the past 10 years 113 children in 15 states have lost their lives in refrigerators, some of which had been abandoned and some of which were in operation. Eighteen were victims last year alone. Five children in one Arkansas family met death in this way.

The innovation which the Admiral Corp. has introduced is a laudable step forward. Since it is a push-button, which must be known about and located in order to be used, it is probably not a complete answer, particularly in the case of very small children. Removal of doors is perhaps the best safeguard in the case of abandoned refrigerators.

The hopeful aspect of the development is that the refrigerator industry is aware of its responsibilities and actively engaged in an attempt to discharge them. With that kind of attitude, we may look forward to a year when not a single little life will be lost by entrapment in a refrigerator.

POLITICAL WEATHERBIRD

The Barn That Was the Mayflower

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Unknown to world at large and most Americans, hull of the Pilgrims' famous ship is believed by British scholars to have been resting quietly ever since 1628 in small village near London; timbers serve as framework of big but impressive barn.

Mabel Love in The Christian Science Monitor

A copy of the original Mayflower is being constructed in the old Devon shipyard of Brixham, to be a good-will gift from Britain to America. Because of interest aroused in the vessel, we reprint here what some scholars believe to be the true story of the fate of the original Mayflower.

"Goodby for now, I'll be back again," bellowed Christopher Jones, intrepid master of the Mayflower, as he prepared to set sail for home and England in the early spring of 1621, leaving behind all that were left of the 102 Pilgrims he had contracted to bring to the New World in September of the previous year.

It was not until the craft was no more than a bobbing toy of a ship on the dim horizon that the voyagers returned to the colony they had established on the grim shore of Cape Cod Bay in Massachusetts.

"That is probably the last of Capt. Jones and the Mayflower," William Bradford, self-appointed leader and later Governor of Plymouth Colony, told the Puritans who had risked their all in their quest for religious freedom.

As it turned out, Capt. Jones passed on the following year and from that time on the fate of the Mayflower was clothed in obscurity for many years. Within recent years the ship's continued existence has been brought to light.

Way to Get Good Oak

Now owned by the Society of Friends in England it has been dry-docked as a barn all these years in the small Quaker settlement of Jordans, which lies 20 miles or so outside London. There are no gaudy lights above the door, nor even signposts directing tourists to an inspection of the building, since it is not the way of the Quakers to engage in ostentation.

The original coat of red paint has been dulled by the years to the appearance of charred ebony, while the interior presents the startling effect of a skeleton of some prehistoric monster, since the boat rests upside down upon a brick foundation, the still seaworthy hull serving as a roof.

The explanation of how the ship came into possession of the Quakers is a simple one. In the days when the Mayflower sailed the seas it was a general custom among farmers to purchase ships sold as salvage when no longer fit for nautical duty. This was the only way they could get good oak, for first claims on oak were reserved for the navy, and even second-hand oak was highly prized for building purposes.

Framer Buys Mayflower for $500

According to port records in the city of London, the Mayflower was owned jointly by Christopher Jones and three other persons. After the doughty captain's passing the other owners joined his widow Johanna in making application to the British Admiralty in 1624 to appoint an appraiser so they might be able to sell the ship as salvage.

Yellowed port records show it brought around $500, although worth 10 times that amount. The ancient bill of sale also reveals the fact that the five great anchors brought less than $100 while someone also picked up a heavy iron pitch pot and iron kettle for $2.60.

Purchased by a Buckingham farmer named William Russell, the ship was transported to his land where it was carefully reassembled as a shelter for his livestock.

Sometime after the Society of Friends was founded in 1652, Farmer Russell sold all of his property to them. The brick-floored farmhouse kitchen served as one of the first meeting places of the religious group. It was from this property that a group of worshiping Friends, including William Penn, were dragged off to prison in 1670, although their leader, George Fox, protested vigorously, "Our only crime is that of worshiping according to our own conscience."

The farmhouse, although later replaced by a fine brick meeting place, is still in existence, used now as a motel.

American sailors are among the most frequent visitors, often returning with their buddies who, hat in hand, gaze in rapt amazement at the great hulking structure which played such an important role in America's history.

At one time the Mayflower barn became the subject of a bitter controversy when a group of British historians adopted a skeptical attitude with regard to its origin, the same feeling being reflected by another group on this side of the Atlantic, who contended that even if Russell did buy a Mayflower, the recorded bill of sale in his possession was no proof that it was the original Mayflower.

When the evidence of a beautiful hand-carved door with Mayflower motif was offered the skeptics merely chorused "What Mayflower?" citing the fact that this was a common name for ships in those days.

One thing they could not deny, though, was that even if it was not the original Mayflower, the interior of the barn bore evidence that it was certainly the framework of some sailing vessel, since bits of the iron keel still cling to the uprights, while the building is fairly riddled with treenails, undeniably indicative of ship construction.

There is an iron keel plate, too, and the curved timbers used only for the keel of a wooden boat, and the entire structure is strongly impregnated with salt.

Saved by a Press Bolt

In the meantime, one of England's most outstanding historians, Dr. James Rendel Harris, curator of manuscripts of the John Rylands Library, Manchester, was quietly piling up irrefutable evidence which was later to establish beyond all doubt that the dauntless little ship which carried the Pilgrims to American shores in the biting winter of 1620 and the barn at Jordans were one and the same.

Retracing the perilous journey of the Mayflower Dr. Harris was at a distinct disadvantage, since the ship's log was lost and never recovered. His efforts were rewarded, however, by the discovery of the faithfully kept diary of William Bradford, a gifted writer, who had recorded every detail of the Mayflower trip.

The journey, long delayed by adverse seas, ran into heavy storms. The masts swayed madly and then with a succession of battering waves came disaster, as one of the beams amidship cracked.

Someone thought of the iron press lugged along—possibly by the printer Bruster—and with a great iron screw snatched from the printing press, soon the sagging beam was patched, the Mayflower as seaworthy as ever.

This iron device which saved the Mayflower in her travail was later the instrument which authenticated Dr. Harris's findings. The 15-foot long crack in the barn roof corresponds in every detail to that noted in William Bradford's journal.

From Time and Tide, London

I shall walk in the sun alone
Whose golden light you loved:
I shall sleep alone
And, stirring, touch an empty place:
I shall write uninterrupted
(Would that your gentle paw
Could stay my moving pen just once again!)
I shall see beauty
But none to match your living grace:
I shall hear music
But not so sweet as the droning song
With which you loved me.
I shall fill my days
But I shall not, cannot forget;
Sleep soft, dear friend,
For while I live you shall not die.

Help me to stand.

No, do not talk.

They need the new grass.
You did what you could,

I would have done better.
Tan cows by green wood

Go now to your plow.
The Springtime is brief.

I will sit here,

British and French Position On Arms Limitation Closer To Russia's Than U.S. Plan

This Country May Be in Minority—Moscow Intent on Isolating America by Stripping It of Nuclear Weapons and Neutralizing Anti-Red Alliances.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 24.

THE positions of the United States and that of its allies, Great Britain and France, have been revealed as far apart in the first week of discussions of the subcommittee of the United Nations Disarmament Commission in London.

The Soviet position has not been stated. The British and French proposal is being studied in Moscow. It is similar to one made first in June 1954 by these two countries and accepted in May 1955 by the Soviet delegation with additions that were unacceptable to the West.

The United States first accepted the earlier British-French proposal and then reversed its position, and rejected it, after President Eisenhower made his "open skies" suggestion at the meeting of the heads of state in Geneva last summer.

Repetition Expected.

When the Soviet reply is in, experts expect it to contain a repetition of their formerly unacceptable objections, with an acceptance of the main points of the British and French that pertain to reduction of armaments and a bar on nuclear weapons.

There are valid reasons, based on national self-interest, for the differences in approach of the United States, Great Britain and France and the Soviet Union. The position of Great Britain and France is closer to that of the Soviet Union than to that of the United States. The United States may find itself in a minority in the present discussions.

The subcommittee consists of delegations from the United States, Great Britain, France, Canada and the Soviet Union.

Harold E. Stassen, the President's special assistant for disarmament, is head of the American delegation; Anthony Nutting, Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, of the British; Jules Moch of the French; Norman Robertson, High Commissioner of Canada in Great Britain, of the Canadian; and Andrei A. Gromyko, First Deputy Foreign Minister of the U.S.S.R. of the Soviet delegation.

The first meeting last Monday in London was the sixty-ninth meeting of the U.N. disarmament subcommittee.

Eisenhower Letter.

The United States proposal made by Stassen was based on the President's letter to Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin of March 1. In it the President repeated his earlier proposal at the meeting of the heads of state in Geneva for an exchange of military blueprints and mutual aerial inspection of each other's territory to check on the other's military establishments.

The President accepted Bulganin's proposal for ground inspection teams at ports, airfields and centers of transportation. He also proposed a freeze on further manufacture of nuclear weapons and ultimate reduction in atomic stockpiles by conversion at some future time of fissionable materials to peaceful uses.

The President's proposal was not fundamentally a disarmament proposal. Rather it was an approach that would halt the nuclear arms race and also make it impossible for either side to make a surprise attack of a magnitude to be decisive on the other with nuclear weapons.

In the discussions at the conference last week Stassen added two additional ideas. The first was to make a test of the combined inspection and control systems of the United States and the Soviet Union in test areas in each country of between 20,000 and 30,000 square miles. Nothing of highly secret nature, such as nuclear weapons or guided missiles systems, would be included.

Mutual Confidence.

United States officials feel that mutual confidence can be developed only when both sides are fully satisfied that major evasions of a disarmament agreement will be impossible under the control and inspection system set up. Until that is done a disarmament agreement will be meaningless. The trial run of an inspection system will show up its defects and lead to a system that will be trusted by all parties.

Stassen also proposed to cut United States and Soviet armed forces, using as an illustrative figure to start with, to 2,500,000 men. There are a number of conditions attached to this proposal, not made public, that must be fulfilled before it goes into effect.

This would be a reduction of 250,000 men in the United States armed forces from the strength of 2,850,000 budgeted for next fiscal year. It would require a reduction of about 1,000,000 men in Soviet armed forces, assuming that the Soviet Union already has reduced its forces by 640,000 men as they have stated.

The British and French draft is a revision of the three-stage disarmament proposal made by them in June 1954 and accepted with conditions by the Soviets in May 1955.

The first stage of the amended draft calls for the creation of an effective United Nations control corps of several thousand officials with large powers for inspecting anywhere and correcting irregularities.

In stage 1 force levels and military expenditures would be frozen and the control system would be established. Once the control system was operating some small reductions in conventional armaments would be made.

Further Slashes.

Stage 2 provides for further reductions of conventional forces until the reductions amount to half of those to be made finally. When the halfway mark is reached, nuclear tests, while not prohibited, would be regulated and limited.

In stage 3 the final reductions in conventional arms would be completed. When this step had been certified by the control corps, a moral bar on the use of nuclear weapons would go into effect, together with a prohibition of nuclear tests, the cessation of the manufacture of nuclear weapons and prohibition of their use except in defense against aggression.

Elimination of nuclear weapons has been left to the future, when it is hoped that means of detection of fissionable material can be contrived.

The United States is in agreement with the first stage proposed but wants it followed by a pause while the international situation is carefully evaluated.

United States officials object to the limitation of nuclear tests in stage 2 and are suspicious of the "moral" bar on their use in stage 3. They feel that the United States would consider itself bound by this bar, but that others might not. They also do not like the idea of having what constitutes "aggression" decided by an organization which might include the aggressor.

The Russians "bought" the previous three-stage proposal of the British and French, although they added unacceptable conditions that would prevent the rearmament of Germany, require the dismantling of United States overseas bases and provide for an all European security organization which would do away with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Reds May Accept.

There is some fear now in United States quarters that the Russians may accept the new British-French plan, with conditions acceptable to European countries but not to the United States, and thus isolate the United States. This has long been an objective of Soviet foreign policy.

There are excellent reasons based on the different international situations and obligations of the United States, Great Britain and France and the Soviet Union why each prefers a different approach to the limitation and control of armaments.

The United States has commitments all over the world made in an effort to build a barrier against further expansion of Communist domination. The only way that the United States can project its power in defense of Korea, the Philippines, Thailand, Pakistan and innumerable other nations, including those in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, is with nuclear weapons carried by the Air Force or the Navy.

The alliances to which we have committed ourselves would lack the stiffening of American power, if we attempted to support them militarily with conventional forces. We should need an army of several million men to substitute for nuclear weapons.

Without nuclear weapons the whole fabric of alliances that has been built up against Communism would fall apart. It is for this reason that the Defense Department, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, and the American supreme commander of the NATO forces, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, suspect all efforts, under the guise of disarmament, to deprive the United States of its principal force to resist Communism.

Massive Superiority.

Consequently, the United States approach to disarmament would put into the distant future, when international conditions have ameliorated, any bar on atomic weapons. The President's proposal for a freeze of existing stockpiles retains the massive superiority, probably as great as 10 to one, we now have in nuclear weapons.

Some think this is a short-sighted point of view. They contend that by depending on nuclear weapons for our major military power, we have limited the field of arms to the narrow one of nuclear weapons and the means of delivery.

The Soviet Union, according to this view, needs to compete with the West only in the relatively small industrial area of nuclear weapons, aircraft and rockets to maintain equality or gain an arms superiority.

If the competition were in conventional arms in large numbers, it is contended that the West, with twice the industrial capacity of the Soviet Union, would be superior for the foreseeable future. It has, though, been proved to be politically impossible to require the sacrifices that such a policy would demand from the free world.

While Western Europe is the beneficiary of American nuclear power, it sees its problems differently. It considers itself the primary target of Soviet nuclear weapons and would like to remove that fear. It can see nothing but nuclear destruction in store so long as these weapons are the main reliance of the two great world powers.

European View.

From the European point of view, if nuclear weapons can be eliminated, and conventional weapons limited on both sides to numbers such that there would be an approximately equal balance, or stand-off, the possibility of war in Europe would be almost eliminated, and if there were war it would not involve the awful destruction and toll of lives that would come from nuclear war.

The European proposals have therefore been directed primarily toward limiting conventional forces on each side in numbers that would insure approximate equality of power, and of abolishing nuclear weapons to the degree possible.

The American position and the European position, based on self interest and established international policies, are thus in conflict.

Since nuclear weapons are the main source of the military power of the United States, it is to the Soviet interest to abolish them and depend on conventional forces, in which it is supreme. From its central position it can project its military power, by the use of conventional forces, in any direction in Eurasia.

Currently the Soviets are mostly interested in validating their conquests in Eastern Europe and the Far East. An European security alliance such as they have proposed and will propose again would be one means of gaining an international seal of approval of their domination of the satellites.

The forthcoming visit of Party Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin to London is another step, that for the enslaved satellites, indicates the West has given up hope for their liberation.

Agreement to bar nuclear weapons and to reduce conventional forces would also tend to accomplish that same result.

Economic Strength.

It is not unlikely that United States suspicions that the Soviets are only promoting disarmament in order to retain their supremacy in conventional arms are in error. It is apparent that the Soviet Union now has the economic means to compete with the West in winning the poor and undeveloped countries of the world to its side without war.

The Russians retain their effective subversive organization and can use it more effectively in an atmosphere of good feeling than they can in the present atmosphere of tension and suspicion.

With good reason the Russians can look forward to a shift from the brutal pressure tactics of Stalin, based on force, to more flexible methods that conquer without arousing opposition and fear.

These are the fundamental elements of the problem of disarmament. They are not well understood. Because they are not, the United States may find itself put in the position of defending resort to nuclear war against the peaceful desires of Europe and the Soviet Union.

Jordan River Project Most Likely to Be Immediate Cause of Any War in Middle East

With Much to Do Elsewhere Israel Demands Progress in Danger Zone.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BNOT YAACOV BRIDGE, Israel, March 24.

WAR, if it comes to the Middle East, appears most likely to break out over Israel's plans to carry precious water from the Dan to Beersheba, from the green hills north of the Sea of Galilee to the southern desert.

In Biblical times, Dan and Beersheba marked the north and south limits of permanent Israelite settlements in the land of Canaan. Today they are at the two ends of a partly-built canal and pipeline system through which the waters of the upper Jordan river are to be carried south to irrigate the parched Negev.

This Israeli water development plan threatens to become, if not a fundamental cause, certainly an immediate cause of war between the Jewish and Arab states. Leaders of the two sides made their positions clear in recent statements.

Intentions Plainly Stated.

Premier David Ben Gurion said there would have to be agreement in the "near future" on a joint Israeli-Arab Jordan valley project or else Israel would go ahead on its own "whatever happens — whoever interferes then must bear the consequences."

A highly placed Israeli official told the Post-Dispatch the decision to go ahead alone has already been made. The exact date has not been set, but it will be about May 1 or shortly thereafter, he said.

Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt has threatened war against Israel if this country does go ahead on its own. He told a group of American editors and publishers in Cairo last week:

"The result (of an Israeli attempt to divert the Jordan) would inevitably mean war. The Syrians would oppose the move and Jordan would follow suit. As we Egyptians have a joint defense pact with Syria, we would be committed."

The controversy is full of references to historic water rights of the Arabs, and whether Israel can afford to "miss another construction season." An investigation of the subject, including talks with Israeli and United States water engineers and a tour of the upper valley and headwaters of the Jordan, indicates that these arguments are largely irrevelant and misleading.

Dispute Goes Deeper.

It seems clear that the dispute is not just about the waters of the Jordan but a phase of the greater struggle over whether there shall continue to be a Jewish state in Palestine.

A tip-off came two weeks ago when 300 Syrian and Egyptian lawyers met at Cairo and set up a special Palestine Committee. They demanded "elimination of Israel and Zionism," "rejection of peace and any peace talks with Israel" and "the rejection of the Johnston water plan."

Eric Johnston, as President Eisenhower's special ambassador, announced last fall that differences between the Arab states and Israel on technical aspects of the joint plan had been reduced to a point of insignificance. He expressed confidence that the differences could be readily adjusted. But political agreement seems to be as far away as ever, doubtless largely because of Arab refusal to recognize the Jewish state or tolerate its existence.

As for the Israeli national water plan, it is fully consistent with the Johnston plan. In fact, some parts of the Israeli scheme could not be undertaken without co-operation with the Arab states.

It is hard to find any important legal or technical basis for Arab objections to Israel's going ahead on its own, particularly since Israel offers to share the Jordan water if future agreement can be worked out.

Rush Work Unnecessary.

Similarly, it is hard to find engineering reasons why Israel is in such a hurry to resume work on the mile and a half stretch of canal in a demilitarized zone at the point where the Jordan is to be tapped. Engineers supervising the job say remaining excavation in the demilitarized zone could be completed in six weeks "once we get the green light." Lining the canal with concrete would take another two months. They estimate there is so much work to be done outside the demilitarized zone that it will be two and a half years before the work inside could be considered a bottleneck.

Workmen using hoe-like tools to fill in around massive irrigation tube in southern Israel. The 66-inch pipe is one of two built to carry distant waters into the heart of the desert country to fullfill the ancient dream of transforming the wasteland into flourishing farms.

Israeli leaders explain their haste by pointing to the sizeable job of drilling tunnels, excavating canals and laying pipe—all predicated on getting the Jordan river water. The whole investment is jeopardized as long as Israel's right to tap the Jordan is in doubt.

Another reason, not often mentioned but no doubt persuasive, concerns the possibility of United States aid. Johnston is understood to have told both Israel and the Arab states that he would recommend United States financial participation if they could agree on a joint plan.

Whatever the reasons, these two opposing forces are in headon conflict. They are converging on this point in northern Galilee called the Bridge of Bnot Yaacov. It is here that Israel is ready to tap the Jordan.

Description of Danger Spot.

The Bridge of Bnot Yaacov (daughters of Jacob) looks the part of an explosive danger spot. A steel army bridge built beside the wreckage of an earlier masonry span crosses the Jordan at the bottom of a deep V-shaped canyon, carrying the switchback blacktop road that goes down the Israeli side, up into Syrian territory and on to Damascus.

Israeli frontier police man a post on the Israeli rim of the canyon. Each nation has a sentry at the bridge. Syrian pillboxes can be seen on the opposite rim.

Over the centuries, the strategic crossing has been the site of battles between the Crusaders and the Moslems, Napoleon and the Turks, the British and the Turks in World War I, the British and the Vichy French in World War II and the Jews and the Arabs in the Palestine war of 1948.

A jeepload of frontier police raced partway down to the bridge and a half mile along a construction road on the Israeli wall of the canyon to afford a look at the point where the river water is to be shunted into the canal. There was no firing from the other side, although the previous week a Syrian sniper's bullet had struck the submachine gun of an Israeli policeman on a similar mission.

Project Overgrown with Weeds.

At a bend in the river stands the partly finished concrete diversion gate and the start of the canal, dug but not yet lined with concrete, and overgrown with weeds in the three years since Israel held up work in the demilitarized zone after successful Syrian protests to the United Nations.

This is the beginning of the main stem of the Israeli master plan for irrigation and hydroelectric power, and the same canal would be used under the Johnston plan. The Jordan, which looks more like a Rocky Mountain trout stream than a bitterly disputed natural resource, plunges along the bottom of the canyon fron an elevation of 170 feet above sea level at the tapping point to 695 feet below sea level in the Sea of Galilee (Lake Tiberias) eight miles to the south.

The canal, dug in a roadlike shelf carved in the canyon wall, drops only two feet to the mile and thus will have climbed to the rim of the canyon by the time the Jordan reaches the Sea of Galilee. There it turns southwest to a natural reservoir, the Valley of Battaue. A nine-foot duct will carry the water on southward to Faluja for distribution to the Beersheba area in the northern Negev—a total of about 130 miles from the tapping point.

Storage in Sea of Galilee.

Because of seepage problems encountered in the Battauf reservoir, the sea of Galilee now has been chosen as the main storage reservoir to hold the heavy winter runoff from the north for irrigation use in the dry summer months. Canal water will reach the lake through another nine-foot pipe with a 48,000-kilowatt opwer station at the bottom, near the town of Capernaum where Jesus gathered his disciples. When water has to be removed from the lake, pumps will force it back up to the canal through the same pipe.

Getting this power station into operation will take about two and a half years, and the entire line to Beersheba is expected to take perhaps five years. Thus from an engineering standpoint remaining work in the demilitarized zone could be postponed another two years.

Outside the demilitarized zone, the job is going ahead rapidly at several points. Power shovels are carving out the shelf on the wall of the canyon as it approaches the Sea of Galilee and bulldozers are pushing aside boulders to make way for the canal. As sections of the canal are dug, drainage pipes and the concrete lining already are being laid.

Over-all Plan Curtailed.

Israel's water scheme, large as it is for so small a country, is only a fragment of a regional water plan that originally included even the Litani river in Lebanon. Part of the unused Litani water would have been diverted into the Jordan for use in Israel and Jordan, and Lebanon would have benefitted through flood control and hydro-electric features of the plan.

Johnston, in his efforts over the last three years to find common ground on which the Arab states and Israel would agree, has dropped the Litani from any immediate consideration, although Israeli engineers say it easily could be integrated with the Jordan development later on.

An important feature of the Johnston plan would involve the Yarmuk river, which flows along the Syria-Jordan boundary and into the Jordan just south of the Sea of Galilee. Together, they now run off a deep gorge down to the Dead Sea, deepest inland depression in the earth. Johnston would use the Sea of Galilee as a storage reservoir to equalize the Yarmuk's flow. Yarmuk water would be carried south by canal and pipeline to irrigate Jordanian land on both sides of the lower Jordan.

To replace the fresh water taken from the Jordan and maintain the level of the Dead Sea, salt water from the Mediterranean sea would be carried by canal and dumped into the Jordan below the mouth of the Yarmuk. This also is a feature of the Israeli national plan, but it is considered something for the distant future. There is doubt it could be undertaken without co-operation with Jordan.

Obstruction by Syria.

Syria has been challenging Israeli water development since 1951 with intermittent success. In that year Syria attempted to halt Israel's drainage of the malarial Hula Marshes, which covered the floor of a box canyon north of the bridge of Bnot Yaacov. The United Nations Security Council rejected the complain, and Israel now is finishing the job of reclaiming 13,000 acres of farmland, irrigating an equal area and adding about 10 per cent to the flow of the upper Jordan, by saving water that had been lost by evaporation from the broad swamp with its lush growth of papyrus reeds.

In October 1953, Syria was more successful. It objected before the Security Council to Israeli excavation at Bnot Yaacov which had started a few weeks earlier. Israel "voluntarily" halted work in the demilitarized zone on the eve of the Security Council's discussion. Significantly, Israel's action came a week after the United States had suspended a $26,000,000 economic grant. President Eisenhower reinstated the grant after Israel halted work.

The Security Council then asked Israel to continue to hold up work in the zone "pending urgent examination of the question."

A Russian veto in January 1954 blocked a Security Council resolution that would have permitted resumption of work in the zone if rights of all parties were safeguarded. Israel believes it now has waited long enough. The question remains whether it will go ahead at Bnot Yaacov in the face of the Egyptian threat that this would mean war.

RED HUNGARY IS REPORTED TO HAVE FREED ARCHBISHOP

VIENNA, March 24 (AP)—The Catholic newspaper Kleines Volksblatt reported today that Communist Hungary has released Roman Catholic Archbishop Joszef Groesz, sentenced to 15 years in prison in 1951 on charges of plotting to overthrow the government with United States help.

Two priests convicted with the Archbishop also were freed, the newspaper said.

Archbishop Groesz and six codefendants were sentenced in June, 1951, after a public trial in Budapest. Charges against them ranged from blackmarketing to anti-government plotting. Hungary announced Oct. 13 it was suspending the Archbishop's sentence.

Georgia Planning Every Device It Can Think of for Delay but Integration Seems Inevitable

Public Opinion Has Effect on State Officials, Who Denounce Supreme Court Edicts but Prepare Reluctantly to Comply With Them.

TENTH OF A SERIES.

GEORGIA challenges the authority of the Federal Government to enforce the end of racial segregation. Georgia flatly refuses to integrate whites and Negroes in its public schools and parks.

The state is planning every device it can think of to circumvent and delay compliance with the decisions of the Supreme Court, but in the long run legal segregation seems doomed, even in Georgia.

For the foreseeable future, the outlook is for no voluntary desegregation whatsoever in schools or parks. Public opinion is not prepared for it. If any attempt were made to enforce integration prematurely, there could be serious trouble.

Even when and if legal segregation expires, much voluntary and de facto segregation rooted in social customs seems likely to survive indefinitely. These unwritten laws governing race relations have almost unanimous indorsement in white Georgia. They also appear to be supported by many Negroes.

Two Main Factors.

The ultimate end of legal segregation seems to be made inevitable by two main factors in addition to the United States Supreme Court decisions. These factors are:

1. The growing strength of public opinion. This is expressed in a daily press that generally follows a moderate approach in its editorial support of segregation and opens its news columns to the critical views of a small but influential number of religious, educational and civic leaders.

2. The moderating effect of this public opinion on the state government. Even as state officials flout the Supreme Court with defiant statements, they reluctantly prepare to comply with its edicts in the end.

It has become apparent that the basic aim of the state administration is to delay enforcement of the Supreme Court decisions as long as possible by prolonged litigation. Meanwhile it hopes to hit on some system of non-racial segregation that the Supreme Court will approve.

Many Georgians who take the moderate approach agree with the strategy of delay. They hope the rest of the country will not press Georgia too hard and too fast for a solution.

Emotionally Georgian.

The viewpoint of these Georgians is intellectually intersectional and international but emotionally Georgian. They recognize in their mind the need for great social change, but in their hearts and souls they cannot endure the actuality of breaking with custom.

They feel frustrated. They grope and flounder for a way out but cannot find one.

On the surface, the state administration and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People seem to be on the verge of civil war.

Gov. Marvin Griffin charges that the N.A.A.C.P. is run by "Yankee carpetbaggers." Attorney General Eugene Cook accuses it of "subversion" and promoting "conflict, bloodshed and revolution."

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the N.A.A.C.P., and Thurgood Marshall, chief legal counsel, counter-charge that Georgia is "recalcitrant" and in "open rebellion."

A visitor might expect the violent words of the angry men at the top to be reflected in tension in the streets, but he would be mistaken. There the atmosphere is one of peace and good will. The people of both races remain outwardly calm.

Local leaders of both races act and talk moderately.

Mayor William B. Hartsfield of Atlanta said: "We've outgrown violent race feelings in Atlanta."

Dr. Rufus E. Clement, a Negro member of the Atlanta Board of Education and president of all-Negro Atlanta University, added, "Atlanta has an enlightened city administration."

Situation in Atlanta.

Atlanta has a cosmopolitan area and a liberal culture, in part reflecting northern influences, in part its own status as a center of higher education for both whites and Negroes. Its Negro population includes many well-educated and prosperous business and professional men.

Far removed from this progressive city in time as well as space is the vast rural part of the state—the traditional habitat of the "rednecks" and "woolhat boys."

In the old cotton-tobacco plantation areas in the Black Belt of the Deep South, which runs through the heart of Georgia, some whites see few if any Negroes except field hands, sharecroppers and tenant-farmers. Some know little or nothing of the capacity for cultural progress demonstrated by Atlanta's Negroes.

Here also the lower-income groups of both races suffer from a cultural lag flowing out of Georgia's past. They cannot forget the defeat and destruction of the Civil War, the humiliations of the Reconstruction and a vast backwash of poverty and ignorance that for years engulfed many of them.

Here the old people continue to brood on old wrongs and to teach their children an extremist devotion to customs and traditions and old barriers between the races.

New Ideas in Old City.

But many of the young people go away to Atlanta, to study or to work, and learn new ideas from an old city that is young in spirit.

All these disparities, between the old generation and the new, the rustic and the urban, the extremist and the moderate, the tense and the calm, and the defiant and the law-abiding, point up two stronger and deeper contrasts:

The complicated nature of the segregation problem in Georgia, compared with northern states, and the difference in the problem, even in Georgia, between Atlanta and the Black Belt.

In both these contrasts the basic differences are the relative numbers of Negroes and their distribution in a given area.

Nearly one third of Georgia's population is Negro. More than half Georgia's population is rural. About a third of Atlanta's population is Negro, and most Georgia cities have a still larger ratio of Negroes. In a third of the state's 159 counties, Negroes outnumber whites, and in many others are almost as numerous.

In Atlanta and some other parts of the state Negroes live in separate residential districts, but throughout the Black Belt they live in close proximity to white people. Negro field hands, sharecroppers and tenant-farmers dwell on the same land as the white farmers and plantation owners.

On Raising Standards.

Residents of the Black Belt point out that, because of its residential patterns, it could not adopt northern methods of school segregation based on residential redistricting. They say the economic and social standards of the Negro would have to be elevated before integration could be accepted without friction.

Such attitudes and feelings help explain why Georgia has taken such an adamant position against integration. Its legislature has done the following things:

It adopted an interposition resolution declaring Supreme Court decisions null and void and of no effect.

It empowered the Governor to discard the entire public school system if necessary and replace it with segregated private schools.

It ordered local school officials to make no move toward integration.

In its Constitution and laws Georgia has authorized the Governor, who controls the budget, to cut off public funds from any school that integrates, to make tuition grants for students in private schools and to jail officials who use public money for integrated schools.

The state is also building new schools for Negroes, raising Negro teachers' salaries, and otherwise improving Negro educational standards. It hopes that this "equalization" program will induce Negroes to accept voluntary segregation, and that it will raise their social and economic standards.

The N. A. A. C. P. has also taken a firm stand:

It filed petitions on behalf of Negro parents with local school boards asking compliance with the Supreme Court decisions.

It decided to file suits in United States district courts to compel compliance if the school boards failed to act by June 1.

It revived a long dormant suit in United States district court in Atlanta to compel the University of Georgia to accept its first Negro student in the law school.

States Rights Councils.

To counteract the association's influence, Gov. Griffin, former Gov. Herman Talmadge and other political leaders have organized the States Rights Councils of Georgia, loosely affiliated with the White Citizens' Councils in the South.

The Georgia councils seek to persuade Negroes, especially in the Black Belt, to accept voluntary segregation as best for both races.

An overwhelming majority of white people support Gov. Griffin on segregation, but many oppose his nullification stand as an anachronism and his private school plan as a threat to the public schools.

Some, but not many, speak out against segregation.

The Right Rev. Randolph P. Claiborne Jr., Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Atlanta, has termed segregation on the sole basis of race "inconsistent with the principles of Chrisian religion."

The Most Rev. Francis E. Hyland, Auxiliary Bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Savannah-Atlanta, has condemned racism and declared "the pattern of segregation (in Georgia) cannot endure too long."

The Rev. Dr. Arthur J. Moore, Methodist Bishop of Atlanta, has opposed the state's private school plan.

Most literate, articulate Negroes seem to want to end the stigma of legal segregation. However, a substantial number appear to be favorably inclined toward the continuation of voluntary school segregation in the rural counties and other forms of de facto segregation in the cities. They want equal educational opportunities but show no great desire to mingle with whites just for the sake of mingling.

Greene Doesn't Suffer American Fools Gladly

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN
Book Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

GRAHAM GREENE

THE QUIET AMERICAN, by Graham Greene. (Viking, 249 pgs., $3.50.)

IN the view of most European writers there are only two kinds of adult, male Americans: the boisterous vulgarian and the naive idealist. Alden Pyle, "The Quiet American" of Graham Greene's newly published novel, belongs to the second kind and the novel proves quite conclusively that he is a predestined menace to friend and foe.

As this is a work of fiction it may be irrelevant to suggest that it has the force of an anti-American tract. Certainly a novel need not square with the known facts of current history in order to have artistic force and plausibility. In this instance, however, Alden Pyle is inseparable from his American background. He is not merely a high-minded fool but an American fool whose folly is derived entirely from his earlier conditioning. That being so it is not unreasonable to believe that a certain weary contempt for America is organic to Mr. Greene's thesis. And this impression is reinforced by Mr. Greene's journalistic writings which are affected by the same bias.

It is all the more remarkable, then, that "The Quiet American" should prove to be an absorbing novel. For such it is even to a reader who is irritated with Mr. Greene's interpretations of world events and feels no sympathy with his implied philosophy. For no prejudice can remove the effects of adroit craftsmanship, of evocative descriptive power, of the ability to give a sharp and memorable definition to every character he introduces.

AS it happens the character that dominates the book is not the quiet American but Thomas Fowler, an English newspaper man who is voluntarily marooned in Saigon during the period that precedes the recent so-called truce. Fowler is satisfied to remain at his Indo-China post because he wants to be "disengaged" from the ugly turmoil of the world, because he likes the people and because he has acquired a lovely native mistress.

It would be oversimplifying the matter to speak of Fowler's attitude toward Phuong as love. She harmonizes with his quiescent mood, she twitters on his pillow like a bird and performs little services for him—besides the obvious ones—such as fixing the opium pipe when he craves it, which is often.

Then comes Mr. Pyle, the Quiet American who falls in love with Phuong, and in his brash, unhistorical American way proposes to marry the girl and take her back to the states. As Fowler has a wife back in England who refuses to give him a divorce he cannot meet this competition even if he were so inclined. So Phuong, spurred on by a practical and ambitious sister, accepts the quiet American's proposals, leaves Fowler's bed and board and sets up housekeeping with Pyle pending his return to the United States.

Everything about this situation irritates Fowler; and he is not at all impressed by Pyle's frankness in telling him of his intentions before approaching Phuong. All this aseptic romanticism about the honorable estate of marriage and suburban respectability in the outskirts of Boston strike Fowler as being crudely inappropriate when it involves an exotic creature such as Phuong with her ancient grace and her immunity to any of the values represented by the United States.

FATE takes a hand at this point. Pyle, in his incurable romanticism, has been convinced by an American writer who spent three weeks in Indochina that a "third force" should be set up. This third force should carve out a course between the French and the Communists. Fired with this belief he makes blundering contact with a native general in the field, is an unwitting partner to a bomb explosion in the square, and finally is assassinated.

The undercover investigations which follow make it clear that Fowler has at least a passive complicity in this denouement. Why? One infers a double motive. He doesn't want to lose Phuong and—for a moment—he is "engaged" again when he realizes that Pyle, with the best intentions has brought disaster to hundreds of innocent people and promises to bring more.

Interest in "The Quiet American" is excited more by atmosphere and characterization than physical action but scenes in the field, especially the one in which Fowler and Pyle are beleaguered in a watch tower, are both reflective and full of movement. The author's old-time skill at creating suspense comes into play quite often. As for his philosophizing, one could regard it as but a phase of Fowler's character and therefore nothing more than an artistic device if the whole story weren't so obviously intended as proof of Fowler's observations.

SO it is only fair to conclude that Fowler is Greene's alter ego, that Pyle represents Mr. America and that the anti-American, and for that matter the anti-Western, anti-liberal bias of the novel is calculated and not merely incidental. By contrast the Communist agent who moves among the natives listening to his complaints and "teaching him—no matter what" is regarded as relatively wise and humane.

Not that Mr. Greene is a proponent of Communism or any hard-and-fast system. He is simply against suffering and at the same time seems bereft of any hope that suffering can ever be eliminated or even mitigated by "isms or ocracies." In the end, therefore, we find only the dark counsel of neutralism that looks upon any design for improving the human lot on earth as ineffectual, mischievous or both.

A Vigorous Life of Luther

BY FAITH ALONE, THE LIFE OF MARTIN LUTHER, by W. J. Kooiman (Philosophical Library, 218 pgs., $6.00.)

WHY I AM A LUTHERAN, by Victor E. Beck (Thomas Nelson and Sons, 190 pgs., $2.75.)

PAUL SIMON

MARTIN LUTHER moves across the pages of Prof. Kooiman's biography with vigor. The author is a professor of church history at the University of Amsterdam and this book is a translation from the original Dutch. Kooiman is frankly a Luther admirer, although that admiration does not blind the author to Luther's weaknesses. The work is well-documented and scholarly; it happily combines these features with a movement and simplicity which make the book fascinating reading. It is unfortunate that a six dollar price for the 218 pages probably will keep many from this fine biography of one of history's important figures.

Prof. Kooiman's analysis of the reason Luther failed to fully develop his views regarding government is of particular interest. Luther's belief that the world was soon coming to an end made him feel that the long-range problem of government was a matter of little importance, according to the author. Luther actively participated in government in many ways, but his sense of the imminence of Judgment Day prevented him from developing his thinking along political and economical lines.

The book also makes Luther alive with the human touch. When some of his followers headed by Carlstadt and others did damage to church altars and property, Luther was both angry at them and sorry for them. He wrote to Carlstadt, "My dear Andrew, put your spectacles on and blow your nose; it will clear your head and your heart will be rather brighter."

"Why I Am A Lutheran" is what the title implies. It is a combination of history, personal biography and theology. Included in the book is a two-page statement by Dr. John Behnken of St. Louis, president of the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod. There are other references to Lutheran church activities which center in St. Louis.

Steinbeck's Latest

THE LONG VALLEY, by John Steinbeck. (Compass Books, 303 pgs., $1.25.)

This is Steinbeck's latest book of short stories, most of which take place in the now-familiar Salinas Valley. Some are violent, some are touching, some are humorous; all are well worth reading, for all are Steinbeck at his best, and to the city dweller they are a wonderful country outing.

New Joan No Disturber of Shaw's Ghost

THE LARK, by Jean Anouilh; translated by Christopher Fry. (Oxford University Press, 103 pgs., $2.75.)

Reviewed by
WEBSTER SCHOTT

AS surely everyone knows by now, "The Lark" is a hit play on Broadway about Joan of Arc, and it has made Julie Harris one of the most publicized young actresses in the United States.

One can't very well find anything out about Miss Harris by reading the published text of the play, which seems like a blessing after so much. But there is a good deal worth noting about the play, which after all is what makes the theater.

Perhaps the best way to read "The Lark" is as an evening's skillful entertainment, which is what the author appears to say he intended it to be in his preface. Jean Anouilh's text, apparently well translated from the French by Christopher Fry, offers no new data on the Maid of Orleans. Nor does M. Anouilh attempt to relate her to social, political, economic or religious forces at work in history.

"You cannot explain Joan, any more than you can explain the tiniest flower growing by the wayside," he says. "There's just the phenomenon of Joan, as there is the phenomenon of a daisy or of the sky or of a bird. . . . Children, even when they are growing older, are allowed to make a bunch of daisies or play at imitating bird-song, even if they know nothing about botany or ornithology. That is just what I have done."

IN other words, M. Anouilh does not want to intellectualize on Joan. Or, if you share his view (which I don't) that she was not an unusual phenomenon, you might say he does not want to abstract her out of reality. Yet one supposes even he would concede that most teen-age girls don't hear the voices of Sts. Michael, Catherine and Margaret, and don't lead armies on the field of battle.

Nevertheless, the surface simplicity of Anouilh's Joan is one of the appealing qualities of the play and probably accounts for as much of its New York success as Miss Harris's performance does. As she stands in Rouen before her judges, in the play within the play which occupies the entirety of "The Lark," and acts out the events leading up to her capture by the English at Compiegne, and as she puzzles before the church-state corruption of France and the dialectics of the Inquisition, it's impossible not to feel moved by compassion for this puzzled girl.

She is like an innocent country girl being victimized by big-city sophisticates. Only Joan is a bit more aware of vanity, a bit more argumentative, a bit more creative; and she is infinitely more dedicated, idealistic, and imaginative.

IT seems a shortcoming that Anouilh's Joan, unlike Shaw's, rarely challenges us to think until after she has recanted her "sins" and then suddenly changes her mind and chooses the stake. Until this, all is black and white. Joan is virtue. The church, the English, Charles are evil.

But quite suddenly as Joan sees herself middle-aged in a church prison or as the plain wife of a peasant, she prefers to die in glory, and M. Anouilh's characterization requires some independent thought about human motivation.

Even so, in the gray of this final episode, the climax is a further denial of exceptional quality in Joan's character. Whatever M. Anouilh says about avoiding explanations, the implication is that she is given to exceptional weakness. Her death is death for vanity.

There is good writing in "The Lark," an interesting point of view, and movement back and forth in time which is handled with exceptional skill. But one doubts that this Joan of Arc will give the ghost of Shaw any nights of insecure sleep.

Waste of Our Youth

RETREAT FROM LEARNING: WHY TEACHERS CAN'T TEACH—A CASE HISTORY, by Jean Dunn. (David McKay Co., Inc., 224 pgs., $3.)

The author, now on the staff of Time magazine, taught English in a Brooklyn high school for four years. She quit teaching because of her "frustration and defeat in the face of the appalling waste of America's most precious resources—the minds and hearts of youth." She makes "practical suggestions" to correct "the dominant educational philosophy" — a philosophy which she says "offers no guidance to teachers or students in the very areas where guidance is vital."

The Battle of Buena Vista, which was a victory for Gen. Zachary Taylor in the War with Mexico, is just one of the 488 pictures by combat artists that appear in Roy Meredith's "The American Wars: A Pictorial History from Quebec to Korea," (World Publishing Co., 349 pgs., $10). Soldiers sketched by eyewitnesses as they appeared in the field, in fortifications and in battle array are here. Many of the pictures have never before been published and others are the work of noted artists. The trained eye of the military artist is proved just as sharp as the undiscriminating lens of the camera in portraying this 200 years of American history.

Case for MVA Freshly Stated

THE GREAT PLAINS IN TRANSITION, by Carl Frederick Kraenzel. (University of Oklahoma Press, 430 pgs., $5.)

Reviewed by
A. B. BENDER

FROM the days of Coronado, more than four centuries ago, when that doughty Conquistador led his panoplied warriors in search of the fabled cities of Cibola, the Great Plains region has played an important role in the history and fortunes of the North American continent.

To millions of Americans living east of the Mississippi river and west of the Rocky mountains, the Great Plains country connotes a vast area, embracing prosperous farms, well-stocked cattle and sheep ranches, and happy, contented citizens. But to scholars, who have carefully studied the history of the region, the picture is far from ideal. In fact, they find many discouraging features which have marred the development of an abundant life of its inhabitants.

With the publication of Walter Prescott Webb's "The Great Plains" a quarter of a century ago, there has been a flood of books dealing with various phases of the Plains country. The present volume presents a new approach. It deals not only with historical, political, economic, social, and psychological aspects but also shows the influence of the Plains upon the rest of the nation and possible implications on world affairs.

Dr. Kraenzel, eminent specialist in his field of rural sociology and for more than two decades student of the Great Plains social and cultural development, very meticulously evolves one main thesis — cultural adaptation. He points out how this vast region, comprising about one fifth of the land area of the nation is distinctly semi-arid, clearly distinguished from the humid and arid lands of the East and West. He further shows how, for thousands of years, native plants, animals, and humans successfully lived in this region but that white men — Spaniards, French, and English—failed because of ignorance or lack of adaptation.

PIONEER American cattlemen and sheepmen, learning the secret of adaptation, succeeded; but, when farm and city folk from humid areas came, bringing with them humid-area thought patterns and ways of life, hardships began and clashes were inevitable. Here, virtually developed a cultural and educational Sahara, using economic, political and social units ill-adapted to physical and climatic needs of the Plains. Drouth, dust, and depression added to the complexity of the problem.

The author's treatment of the Plains as a "sutland," and "yonland," as well as a land of minorities, is masterly. The people of the Plains he portrays as virtually inhabiting so many islands in a vast sea, lacking control of their economic affairs and having only minimum contact with other groups in the region. The net result is virtual dependence and prostration.

Of course, Dr. Kraenzel presents a solution—adaptation. And the crowning keystone in his arch of adaptation is "Regionalism" — a philosophy and program also advocated by political scientists as a panacea for the ills of state governments. But the Regionalism of the Plains would be more embracing; it would embody many factors, such as: creating opportunities for employment and investment in the area; inventing institutional patterns best suited to the region; developing a spirit of self-criticism, self-discipline, and cooperation with other sections of the nation. In short, build a new way of life that would give the people of the Plains a hand in controlling their own destiny. TVA is a modest example of what could be accomplished.

IN this scholarly work, Dr. Kraenzel definitely sets himself up as a crusader. Throughout the volume, he contends that true Regionalism, if adopted, will benefit not only the people of the Plains but all citizens in the nation and many in other semi-arid lands. Thus, his plan offers hope to an overcrowded and hungry world and assumes not only national but global significance.

"The Great Plains in Transition" is a significant book. College professors, farmers, ranchmen, and government officials may find a fresh point of view in this volume; the casual reader may learn about basic causes for the perennial difficulties of farmers and others in the Plains country. The thousands of "pen pals" which Secretary of Agriculture Benson has recently acquired may assume added significance. The suggestions propounded by Dr. Kraenzel may speed the completion of a much needed MVA and pave the way for solution of many a tough problem in the Plains area.

Revolutionary Great Books

BOOKS THAT CHANGED THE WORLD, by Robert B. Downs. (The New American Library: A Mentor Book, 200 pgs., 35 cents.)

Reviewed by
A. MERVYN DAVIES

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE

DR. DOWNS, former president of the American Library Association and head of the University of Illinois Library, addresses his book to those who hold to the still popular delusion that books are inanimate, ineffective, peaceful objects, belonging to the cloistered shades and academic quiet of monasteries, universities, and other retreats from a materialistic, evil world; that they are, in consequence, of little significance for the hardheaded man of affairs.

The very opposite is, of course, the truth. Repeatedly in history the entire direction of events has been changed—for good or ill—by the appearance of a book or pamphlet. Two of the most striking instances of this in American history — both among those chosen by Dr. Downs for inclusion in this book—are Tom Paine's "Common Sense," which sparked the American Revolution, and Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which was a major cause of the Civil War.

Dictators in every era, as Dr. Downs points out, have been alive to the potentialities of books — and one of them, Adolf Hitler, understood them so well that he cunningly turned them to his own advantage with one of the most effective books ever written, "Mein Kampf," but for which probably there would have been no World War II.

Dr. Downs has limited his choice in this volume to the books that have wielded this kind of power. He disclaims any intention of listing "great books" as such. He has also restricted himself to books in science and the social sciences, omitting such vastly important fields as religion, philosophy and literature. For that reason he excludes the Bible and such powerfully influential writers as Victor Hugo and Dostoevsky.

IN addition to the books already mentioned, his discussion includes these: Machiavelli's "The Prince," Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations," Thomas Malthus's "Essay on the Principles of Population," Henry David Thoreau's "Civil Disobedience," Karl Marx's "Das Kapital," Alfred T. Mahan's "The Influence of Sea Power Upon History," and Halford J. Mackinder's "The Geographical Pivot of History."

Dr. Downs also includes in his selection of 16 books the works of six scientists—Copernicus, William Harvey, Isaac Newton, Charles Darwin, Sigmund Freud, and Albert Einstein—these being the ones whose ideas have most revolutionized man's ideas about himself and his universe.

Readers may find some of his choices surprising — of Mahan and Mackinder, for instance. But in every instance, it seemed to this reviewer, he proved his case for inclusion, and it is hard to quarrel with any of them.

It is tempting to speculate what books, if any, there may be in circulation today which will be candidates for inclusion in a similar discussion 50 or 100 years hence. Offhand, it is hard to name any. And maybe that's what is wrong with us. Maybe that's what we need—a book to change the direction in which we are going. Maybe too, someone is even now writing it. Who knows?

All Newport His--Perhaps Genius Too

JOHN SINGER SARGENT: A BIOGRAPHY, by Charles Merrill Mount. (W. W. Norton & Co., 464 pgs., $5.95.)

REKA NEILSON FISHER

EDWARDIAN ENGLAND, Paris of the Impressionists, and America during the opulent rise of the industrial colossi, give savor to this story. Mr. Mount is eminently qualified to tell it, for while evolving his own technique as a portrait painter, he considered Sargent's work closely.

The glittering rewards of portrait painting undoubtedly appealed to Sargent after his financially insecure youth. In Paris, unfortunately, the reaction to his portrait of Mme. Gatreau, painted as a claim to a better mousetrap, ended his dreams of painter to that city. In England he had only fair-to-middling success, but after a few paintings reached America, a commission summoned him to the brownstone fantasias of Newport, and the floodgates of success were opened to him.

His list of clients came from the Social Registers of the 400 and the Almanac de Gotha. He managed three sittings a day for his Boston, New York and London customers. His friends were some of the social and literary greats of the day: Henry James, Robert Louis Stevenson, and the fabulous Mrs. Jack Gardner.

The author's intelligent editing of many personal letters, his gift for creating personality with few words, transmit palpable atmosphere. His analysis of the elements of Sargent's painting is concise and understanding: the study of Hals and Velasquez, his Impressionist training and his ultimate figure abstraction. If you can accept the author's premise that Sargent was a man of genius, you will find this a readable and delightful book.

Mr. Mount makes a weak argument himself for the genius premise through his poor show of reproductions. Jammed into the middle of the book are 51 black and white photographs, sometimes four to a page. A more random choice of reproductions, and possibly some in color, would have been preferable to this miserly spread.

Our Freedom's Origins

THE FAITH THAT BUILT AMERICA, by Lee Vrooman. (Arrowhead Books, 228 pgs., $3.50.)

This is an excellent book to put in the hands of young people. The author makes abundant use of the spoken or written words of the Fathers. His bibliography is extensive and useful, and many pen drawings by Jacquelin Taliaferro Smith give added attractiveness to the volume.

DAILY WORKER MAN ADMITS IT ERRED

Writer Here, Offers Explanation on Switch on Stalin.

The Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, through the years has told of the Soviet Government's strengths instead of its weaknesses in order not to give aid to those who would "malign" Russia, Joseph North, a Daily Worker columnist, acknowledged here last night.

He spoke in response to a questioner who asserted he had been accustomed, from reading the Daily Worker's column, to thinking about Stalin as "a genius and infallible" and indicated he was puzzled by Russia's current "re-evaluation" of Stalin.

The meeting, attended by about 55 persons, was sponsored by the Freedom of the Press Committee of St. Louis and was held at Italian Fraternal Hall.

"We admit our error," North said, "and we promise to discuss both strengths and weaknesses of Russia in future."

North, author of a new book on the late Robert Minor, former St. Louisan and later a leader of the Communist party in America, devoted the major part of his talk to the lives of Minor and Communist leader William Z. Foster.

Chairman of the meeting was Charles Cox, Negro. Other speakers were Robert Manewitz, who described himself as a metalworker, and Eliot Waxman, also a metalworker, both of St. Louis. A collection was taken up, led by a $10 donation; subscriptions to the Daily Workers were advertised, and Communist books were on sale.

MEXICO INSISTS IT WILL NOT FREE TROTSKY'S KILLER

MEXICO CITY, March 24 (UP) — The Mexican Interior Ministry said today it would refuse to free Jacques Mornard, murderer of Leon Trotsky, despite a court injunction ordering his release from prison.

The ministry said its agents would arrest Mornard at the penitentiary gates if officials permitted him to go free on a technicality raised by the injunction.

Mornard, who killed the exiled Trotsky in 1940, has now served more than two-thirds of his 20-year term and has complied with all parole requirements.

A court ruling last week overruled the interior ministry's refusal to grant Mornard a parole. Ministry officials charged Mornard was "still a dangerous criminal."

Mornard has always refused to reveal his true identity and nationality.

GRAIN BULLS RULE IN WEEK'S BOARD TRADE

CHICAGO, March 24 (AP)—This was the week for the bulls on the Board of Trade. They enjoyed themselves immensely as grains scored their widest gains for any week this year.

In the upward surge, accompanied by active dealings, all wheat futures set new seasonal highs. So did a few corn and soybean deliveries. Largest gains were registered Friday, when buyers rushed to grab new crop wheat.

Wheat closed the week 7⅛@7¾ higher, corn 3@3⅞ higher, oats 1⅛@1¾ higher, rye 2@3¼ higher, soybeans 4⅛@8c higher and lard 18@33c a hundred pounds higher.

May wheat, an old crop month, was in demand early because of a limited supply of free wheat at Chicago. The cash price got to the effective Government loan rat at this terminal.

On Friday new crop wheat soared on the possibility the Administration might agree to a 90 per cent of parity price support level for one year only on the bread grain.

Corn Also Strong.

While wheat stole the show by its upward surge as the week ended, corn gave an impressive display by climbing steadily. In the last 11 trading sessions corn has advanced 10 times and eased once. As in wheat, some of the buying in corn had a political tinge.

Week's Review Of Business And Finance

SPRINGTIME UPBEAT

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP) THE springtime business upbeat started this week, despite a couple of savage onslaughts from the weather. While the sum total of all business activity pointed higher, some individual lines took it on the chin. Winter storms in the densely populated northeast snarled traffic, slowed production and cut heavily into retail trade.

Snowbound assembly plants in the east caused a slight drop in the nation's total output, already down more than 25 per cent from a year ago.

Merchants in some eastern cities found their hopes for a record Easter shopping season smothered under a foot-thick blanket of snow. Department store sales across the nation dipped below the corresponding levels of 1955 for the first time this year. Viewing Easter business prospects, the vice president of a big New York department store complained: "Things were going fine until the blizzard hit; then we were slaughtered."

Meanwhile activity in other lines was mostly on the upbeat. The steel mills scheduled a scoring production pace of 2,446,000 tons or 99.4 per cent of capacity after hitting an all-time high of 2,477,000 tons the week before. Check clearings showed a gain of 17 per cent; business loans by New York banks set a new record. Once again, the stock market climbed to historic peaks. At week's end the Associated Press 60-stock average stood at $190.50. And the Dow-Jones industrials average at 513.03.

Looking ahead, economists predicted a high level of overall business right through to the end of June, followed by a dip in the summer months and another big upsurge in the fourth quarter.

International Paper Co. announced a 4 per cent increase in the price of container board, which is used by the ton in making corrugated cardboard shipping boxes. Tin can makers raised their prices 3 per cent. In the London metals market, the price of copper for immediate or "spot" delivery climbed to an historic high of 54½ cents a pound. Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Co. boosted its aluminum prices 1½ cents a pound. Steel scrap prices reversed a prolonged downward trend and headed higher.

Railroads in the west and northeast asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve a 5 per cent boost in basic passenger fares, starting May 1. Indications were that the request would be granted.

Stalin Methods, Not Aims Under Fire in Russia

about the exposure they were going to make about Stalin himself.

At the Geneva "Big Four" conference last summer the Soviet delegation, on the surface, showed an entirely different face than Stalin and his following had used in their international conferences. This meeting was followed by even more expansive attitudes on official visits to India and Afghanistan. Allied diplomats will be watching with interest to see what further advances Bulganin and Khrushchev will make in England next month and how they will treat French Prime Minister Mollet and Foreign Minister Pineau during their visit to Russia in May.

The objective of these two-way visits and the offers of cultural and economic exchange, diplomats believe, is to show the world the old Stalin era is gone forever in Russia or, as Malenkov asserted in London recently, that "it can never happen again."

Until more details of the Khrushchev speech are available and the text of the party's central committee's orders to party workers is published, State Department officials are making no prediction of what the changed methods will mean in the long run.

The official line is that Khrushchev's speech was important for Russia and the whole world but that it does not necessarily mean a vital change in Soviet policy.

As to its effect within Russia and within the international Communist movement, party ideology withstood a much greater shock when Foreign Minister Molotov signed the Communist-Nazi pact for Stalin in August, 1939. Khrushchev told the twentieth Party Congress that Stalin was so misled by this pact that Russia was unprepared for the German invasion. Party discipline survived that complete reversal of Kremlin leadership. The present switch is likely to have far less effect on Russia's basic aims.

U.S. TREASURY LIST IS UNDER PRESSURE

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP) —Corporate and United States Treasury bonds had one thing in common this week — they were both down. All segments of the Associated Press average of 60 representative bonds declined, except for foreign dollar liens which continued their gradual advance of the last month. High grade investment issues were off sharply while industrials, rails and utilities continued to slide.

Among domestic corporates, convertible bonds moved up in keeping with the surge of their stock counterparts. Convertibles have the double appeal of a fixed interest security with the speculative inducement of conversion into stock.

United States Treasury obligations were under pressure in the over-the-counter market. For the week, the 2½s of 1963 gave up 13-32 to 96 20-32 bid. The Victory 2½s of December, 1972-67, surrendered 17-32 to 94 6-32 bid. The 30-year 3¼s and the 40-year 3s declined 10-32 each to 104 14-32 and 99 18-32, respectively.

Since the first of the year here is the record of the key Treasury bonds. The 2½s of 1963 have given up 15-32, the Victory 2½s are down 25-32, the 30-year 3¼s have lost 1 full point while the 40-year 3s are off 24-32.

Main reason for the weakness in bond prices, including corporates, United States Governments and tax-exempt municipals, is the tight money market.

Part of the squeeze is seasonal. Corporations as well as individual investors have large income tax payments to meet. Only last week General Electric Co. had to borrow $100,000,000 to meet its tax deadline.

BUSINESS IS RIDING ON A HIGH PLATEAU

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP) —Business is riding along on a high plateau for the fourth consecutive month, the National Association of Purchasing Agents said today in its March survey.

The association said its reports indicate "an acceleration in the upward trend in industrial materials prices, and a further improvement in employment with the arrival of spring."

The report is made each month by the association's business survey committee, whose acting chairman is Marshall Pease, assistant manager of purchases of the Detroit Edison Co., Detroit, Mich.

Thirty-three percent of purchasing agents reporting in March said production of their companies had increased, 57 per cent said production was the same, and 10 per cent said it had declined. These figures closely approximated those of a month before.

Thirty-three per cent of the purchasing executives said they increased their orders for goods, 17 per cent received less volume, and 50 per cent reported their order positions were the same as a month ago.

Of those who answered a special survey question, concerning the projected demand for consumer durables (automobiles, appliances, etc.), 54 per cent thought the demand was holding its own, 37 per cent saw it slipping and nine per cent said this demand is improving.

"The consensus," said the report, "was that credit obligations incurred during last year's record sales would act as a deterrent to further extension of individual debt at this time. However, many who reported expect increased buying of consumer durable goods in the third and fourth quarters."

Systems Engineering
The Ramo-Wooldridge Corporation
Most Ramo-Wooldridge work is of a systems character, frequently requiring the concurrent solution of a wide variety of interrelated technical and operational problems. Prominent examples are the Intercontinental Ballistic Missile and the Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile, Air Force programs for which we have overall systems engineering responsibility. Other examples are communications, fire-control, and computer programs for the military, and automation and operations research projects for business and industry.
Successful execution of systems engineering programs requires that the technical staff include experts in a wide variety of scientific and engineering specialties. At Ramo-Wooldridge the pertinent fields include radio propagation, aerodynamics, propulsion, digital computers, information theory, radar, servomechanisms, gyroscopy, and nuclear physics, to mention only a few.
A qualified systems engineering staff must include unusually capable theoreticians and analysts who can predict the behaviour of complex systems, as well as ingenious experimental physicists who can devise suitable new techniques for measuring actual physical parameters. In addition, the team must include experienced apparatus and equipment development engineers, to insure a high level of practicability in the resulting end products.
Scientists and engineers who are experienced in such systems engineering teamwork, or who have specialized in certain technical fields but have a broad interest in the interactions between their own specialties and other fields, are invited to explore the wide range of openings at The Ramo-Wooldridge Corporation in:

STOCKS CLOSE HIGHER FOR SIXTH SUCCESSIVE WEEK

Washington News Raises Question in Some Quarters of Whether We Are Not on Threshold of Another Round of Inflation.

By JOHN G. FORREST
Financial Editor, The New York Times.

Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.

NEW YORK, March 24.

PROFIT-TAKING and a snowstorm retarded the advance in the stock market slightly this week. But after absorbing a spell of selling in midweek the market resumed its upward trend, approaching its peaks and ending higher for the sixth successive week.

(The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed the week at $190.50, highest level in its history and well above the old 1929 peak of $157.70. The United Press said that for the week the Dow-Jones industrial average gained 5.43 points and rails 2.71 points and utilities lost 0.15 point. It added: For the period since the week ended Feb. 10, the Dow-Jones industrial average has risen 45.37 points or 9.7 per cent; rails have risen 16.37 points or 10.5 per cent and utilities are up 2.23 points or 3.4 per cent. At the close of the week, the industrial average was in new record high ground and the railroad average was at its best level since Oct. 22, 1929.)

Hampered by the worst snowstorm since 1947, stocks, after an early drift, recovered on Monday to close higher. Selected metal, lumber and paper issues were strong. Trading was considerably less than in the big week before. Irregular prices prevailed on Tuesday in more active trading. The New York Times combined average for 50 stocks touched 344.17, a historic peak.

Under the influence of profit-taking, stocks on Wednesday made their widest dip in two months. Recent favorites were targets of the selling, losing 1 to 3 points. A firmer tone set in on Thursday and carried through on the final trading day, leaving the list around the high for the week.

No Definite News.

There were no definite news developments that could be coupled with the irregular trend in the market. In most quarters, optimism prevails as to the business outlook, although some segments are not up to expectations. This is particularly true of the automobile industry. Inventories of cars in dealers' hands on March 1 were at a record level of 904,000 cars.

The eastern and western railroads joined hands again this week and petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to raise passenger fares by 5 per cent. The big eastern trunkline systems had potent arguments. Today it is cheaper to ride the rails than it was in 1929. Then, there was a flat 3¾-cent-a-mile-basic fare for both Pullman and coach travel. Today, the coach fare is 3.37½ cents and Pullman 4½.

Last year the eastern roads collected $425,000,000 in passenger revenues. On a "full-cost" accounting basis, however, they lost $232,500,000 running the trains. A 5 per cent increase would mean only about $21,500,000 in additional revenues, but if the carriers could carry the $21,500,000 through to net income, it would make some happy reading. The nation's rails last year had a net income of $915,000,000. While this was only 4.2 per cent return, it was their biggest year in history.

News Caused Concern.

Domestic and foreign political news, it would appear, is causing some concern. Tension in the Middle East continues and the Administration in Washington is having greater difficulty in getting its program through Congress. The results of the Minnesota primaries are altering presidential forecasts.

The Administration's farm program was buffeted about this week in the Senate. By a vote of 93 to 2, a farm bill was passed—but not in the form that President Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson would like. It calls for the spending of $1,700,000,000 in new money to aid farmers and nearly one billion dollars for increased federal price supports. It was sent to a House-Senate conference for adjustments. Whether a compromise version will meet with the President's approval remains to be seen. There is said to be little support for the Senate version in Administration circles.

The possibility of further high expenditures for farm aid and a request by President Eisenhower for $4,859,975,000 for foreign military and economic aid in the fiscal year starting July 1 has raised the question in some quarters of whether we are not on the threshold of another round of inflation.

Strike Settlement.

Settlement of the 156-day Westinghouse Electric strike—the longest major work stoppage in more than 20 years—removed a big cloud from labor-management relations. But walkouts elsewhere, particularly in the aircraft industry, remain a drag on production.

Establishment of a free gold market in Canada will not affect this country's policies on gold, it is believed. And it does not mean that Canada has returned to the gold standard. The public will not be able to get gold from the government for its Canadian dollars. What it does mean is that buyers can bid for metal from Canadian mines. One effect of the move, it is believed, will be a diversion of gold buying from London, the world's largest free gold market. Far Eastern sources are expected to make such a change.

COLLIE MAKES SNOWBALLS FOR HIS WINTER FUN

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 24 (AP)—Laddie, a 2-year-old collie, is as proficient at snowball-rolling as any Grand Rapids youngster.

Sometimes Laddie gets his snowballs up to 18 to 24 inches in diameter. He learned to roll them with the first snow of winter.

Laddie liked to slap stones around with his paws and roll them with his nose.

When he started nudging them in the snow, Laddie found the stones picked up snow and grew bigger. Finally he got to walking backward on his hind legs, pulled the snowballing stones with his front paws. When he tires he saunters off for a rest, then returns, tears the snowball to pieces, retrieves the stone and starts all over again.

C.A.B. SAYS U.S. OVERPAID PAN AMERICAN AND TWA

WASHINGTON, March 24 (UP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board ruled yesterday that the Government overpaid Pan American World Airways and Transworld Airlines, Inc., for carrying mail across the Atlantic between 1946 and 1953.

The decision, which incorporates a 1954 Supreme Court ruling that an airline's over-all earnings must be considered in setting mail pay rates and not just revenue from one route, means Pan American may have to refund to the Government as much as $3,875,000 and TWA up to $7,561,000.

American Overseas Airlines, now owned by Pan American, also was involved in the case. CAB found American Overseas was underpaid from 1946 to 1950 by as much as $4,947,000. Pan American will receive this settlement.

X-RAYS UNCOVER 21 T.B. CASES IN DOWNTOWN AREA

Chest X-rays of residents of hotels and missions in the downtown area resulted in the discovery of 21 new tuberculosis cases, it was announced yesterday by the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis.

The downtown area, bounded by Pine and Clark streets, Broadway and Twelfth boulevard, was the first area surveyed by the organization's mobile X-ray unit. In addition to transients, 251 restaurant workers were checked.

A total of 837 persons were X-rayed during a two-week period, which began the eleventh annual city survey. The program will continue in the Carondelet, Baden and midtown sections of the city.

NEW CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

EFFECTIVE APRIL 1, 1956

The newsprint manufacturers announced another increase in the price of newsprint of $4.00 per ton, effective January 1, 1956. The cost of newsprint is now at the all-time high figure of $131.00 per ton. The pre-war price was $42.00 per ton. Labor, material and all other costs have also greatly increased.

Newspapers across the country will be obliged to meet these increased costs by increasing their rates for advertising. There has been no change in the rates for classified advertising in the Post-Dispatch since August 1, 1952, although during that three-and-one-half-year period, all costs, with the exception of newsprint, continued to advance. This added cost in the price of newsprint compels us to increase all rates for advertising in an amount sufficient to cover the increased costs. Therefore, effective April 1, 1956, our rates for classified advertising in the daily and Sunday Post-Dispatch will advance from 1c to 5c per line, depending upon the frequency and volume of the advertising. Rates for retail and general display advertising in the Post-Dispatch are being increased 3c and 4c per line respectively.

The Post-Dispatch circulation has been increasing even since the last circulation statement for the period ending September 30, 1955, and the daily circulation today is nearly 400,000 and the Sunday circulation approaches the half-million mark.

A new schedule of rates effective April 1, 1956, for local classified advertising for the daily and Sunday Post-Dispatch is shown below.

Local rates apply only to the advertisers located in the State of Missouri and within 150 miles of St. Louis in the State of Illinois. Rates applicable to out of state advertisers on request.

ENGINEERS

ELECTRICAL MECHANICAL

There are excellent opportunities with a medium-sized, well established manufacturer of automatic controls, where recognition is given and advancement is based on individual performance. Our company is continually growing in size due to increased business and new products; therefore, very desirable openings develop frequently for young men with management potential. It is our policy to promote from within whenever possible. We are large enough to offer opportunity to the young man who wants to advance, yet we are not so large that the engineer is not given recognition as an individual.

Our automatic temperature controls division produces controls for use in the air-conditioning, heating and refrigeration field. This division offers challenging opportunities for engineers interested in design, development, application, methods, time study, quality control, production supervision and sales.

Our armament division in engaged in research, design and development of aircraft and missile guidance and control systems, servo systems, and reactor monitoring systems. Systems engineers, electronics and mechanical development engineers, physicists and specialists in applied mechanics are needed for advanced work on armament projects.

We offer full tuition refund for approved educational courses taken by our employees.

HAWKS SLUG PISTONS, 84-74, AND TAKE 2-0 SERIES LEAD

ERROR GIVES CARDS 3-2 VICTORY OVER REDLEGS

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA. March 24

All the Card Rookies Had to Do Was Listen.

THE 1956 Cardinal spring training camp, with Fred Hutchinson making his bow as a National League manager, will go down in the books as one of the best instructional set-ups the club has ever had, probably the very best. . . .Rookies who didn't learn about hitting, base running, fielding, sliding, bunting, etc., were either stupid or inattentive.

Bill Jurges and later Luke Appling, two of the most skillful shortstops of their time, coached shortstops and third basemen. . . . Johnny Hopp's specialty was first base technique. Terry Moore showed the outfielders how to do the job with a little more finesse and Hopp and Moore collaborated on base running. Hopp, who had a level swing as a batter, advised and corrected the batters with too much upswing. . . . Mike Ryba helped Bill Posedel with the pitchers and Walker Cooper helped both pitchers and catchers. . . . Al Hollingsworth advised pitchers about change-ups and improving the technique of holding runners on base.

It's difficult, however, for a player to get rid of a habit he's had for several years. . . . And it's just as difficult to persuade a hard-swinging batter that he ought to quit trying to drive the ball over the fence. Usually a player must learn for himself. You seldom see a player come up from the minors with a batting style built on the idea of punching singles over and between the infielders.

One of the best infield prospects we've seen in many years is Dick Schofield. He has many assets. He plays with zest and eagerness. He seems to regret when a practice session ends. He beefs at close decisions against him and at every strike called against him. He's a fine competitor, a real scrapper. One of these days, when he realizes that he can't hit a home run every time up, he'll start using his natural talents and become a .300 hitting shortstop who can write his own ticket at contract time.

Infield Moved in So The Sign Was Changed.

THERE was an incident in an exhibition game the other day that observers hoped would make an impression on Schofield and teach him what could be done with a bat. The Cardinals had runners on first and second against the Red Sox, with nobody out in the ninth inning and Schofield at bat. Naturally, Hutchinson called for a sacrifice. But on the first pitch the Boston infielders charged in and Hutchinson switched, telling Schofield to punch the ball past the inrushing first baseman.

Schofield worked it perfectly. With a level swing, as though trying to knock that first baseman down, he rifled the ball past the defender. If Schofield would swing more frequently, just with the idea of knocking down a first baseman or a third baseman, he'd get a lot more base hits like the one that broke the 2-2 tie and gave the Cardinals the winning run in that game at Sarasota.

Casey Stengel is a wandering conversationalist and he gets a lot of laughs by telling how he spent so much time during the winter, visiting Japan and also spending much time in the Orient, but he knows east from west and seldom misses a trick on the ball field.

A Cardinal-Yankee game was held up by rain the other day and during the interval, Casey made his way to the Cardinal bench and sat down with Pitching Coach Bill Posedel. What Casey wanted to know was what Posedel had done with Ben Flowers, right-handed pitcher. Ben had just held the Yankees hitless through four innings.

Casey was especially interested because the Yankees had had a chance to acquire Flowers's services, but Casey had turned it down. Now, he noticed, Flowers was pitching differently. One thing Posedel advised Flowers to do was mix up his wind-up gestures. Sometimes Ben pumps once, sometimes twice or three times, which tends to throw a batter off in his timing.

General Manager Frank Lane of the Cardinals said he thought the Cardinals were a bit tired, rather than listless, but he was reported to have had a long talk with one member of the club who had given Frank the impression that he wasn't showing the fire that Lane prefers to bored smugness.

Althea Gibson Loses.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, March 24 (UP)—Britain's Angela Mortimer won the women's singles title in the Alexandria lawn tennis tournament here today, beating Althea Gibson of New York, 6-3, 6-4.

POST MISSES FLY; BIRDS WIN FIFTH IN A ROW

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 24—Some times it pays to be lucky rather than good, the Cardinals found to their amusement and maybe amazement today as one of the National League's best defensive outfielders played tanglefoot with a tenth-inning fly ball to give the Redbirds a thrilling 3-2 victory.

Extending their own winning streak to five games and snapping Cincinnati's string of successes at five, the Redbirds prevailed in overtime when husky Wally Post, talented right fielder muffed a long drive for a game-deciding, three-base error.

The conclusive action capped a contest in which the Cardinals, climaxing a prosperous week, were able enough in their efforts, but not good enough, to have won without two lucky hits as well as Joe Frazier's high extra-inning hoist on which the right fielder played the ball like Emily, not Wally, Post.

Two Fortunate Runs

Off Patricio Athelstand (Pat) Scantlebury, a sidearming West Indian southpaw whose stuff was as troublesome as his multiple names, the Cardinals scored two fortunate runs to match a pair collected by Cincinnati off Willard Schmidt, the St. Louis starter.

In the second inning the Redlegs counted twice on Smoky Burgess's single, Ray Jablonski's long double and Scantlebury's line drive safety on which Red Schoendienst just missed a bid for a leaping catch at second base.

The Cardinals, held to two infield hits for four frames, got their first break in the fifth when Bill Virdon, swinging hard, popped a blooper off his fists and over the pitcher's head for a blushing basehit. Bill Sarni then singled sharply to left and after Virdon took third on Joe Cunningham's outfield fly, Alex Grammas' legitimate blow past third sent Virdon across.

An inning later Stan Musial's one-out grounder bad-hopped high over Second Baseman Johnny Temple's head for a scratch single and young Jackie Brandt, the most authoritative Redbird hitter of the bright, warm afternoon, lashed a line-drive into the left-center field slot for a game-tying triple.

Grapefruit League Rivals.

Once the Cards drew even, the game became a dandy as the Redbirds technically outhit the Redlegs, 8 to 7, but genuinely out-fielded a rival for top National League honors in the Citrus Circuit. Each team now has won nine games and lost six in the Grapefruit League.

The Cardinals again got good pitching. Schmidt, recovering from a shaky start, retired the last 13 batters he faced after walking Temple in Cincy's second. And 17 consecutive visitors had beat a path from bench to plate and back again before Temple singled off Gordon Jones in the eighth.

Jones still hasn't yielded a run this spring in eight innings, but only because he had Virdon behind him in eight. First, the St. Louis centerfielder made a diving catch of an inning-opening line drive by pinch-hitter, Bill Werber, Jr. Temple's single, a safety by Bob Hazle and a walk to Gus Bell then filled the bases. Here, Jones stopped Post on his own, retiring the slugger on an infield fly., but then he needed help again from Virdon, who sprinted behind a slow-reacting Joe Frazier in left-center for Burgess' smash.

Kinder Breezes.

In the ninth Cincinnati threatened against Ellis Kinder and the Redbirds against Rudy Minarcin, Redlegs righthander, but the 41-year-old Kinder breezed through the tenth.

With one out in the home half, Don Blasingame walked and Bell raced back for a handsome one-handed catch of Schoendienst's smash to deadcenter. Frazier followed with a sky-scraping fly to deep right center. Post, apparently underestimating the ball's carry, loped over, then back-pedaled awkwardly and, half-tripping over his own feet, thrust up a glove that couldn't hold the ball or the ball game.

Joe Jones Wins Bowie, Switch On Is Second

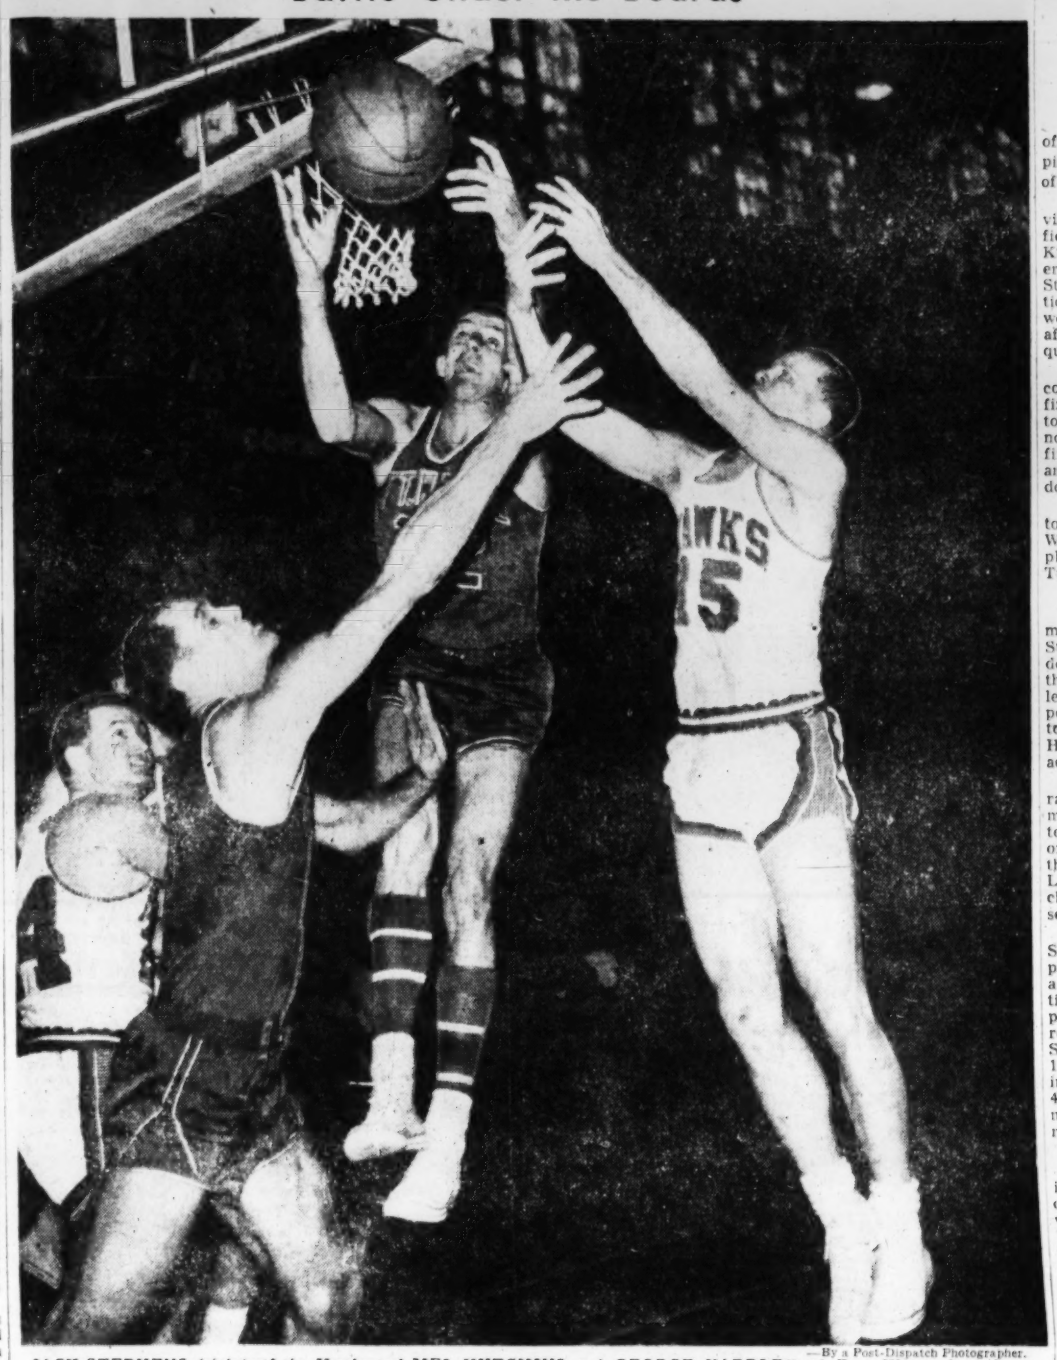

BOWIE, Md., March 24 (UP)—Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs's Joe Jones made it two stakes victories in two starts in the East today when he turned back nine others in the $28,500 Bowie Handicap, the oldest stakes race on the Bowie calendar, before a crowd of 19,976.

With Tony DeSpirito, who had three winners in all, handling the reins, Joe Jones made up huge yardage to gain the lead at the three-quarters pole and then continued on home to win by two lengths.

Gerald S. Colella's Switch On, which finished third to Joe Jones as the favorite last Saturday, closed fast today to gain second money by a nose over the W. H. Bishop Stable's Alternative.

The winner, shipped East after an unsuccessful West Coast campaign in which he won one race in five starts, completed the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:45 flat over a fast racing strip. He paid $6.00, $3.00 and $2.40 as the second choice along with stablemate Man of Destiny, which finished fifth.

Battle Under the Boards

By Harold Flachsbart

The surging Hawks gained their third straight N.B.A. playoff victory yesterday afternoon, defeating the western champion Fort Wayne Pistons, 84-74, to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five semi-final series.

In a game nationally televised at the Washington U. field house and carried by KSD-TV, a crowd of 3622 several times gave the high-flying St. Louis team a standing ovation. Red Holzman's athletes were in command all the way, after a sizzling 30-point first quarter.

The keyed-up Hawks now could clinch the western semi-final playoff with a third victory at Fort Wayne this afternoon and qualify for a $7500 final series with the winner of an eastern set between Philadelphia and Syracuse.

If a fourth game is necessary to decide the St. Louis Fort Wayne winner, it would be played here at Kiel Auditorium Tuesday night.

Spark Makes Big Fire.

Driving Al Ferrari, a freshman professional from Michigan State who has been a tremendous spark for the Hawks in their brilliant stretch run, was leading point-maker with 21 points, including nine in that torrid first quarter as the Hawks sped away to a 30-12 advantage.

Equally important was Ferrari's great floor game as Holzman kept him in action to quarterback a hot first team for 46 of the 48 minutes. Bob Pettit, the 6-9½ sophomore pro from Louisiana State, N.B.A. scoring champion during the regular season, contributed 19 points.

Pettit, along with Charley Share and Jack Coleman, also played an iron man role with a 39-minute stint of playing time and an impressive board performance that included 17 rebounds of 66 credited to the St. Louis team. Share snared 15 from the boards and chipped in with 14 points and played 42 minutes. Coleman, in 36 minutes of action, also got 15 rebounds and 10 points.

Defense Tells.

Holzman, cheered by an "easier" victory than the two tense one-pointers registered last week at Minneapolis and Fort Wayne, said he thought the team defense was a big contributing factor in the seventh win the Hawks have scored over the Pistons in their last nine meetings this season.

"We kept the center sluffed up," is the way the St. Louis coach put it, "and prevented the Pistons from getting many inside shots. The result was they had to try from the outside." Fort Wayne hit on only 28 field goals out of 84 tries.

Coach Charley Eckman of the visitors who saw his ace scorer, George Yardley, held without a field goal until late in the second quarter, had nothing but praise for the Hawks. "I'm not surprised," he said. "You remember I predicted all along the Hawks could finish second in our division—and maybe even first."

Ferrari, on hand-offs from Share and Coleman, gave the Hawks an early 4-0 lead and it was 10-3, 12-5 and 16-7 so rapid was the Hawk scoring in those early tell-tale minutes. When the home forces had a 30-12 edge after the first period (in which Pettit added seven of his points and Coleman six), it was the lowest scoring quarter by Fort Wayne this season, according to the Indiana scribes.

Hold the Edge.

Naturally that hot pace wasn't continued by St. Louis in the second period, when the Pistons outscored Holzman's men, 23-17. That made it 47-35 at the half, and the Hawks were able to maintain either a 10 or 12-point edge through most of the last two quarters, although one time Fort Wayne came within nine.

Ferrari was the defensive standout guarding Yardley, and Mel Hutchins of the Pistons also did a fair job of knocking down some of Pettit's shot. But big Bob was able to hand off to teammates and still was only six below his season's average.

Of no little help were Capt. Bob (Tiger) Harrison, who teammed with Ferrari in the back court; big Alex Hannum, who made four important long set shots and Jack McMahon, a good floor player who controlled the ball even though held scoreless.

Larry Foust, a personal friend of Share's during the off-season, made 16 points to lead the downcast visitors, Yardley wound up with 14 and Hutchins 12. Chuck Noble, a hot out-court shooter with a background of A.A.U. ball, also hit 12 points on six buckets, five of them in the second quarter.

And Phillip of Granite City, a star of years gone by for Ft. Wayne, still moved swiftly but made only two points and played less than half the game. Rebounding, the Pistons snared only 51, including 12 by Foust and 12 by Yardley.

All told, the Hawks hit almost 40 per cent of their field goal attempts, 35 out of 88, but they won the game with 13 out of 25 for a sizzling 52 per cent in that first period. After that the Pistons just couldn't get hot enough to make a difference.

Minneapolis was represented at this playoff battle, with Coach John Kundla of the Lakers and Slater Martin appearing on TV, between halves. Could it be that the network figured this regular Saturday N.B.A. game to be in Minneapolis?

A moment's silence, after the national anthem was played by the Beaumont High band, was observed in memory of the father of Med Park, who died at Lexington, Mo. Park had played a bang-up game for the Hawks in Fort Wayne Thursday night.

Both teams departed early last night for Fort Wayne, scene of this afternooon's third playoff contest.

Needles, Nearly Last At Start, Passes 12 Horses, Wins Derby

HALLANDALE, Fla., March 24 (UP)—Florida champion Needles proved to be the king of three-year-old racers today as he left the champions of two coasts in his wake with a tremendous stretch surge and won the $145,400 Florida derby in track record time.

Trailing Needles far back in the pack of 14 sophomores came Reaping Right, the Louisiana derby champion from New Orleans in sixth place, and Terrang, winner of the West Coast Santa Anita derby in thirteenth place.

Needles' flashing speed through the stretch carried him to a three-quarter length victory over Count Chic from California. Calumet Farm's Pintor Lea finished third another length and three-quarters back.

Already the winter book favorite to capture the Kentucky Derby as his sire Ponder did in 1949, Needles further proved his class before a crowd of 24,191 that sent him postward an 8-5 favorite. He ran the mile-and-one-eighth in 1:48 3-5 seconds to shave one-fifth of a second off the Gulfstream Park record held by three older horses.

"We're off for Louisville," Jockey David Erb shouted jubilantly when he dismounted so they could put a blanket of orchids around Needles' shoulders. Erb said the race was run "the way we wanted it."

"I really had no doubts," he said.

As usual Needles got off next to last and gradually moved up on the outside of the big field. He made his bid on the far turn for home and hit the top of the stretch in fourth place with more than three lengths to make up for victory.

Jockey Bill Boland, riding Count Chic, said: "When I got the lead turning into the stretch, I thought I was going to win it."

Under the allowance conditions of the race, Needles, as a Florida-bred, had a five-pound concession and carried 117 pounds to 119 on Count Chic. Pintor Lea, making his first appearance in a stake race, carried 113 pounds. Needles earned a check of $95,200 for the D & H Stable of J. C. Dudley of Stillwater, Okla., and B. T. Heath of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The purse brought the long-legged bay colt's all-time earnings to $338,605.

As favorite of the crowd, Needles paid $5.40, $4.20 and $3.00 for a $2 bet across the board. Count Chic returned $21.10 and $11.00, and Pintor Lea paid $4.30 to show.

The 80-to-1 Nan's Mink Coat set a blistering pace in the early running of the race but chucked it on the turn for home. Tiger Wander took over briefly, but Count Chic was on top as they straightened away to the wire. Pintor Lea was tiring fast but held on gamely.

Jockey Bobby Baird said he could offer "no excuse" for Reaping Right, which made a mild bid on the far turn but couldn't find the necessary speed.

Terrang was in third position after the half mile, where Willie Shoemaker said the colt "just ran out of gas."

Montreal Wins.

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—Bert Olmstead, who set a National Hockey League record for assists this season, scored twice tonight to lead Montreal to a 3-1 victory over the New York Rangers and enabled the Canadiens to take a 2-1 lead in their Stanley Cup semifinal playoff series.

A sellout of 15,925 in Madison Square Garden witnessed a gruelling, close-checking game, the third in the best of seven series.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 24.

HARVEY HADDIX, Larry Jackson and Barney Schultz will pitch for the Cardinals Sunday against Pittsburgh here. A week ago the Pirates beat the Redbirds in a dreary exhibition, 7 to 2.

To test Jackie Brandt further, Manager Fred Hutchinson played the rookie in right field this afternoon, moving Stan Musial to left. "And tomorrow," Hutch said, "I'll use the kid in center." Brandt was a middle fielder at Rochester.

Wayne Anderson, Cincinnati's trainer, was relieved to report that slugger Ted Kluszewski, sidelined most of spring training by a pulled muscle in his lower back, had taken batting practice 30 minutes this morning at Tampa. "He'll be ready to pinch-hit and run in a few more days," said Anderson.

Brooks Lawrence, former Redbird right-hander traded to the Redlegs last winter for Jackie Collum, pitched batting practice for Cincinnati. He's 12 pounds lighter than a year ago, he said. The Bull has hurled ably this spring. It's difficult to tell whether needler Birdie Tebbetts was serious or ribbing when he said: "I wouldn't be surprised if he won 20 games."

No defensive geniuses have tampered or even tinkered with Ray Jablonski this spring. The Redleg field command and front-office learned about how much Dick Bartell, former Cincinnati coach, would help Jabbo's third-base play. Constantly harassed and badly confused, Jablonski then forgot to do what came naturally—hit.

An Al Lang Field visitor was applauded by the 3027 spectators when he was introduced. He was tomato-faced Arthur (Dazzy) Vance, Hall of Fame pitcher. The old Dazzler, who operates a small gift shop at Homosassa Springs, Fla., won his fame with the Dodgers in the '20s, but appeared in his only World Series with the 1934 Cardinals.

Detroit Takes 3-0 Series Lead Over Toronto

TORONTO, March 24 (UP)—Ted Lindsay scored at 4:22 of the sudden-death overtime to give the Detroit Red Wings a 5-4 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs tonight in the third game of their Stanley Cup semifinal before 13,336 persons at the Garden. The victory gave the Wings a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Lindsay, who had capped a three-goal third-period rally for the Wings by sending the game into overtime at 14:25, was parked in front of the net when Bob Goldham drove in for Gordie Howe's shot off the boards. Goldham relayed out in front, Lindsay waved his stick, and the game was over.

Without their 37-goal center, Tod Sloan, the Leafs were still a potent scoring force as they went all out tonight in an attempt to get back into the series. Sloan was lost for the series with a fracture in his shoulder when Howe carried him into the boards Thursday night. The injury caused a minor scare here today when a crank threatened to shoot Lindsay and Howe if they played. The threat failed to materialize.

Third Straight Wrestling Title to Okla. Aggies

STILLWATER, Okla., March 24 (AP)—The Oklahoma Aggies won their third straight NCAA wrestling title and nineteenth in the 26-year history of the meet tonight before 7000 partisan spectators.

Myron Roderick, the Oklahoma Aggies' 130-pound defending champion, nailed down the trophy for hi steam by winning a third match of the evening. He had little trouble in decisioning Bobby Lyons of Oklahoma, 9-4.

St. Louis Considered.

CHICAGO, March 24.

THE city of St. Louis, which next winter will entertain the National Collegiate Athletic Association's annual convention, also is under consideration as a site for the N.C.A.A. basketball finals.

A. C. (Dutch) Lonborg of Kansas U., chairman of the tournament committee, said the site won't be finally picked until a July meeting of his group. At this time he offered no special hope that St. Louis may get the two-night championships.

"One big point is the rental figure," said Lonborg, who visited St. Louis last summer to look into the possibility of holding the title games at Kiel Auditorium. He found the proposed rental figure too high, he said.

Obviously aware that the Kiel rent has been a large item among the first-year problems of the professional Hawks, Lonborg hastened to add that rental was not the key point.

"There are quite a few cities that want the basketball finals—Los Angeles for one. New York (The Garden) almost always indicates it would like them, and it's a question of choosing a place that is satisfactory to the membership," Lonborg continued.

Coaches Are Side Show.

"THE National Basketball Coaches Association convention goes with the finals, of course, and the coaches like to move it around the country to build and sustain interest.

"Housing for the coaches makes it necessary to locate in a good-sized city. But there's another point involved. This year we kept all of the N.C.A.A. regionals on campus except first-round games in New York. Staying on campus probably will not be a hard-and-fast requirement, however.

"Kansas City has been a good place for us. Its rental figure for the Municipal Auditorium was about 10 per cent of the gross income after taxes. That percentage ran about $8000 to $10,000 for the two nights.

"Here, for the games at the Northwestern Field House, we pay no rent, only the expenses of the event, which run around $10,000 to $12,000. The income depends on ticket prices, of course. Kansas City developed more money for the event because it sold seats at $4 to $5."

Selling the tournament to fans is no problem with a field house or auditorium capacity of around 10,000. The Evanston event was sold out weeks in advance.

Major Championship.

THE far-flung N.C.A.A. basketball eliminations are steadily gaining over the New York National Invitation Tournament as college basketball's blue ribbon event.

Wayne Duke of the N.C.A.A. staff displayed a list of 23 teams which made the "top 20" in either the Associated Press (Writers) or United Press (Coaches) final rankings.

Only three of those 23 teams participated in the N.I.T. while the remainder either were in the N.C.A.A. field or were ineligible because they had failed in qualifying conference races or by reason of ineligible players.

The N.C.A.A. next year also will conduct a small-college championship, but it hasn't been decided yet how the line will be drawn. It may be the small schools will be allowed to declare themselves into one group or the other.

Washington University's Blair Gullion would like to see the organization conduct a 16-team conference-school tournament, a 16-team independent-school tournament and let the winners play off for the national title.

Or better yet, Gullion says, set up separate tournaments for the independent, conference, N.I.T. favorites, and small-college groups and have a four-team playoff for the big championship. Gullion believes the N.C.A.A. is too strongly dominated by the major conference members.

S.M.U.'s Gain.

DOC HAYES, Southern Methodist coach, says the Dallas school is "mighty proud" of its St. Louis athletes.

"They've really made a great contribution to our school," he said, "and not only in basketball, because they've entered numerous campus activities."

It all began a few years ago when a Southern railroad man, Henry Spraggins, was transferred from Dallas to St. Louis and began to interest St. Louis athletes in S.M.U. First there was Cleveland High's Lou Miller, who lettered at tackle on the Mustang football varsity. Then basketball athletes followed, like Carl Scharffenberger, Jim Krebs, Bobby Mills, Rick Herrscher and Herschel O'Kelley. Webster Groves' Don Carter also is there, out for baseball, and Ellis Minton of Kirkwood now is the "baby of the clan," as Krebs and Mills put it.

The boys like it at S.M.U. they say, and they'll be trying to interest more St. Louis athletes. But here's one break for competing Missouri area schools. Mr. Spraggins has been transferred back to Texas, at Tyler.

Long Poke Made Off Baumann

SARASOTA, Fla., March 24 (AP)—Warren Spahn, a creaking 34 years of age, became the first pitcher of the Milwaukee Braves to go the distance when he set down the Boston Red Sox, 5-1, here today.

The veteran lefthander, who will turn 35 a week after the season opens, held the Sox to five hits and in the process enabled the Braves to snap a six-game losing streak that has had manager Charlie Grimm more than a little concerned.

Bonus Rookie Frank Baumann of St. Louis, who started for Boston, had his troubles. He walked three Braves in the first inning and was tapped for a solid home run by Joe Adcock in the fourth. St. Louisan Dave Sisler worked two scoreless innings.

Camilio Pascual of the Washington Senators also went the distance, but he ran into disaster and lost to the Kansas City A's, 6-5, at West Palm Beach. He probably was not quite ready for a nine-inning stint because he went six stanzas without yielding a run.

But, in the seventh, the A's got to him for four runs. That still left him in the lead and it wasn't until the ninth that the A's beat him, scoring twice to come from behind a 5-4 deficit.

In other games, the Cleveland Indians thumped the New York Giants, 9-6, at Phoenix; the Baltimore Orioles slugged the Chicago Cubs, 16-2 at Los Angeles; the Pittsburgh Pirates outlasted the Philadelphia Phillies, 12-11, at Fort Myers, and the Detroit Tigers slapped down the Chicago White Sox, 12-6, at Lakeland.

The Indians scored seven runs in the fourth inning and after that were held in check by Hoyt Wilhelm and Jim Constable. Bob Feller started for the Tribe and lasted until the fourth.

The weak-hitting Orioles burst forth with five home runs in their victory over Chicago. The Cubs got both their runs through homers. Erv Palica went seven innings for the winners.

For six innings the Pirates and the Phillies also engaged in a nip-and-tuck scrap. Then the roof fell in. The Phils scored five runs in each of the seventh and eighth innings. Pittsburgh notched three in the seventh and seven in the eighth. That still left it tied at 11-11. The Pirates pushed over the decider in the last of the ninth.

The heretofore toothless Tigers exploded for 10 runs in the first inning against Chicago and then coasted the rest of the way to win their fourth game in 15 tries.

The New York Yankees defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4-2, in a night game in Miami. Mickey Mantle's home run with one mate aboard in the fourth made the difference.

Long Shot Is First In California Derby

SAN BRUNO, Calif., March 24 (UP)—Eddie Schmidt, a stretch-running son of Count Speed, whipped 14 other three-year-olds today to win the $15,000 California Derby at Tanforan.

A long shot, with Jockey Alex Maese in the sadde, Eddie Schmidt came from far back in the pack on the home stretch to win by a half length over No Regrets, with another long shot, Mobile, in third place.

There were seven Kentucky Derby nominees in the field, but only No Regrets finished in the money.

The mile-and-one-sixteenth race was run in 1:43 4/5 and Eddie Schmidt paid $18.60, $10.90 and $7.60 across the board. No Regrets paid $9.40 and $6.20, and Mobile, a rank outsider, paid $14.50 to show.

Come on Red Takes Oaklawn Feature

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 24 (AP)—Come On Red, owned by Mrs. Helen W. Kellogg of Nashville, Tenn., installed himself as a strong Arkansas Derby contender by defeating eight other 3-year-olds in the $3500 Oaklawn purse at Oaklawn Park today.

A claim of foul was lodged against the winner by jockey John L. Rotz, rider on Mrs. Elizabeth Muckler's Johns Chic, which finished second—two lengths back—but it was not allowed.

Come On Red's victory was further marred by a bad start for Gus P. Burkhardt's Mr. Bob W., the 3-2 favorite, who was virtually left at the post and finished eighth.

Chaminade Five Wins St. Vincent Tourney

Chaminade defeated Christ the King, last night, 40 to 20, for the championship of the sixth annual invitational basketball tournament held at St. Vincent's Home, 7401 Florissant road.

Ascension won from St. Kevin, 26-19, in the consolation final, but St. Kevin was awarded the sportsmanship trophy.

Pete Knese, who scored 12 points for Chaminade, was awarded the trophy as the outstanding individual player. Jim Brangle and Glenn Beckmann scored six points apiece for Christ the King.

My, How the Garden Grows!

Fangio, Castellotti Win At Sebring; Jaguar Fails

SEBRING, Fla., March 24 (UP)—World Champion Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina and his Italian driving partner, Eugenio Castellotti, won the Florida International 12-hour Grand Prix of Endurance today in their Ferrari sportcar.

Fangio and Castellotti, in their 3.4-liter Ferrari, duelled bitterly for most of the race with the Jaguar-D of Mike Hawthorne of England and Desmond Titterington of Ireland, but took the lead finally when Hawthorne's car developed brake trouble with less than two hours to go, and the Jaguar was forced to quit the race.

The Ferrari victory team then was certain of victory, since its second car, driven by Luigi Musso and Harry Schell, was in second place, and it was simply a matter of driving carefully and conserving the advantage.

A D-Jaguar driven by Bob Sweikert and Jack Ensley, an Indianapolis team, finished in third place.

Sweikert, winner of the 1955 Indianapolis 500-mile race, was driving in his first sportscar race, and his machine was the one which won at Sebring last year.

An Aston Martin driven by Reg Parnell and C.A.S. (Tony) Brooks finished fourth.

The placement for the American entry was a face-saving success for the Jaguar factory team. Hawthorne, paired with Titterington, led most of the way against Fangio. The lead see-sawed back and forth during pit stops, but Hawthorne was out front at 8 p.m., minutes before brake trouble eliminated the car.

Fangio called the contest "a beautiful race."

"It was very hard, a hard-fought race," he added. "The car was perfect all the way."

"I was very sorry to see Hawthorne drop out," he said.

Fangio also expressed sadness on the race's only serious accident. His good friend, Carlos Menditeguy, also of Argentina, suffered a fractured skull when his car overturned earlier in the day.

25 Native Sons in Majors Show St. Louis to Be a Fertile Field, But Not One Is With Cardinals

By Neal Russo

Metropolitan St. Louis, with a little more than one per cent of the country's population, has 25 native sons, just enough to fill out one full team's roster, with major league clubs.

Even if a few of them slide back to the minors at cutdown time, St. Louis, the County and East Side figure to have about 5 per cent of the big league players. Strangely, none of the local boys is with the Cardinals.

How's this for an eight-man pitching staff? Bob Turley, Frank Baumann, Bob Wiesler, Bud Black, Lou Sleater, Bob Harrison, Dave Sisler and Jim O'Reilly? Split right down the middle, too—four righthanders and four lefties.

They Switched.

That staff could be increased to nine by counting Dick Hall of the Pirates, who was born in St. Louis but moved to Maryland at an early age. Dick Williams, Dodgers' outfielder, is the only other man in this group of 25 who was born in St. Louis but left the city in his early years. His family moved to California.

And how many managers' mouths would water at the thought of having Don Mueller, Hank Bauer, Chuck Diering, Roy Sievers, Al Smith and Elston Howard available for duty in the outfield. Need some reserves? Try Jim Pendleton, Hoot Evers, Jim Pisoni and Norm Siebern.

Catching? Nothing wrong with $50,000 Yogi Berra. There's Joe Astroth to back up Yogi, along with Bob Schmidt and Howard.

The mythical all-Metropolitan St. Louis lineup suffers a bit in the infield, but a little line-up switching could provide a solution. Especially with Al Smith around. Last season he played all infield positions except for first base and filled all outfield jobs.

More Switches.

Smith can hold down shortstop and Bobby Hofman is a second baseman from way back, besides filling in elsewhere in the infield and behind the plate. Owen Friend and Pendleton, long a Triple A shortstop, also could take over in the infield, but, in order to strengthen the lineup, Sievers could move to third base, his old position, and Howard could swing over to first base. Manager Stengel switches just about everyone to first base, anyway.

Of the 25 local products on major rosters, 17 are in the American League. The Yankees again lead the way with six—Norm Siebern of Wellston and O'Reilly, St. Mary's High alumnus—as well as Turley (East St. Louis), Berra (The Hill), Howard (Vashon High), and Bauer (East St. Louis). Siebern and O'Reilly replace Sleater and Wiesler, who were among the Yankees' St. Louis delegation of six last year.

Continuing in the A.L., the Orioles have three: Diering, Pisoni (Hadley Tech and The Hill), and Harrison, Kirkwood boy who was strikeout king of the Western League in 1955. The Red Sox present Baumann and Sisler, two bonus babies who would come in handy to the Cardinals. Local boys with the Senators are Sievers and Wiesler, two more Beaumont High products whom the Redbirds barely missed signing.

Consolation Roll Call.

Smith (Webster Groves Douglass) and Evers (Collinsville) are on the Indians. The Athletics show Astroth (East Alton) and the Tigers Black (University City).

"Our boys" with the Giants include Mueller (C.B.C.), Hofman (what, Beaumont again?) and young Schmidt (Ritenour). The Braves include Pendleton (St. Charles High and St. Louis) and Sleater. And there's Friend (Granite City) of the Cubs.

Three N.L. clubs have no players from the immediate St. Louis area. In the A.L. only the White Sox missed this area—but here's some consolation: Manager Marion and Coach Wilber, though not natives, now live here. So do Jim Delsing, Del Rice, Stan Musial and a number of other Cardinals, none of whom are from here.

There's a board of strategy of St. Louisans, too—Manager Charley Grimm of the Braves and three coaches, Terry Moore of the Cardinals, Joe Becker of the Dodgers and Bob Keely of the Braves.

Although eleventh in population, Missouri is virtually tied with Illinois in the number of native sons on major league rosters, according to a survey by The Sporting News. Illinois is fourth with 42 and Missouri has 41.

California leads with 70, followed by Pennsylvania with 59 and New York with 50. Texas, Michigan, Ohio, New Jersey and Massachusetts are among the more populated states that trail Missouri in big league talent.

Louisville Takes N.I.T. Title With 93-80 Win Over Dayton

BETWEEN ROUNDS

by W. J. McGoogan

Humez Invasion Hits a Snag.

CHARLEY HUMEZ, middleweight champion of Europe, began his American invasion on a sour note when he lost a 10-round split decision to the trial horse of the 160-pounders, Ralph (Tiger) Jones.

But the Frenchman was anything but disgraced in losing by a close margin. He and Jones put on one of the most spirited bouts seen on television since the second Carmen Basilio - Tony De Marco contest.

Jones has won only about half of his most recent 15 bouts but he has fought all the tough ones in the division including Ray Robinson, present champion defeated by Jones and Carl (Bobo) Olson, the former titleholder, to whom Ralph lost a verdict.

So the International Boxing Club didn't send Humez against any setup when they chose Ralph as the one to kick off the American trip of the Frenchman.

Humez showed a good punch and an ability to take a wallop. He boxes in the style of Marcel Cerdan, who held the middleweight crown before he died in an airplane accident on his way to this country.

Humez holds his forearms perpendicular, close to his body with a glove protecting each jaw in the same manner used by Cerdan.

He is a sharp, accurate hitter.

Against Jones he started rather slowly but came with a rush at the finish, which was not enough to make up for the ground he had lost early in the bout.

It was the first loss for Humez after 15 successive victories. His previous loss was by a knockout in Paris at the hands of Ernie Durando, who has been kayoed by Jones.

His fine showing put Humez in line for other bouts in this country as certainly the fans will be glad to see more of him.

As to Jones, he always puts forth a good effort, win, lose or draw, and any time he goes to the post you may be sure of seeing him do his best.

THE Wednesday night fight to be shown on TV this week is strictly a mine-run bout between Ludwig Lightburn of British Honduras and L. C. Morgan of Dayton, O., who has been having managerial troubles. L. C. came up with four men claiming title to his contract.

On Friday night, however, there is a TV bout which should be worth seeing. It is between Cherif Hamia, Algeria, and Carmelo Costa, Brooklyn, a pair of featherweights who will box in the Madison Square Garden feature to be telecast over KSD-TV.

'Convince a Man.'

JERRY LISKA, of the Associated Press, one of the sturdy seven who voted for Johnny Saxton over Carmen Basilio against 20 other sportswriters, went to see a movie of the bout. He came away more confused than ever.

"* * * This writer — who covered the fight and voted for Saxton—closely studied a filmed TV version of the bout. I must confess, after viewing that movie, my original vote for Saxton is subject to debate," writes Jerry.

He then concludes:

"We still have to say that Saxton's rapier outpointed Basilio's club and suggest that the counter punch seems to elude the one-eyed monster" (the camera).

Well, the whole thing is open to debate and has been argued with more heat than sense.

And a national magazine which has been devoted to attacks on boxing goes to great lengths, largely by innuendo, to prove the bout "A Mighty Peculiar Fight."

Its story points out that in the last eight fights at Chicago's Stadium the nonfavorite in the betting has emerged victorious.

"This is not to suggest that the last eight Stadium main events were crooked. (One of them was the Sugar Ray Robinson-Bobo Olson fight). It is merely to suggest that there was something mighty peculiar about the way they all turned out," the indictment reads.

Then it reaches the conclusion, which is "mighty peculiar," that "the inverted Chicago system (of betting), translated into reality, means the fighter who is assigned the longest odds is actually the professional gamblers' favorite." Now really!

Lou Radzienda, member of the Illinois Athletic Commission, who was acting chairman during the illness of Livingston Osborne, comes in for some serious criticism because he permitted Saxton to sign his own contract for the bout because Saxton's manager, Frank (Blinky) Palermo is not licensed in Illinois. Palermo had trouble with the law some years ago, an affair which had no connection with boxing.

Radzienda's theory is that the boxer should not be penalized for an act of his manager which had no relation to boxing. With that idea there is wide agreement, also disagreement.

In boxing, however, nobody can view a difference of opinion except in the light that the one disagreeing with him is dishonest. In baseball they holler "robber" at an umpire but not even professional umpire baiters would seriously think of an umpire as a thief.

Scoring Is Record For Final

NEW YORK, March 24 (UP)—Phil Rollins and Jerry Moreman, a pair of "little men" in a battle of giants, took over the scoring burden when six-foot-eight Charlie Tyra cooled off in the second half today and led Louisville to the National Invitation Basketball Tournament championship with a 93-80 victory over Dayton.

A crowd of 15,763 at Madison Square Garden, in addition to millions of television viewers from coast to coast, watched this highest-scoring final in the 19-year history of the tournament. The highest - scoring previous final was LaSalle's 75-64 triumph over Dayton in 1952.

Louisville's victory extended Dayton's prolonged "jinx" in this tournament and broke the Eastern domination of the N.I.T. championship that had prevailed through the past four post-season classics. This was the fourth time that Dayton had been beaten in the N.I.T. final.

Louisville, the nation's seventh-ranked team and the second-seeded tournament entry, thus won the N.I.T. in its fifth try. In four previous ventures, tre Cardinals never had survived the quarter-finals. This also was Louisville's third triumph this season over Dayton.

Dayton Leads at Half.

Tyra was superb in the first half when he scored 19 points and completely outplayed seven-foot Bill Uhl in helping the Cardinals from Kentucky lead throughout most of the opening half. A pair of three-point plays by Jim Palmer and Jim Paxton gave Dayton a 45-44 halftime lead.

But when the Flyers' defense collapsed on Tyra in the second half, Rollins and Moreman, two of the shortest men on the court, although each is six-foot-two, were more than equal to the occasion. Rollins connected on four timely outside shots that promptly helped the Cardinals take over the lead in the early minutes of the final half. And Moreman scored 10 second-half free throws in a driving performance that fouled out Paxson and Arlen Bockhorn, two of Dayton's strongest scoring threats.

Rollins hit on a jump shot and a set in the first minute of the second half to touch off an unbroken eight-point spurt that gave Louisville a 52-46 advantage. Moreman then added to Dayton's demoralization with some driving tactics.

First he caused six-foot-six Paxson to foul out at 8:55 and then lured six-foot-four Bockhorn into his fifth foul at 15:10.

Tie Free Throw Mark.

The Cardinals' ability to draw fouls turned out to be one of the most important factors in their victory. They cashed in on 31 of 40 foul shooting attempts to tie the tournament's free throw record set by St. Joseph's of Philadelphia in today's consolation game.

Dayton, ranked third nationally by the United Press board of coaches and top-seeded in this tournament, made its strongest second half threat when Ray Dieringer and Bockhorn each hit with successive jump shots to close Louisville's lead to 58-54 at the five-minute mark.

At that point, however, Tyra tossed in a field goal and two free throws, Moreman made good on four free throws and Rollins contributed a three-point play that helped the Kentucklans open a commanding 71-59 lead. Dayton never seriously threatened after that.

Third-seeded St. Joseph's sinking 20 of 36 field goal attempts and 13 of 16 free throws in a superb first-half shooting exhibition, easily won third place by defeating St. Francis of Brooklyn, 93-82.

St. Joseph's converted 31 of 65 field goal attempts for the game and set a tournament record by sinking 31 free throws. This bettered the previous high of 29 set by Duquesne against Oklahoma A.&M. in the first round of the current tournament.

Name It and You Can Have It, Says Aussie Girl With Horse

By John J. Archibald

Last August she was publicizing an Argentinian who wanted to swim the Mississippi river—lengthwise. Now it's a race horse that she is helping to give away. Such are the pastimes of Norma Copeland, the pretty Australian woman who intermittently comes from Down Under to bring various sporting activities to America's notice.

Although warned from infancy never to look a horse gift in the mouth, we inquired of Miss Copeland during a recent visit to St. Louis who was going to be given the race horse. And what they would do with it if they got it.

"The horse—a real thoroughbred, by the way—will be given to the person who names him," said Miss Copeland, and she went on to explain about a tobacco company's contest and box tops and things like that.

"Last year a Linotype operator in Cincinnati named Walter Mills won," continued Miss Copeland, "and in 10 months the filly has won $5900. Mr. Mills knew practically nothing about horses until he won, but now he has his own colors and his wife has studied up so intensely on American racing that she is going to appear on the $64,000 Question as a horse expert. If she wins, they will buy more horses."

A 65-year-old grandmother in Danvers, Mass., won the previous year and she is so enthusiastic, according to our Aussie visitor, that she can frequently be seen out at the track at dawn with a stop watch while her horse works out.

This year's horse, a two-year-old colt sired by Devil Diver out of Sickle-Up, will be presented to the winner at the Kentucky Derby.

The contest sponsor pays for the horse's upkeep for three months. By then the owner can know whether his horse is as good at winning as the owner is. But even if you win a loser, according to Miss Copeland, you can sell it for many thousands of dollars because of its good blood.

What sort of names win horses? Apparently the most important thing about the entry is that it be a word nobody else would think of. 'Fillequine" was the first winner, and last year the linotyper — possibly inspired by one of his own mistakes while setting type —won with "Delphidessa."

ASK ME ANOTHER

By Harold Tuthill

"Has Eddie Arcaro, the well-known jockey, ridden at either of the East Side tracks—Fairmount or Cahokia—in the past few years?" Karl E. Deibel, 4142 Parker.

Arcaro rode Easy Homer to victory in the Fairmount track's Jockey Guild race, July 21, 1952. The horse paid $5.80 for a $2 win ticket. Gallant Tuck was second and Happy Jim third.

"Can you tell me who the men were to crack a cross bar on a soccer goal during a game or practice?" Harry Pieters, Washington, Mo.

Dent McSkimming, the soccer writer, said it probably had been done, but no records are kept of such happenings.

Utz, Medwick Feature Clinic

Former major leaguers and Coach Irv Utz of Washington University will be the principal speakers at the seventh annual Greater St. Louis Athletic Association baseball clinic to be held at 9:30 a.m. April 7, on the Bears' Liggett Field. The program will go on, rain or shine.

The players, all from the St. Louis area, include Joe Madwick, John Sturm, Jack Maguire, Boris Martin, Mark Christman, Heine Meine and John Tobin.

Washington University has invited the high school coaches and their players to be their guests in the afternoon for the Bears' game with University of Missouri.

All coaches in St. Louis and vicinity have been invited along with their teams. Those intending to attend the clinic are asked to contact Mike Riegert, 7837 Natural Bridge, Normandy 21, Mo.

Muny Senior Baseball Teams Begin Practice

Most of the Muny senior baseball teams will begin practice this afternoon at Fairground, Carondelet and Forest Park. Drills were to have opened last Sunday, but bad weather intervened.

Among the teams seeking players is Kutis South under new manager Larry Sucher. His team will work out at Forest Park, across from the Highlands, starting at 1 p.m. Candidates can call Sucher at FL 1-7100.

McKinley Nine Beats DuBourg

There was no Tampa Bay for a backdrop, no yachts sailing just beyond the outfield fence, and, more important, there was no blistering sunshine at Cherokee Park yesterday as McKinley and DuBourg high school baseball teams put on a poor-man's version of a Florida spring training baseball game.

The thermometer was flirting with 35 degrees when DuBourg, first at bat, basked out three runs. It was still under 36 degrees when McKinley came back for five runs in the second. And players of both sides were rather thoroughly chilled by the time the seventh inning was finished. McKinley had 10 runs on 11 hits; DuBourg was stopped with 5 runs on 8 hits.

Jim Harrod hurled four innings, Al Carden three for McKinley, Ed Rineagel, the DuBourg starter went four, Bob Ritchie hurled the fifth and sixth.

Rival coaches admitted it was a bit cold for baseball but the game was moved up from next Thursday because schools will be closed this week.

Illini Fencers Win First N.C.A.A. Crown

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 24 (AP)—Illinois closed with a flourish late today to stand off Columbia in the final round and win its first National fencing championship.

The Illini started the final day of the twelfth annual National Collegiate Athletic Association affair lodged in fifth place, moved into a tie with defending champion Columbia in the next-to-last round and then won by two points in the windup.

The uphill victory was gained despite a sprained ankle by Arthur Schankin, No. 1 fencer for the new champions, and an eye injury to Illinois Coach Maxwell Garrett, who was struck by a foil while watching a bout.

Illinois wound up with a final team score of 90 victories to 14 defeats. Columbia had an 88-16 mark and third place Navy 87-17.

Tennessee Senior Wins U.S. Golf Title

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 24 (UP)—Balding Judd Brumley, a hotel operator from Greenville, Tenn., used a charmed putter today to whip Pete Snekser of Hollywood, Fla., 3 and 2, for the American Senior Golf Association's amateur title.

The 59-year-old Brumley shot one-under-par golf for the 16 holes. At the turn he was three-under-par and held a three-up lead over the 56-year-old Snekser, who is the senior champion of Florida and New York State. He has a home at Buffalo, N.Y., as well as at Hollywood.

All Four St. Louis Olympic Soccer Stars in Tourney Match Today

Twin Bill At 1:15 at Fairground

By Dent McSkimming

All four of the Kutis club's Olympic team members, plus stars who were not eligible for Olympic trials because of professional baseball activity, will be in action this afternoon in the District championship tournament match against Liberty. Their game, second on the doubleheader program at Grounds Two, Fairground, will start at 3 p.m.

St. Ambrose, the team that will supply a greater portion of the talent for the C.Y.C. All-Stars who oppose Everton of the English League here, June 2, will get a good test in the day's first game, starting at 1:15. Against St. Ambrose will be a rugged, unpredictable Cal Gage team in which Bob Kehoe, Mickey McHugh, Ebbie McHugh and Bobby Burkes are key figures.

Simpkins, Sacred Heart, Spanish Society and Carondelet, which form the other quarter-final bracket, are idle today but will have the field all to themselves next Sunday.

Kutis Solid Favorite.

Tournament results do not support the notion that Kutis is a sure-fire winner over Liberty. Three weeks ago, Kutis got surprising opposition from St. Francis de Sales but won, 4-0, while Liberty turned in a 3-0 shutout over St. Paul. Off their showing that day, Kutis and Liberty are not far apart.

But, on the basis of Kutis's extensive intercity experience and Liberty's comparatively limited non-league activity, Kutis is an overwhelming choice. The rushing game of the typical St. Louis team has, in the past, given Kutis more trouble than the more deliberate style of foreign-trained players. One of the Liberty players who will have a special stake in today's game is Ollie Bohlman, whose game at left halfback is one of Liberty's strongest assets. Bohlman, a star for some years with Kutis and predecessor teams, was cut from the roster this season to make room for promising youngsters. He'll try extra hard today to prove that those youngsters have not yet caught up with him.

A Bouquet for John Traina.

Some spectators at last Sunday's Olympic soccer trial have expressed in writing their disappointment over the selection committee's failure to pick John Traina on the final 15.

Ray Wiegert, 5416 Elizabeth, writes, in part:

"The fact that four others from St. Louis were chosen is no excuse (for overlooking Traina). . . . If the selection committee is afraid of criticism, then the members don't belong on the committee. We were led to believe the final trial would determine places on the squad. Traina was the best wing half, and next to (Zenon) Snylyk, the best individual on the field. He was not chosen. Now, what are we to think of the integrity of the committee, or of the supposedly high moral and idealistic standards of the Olympics?"

Nicholas Osterholt writes:

"What is left of trust players should have for the game's officials when two who played so well as John Carden and John Traina are left off the final selection? Too much consideration was given the possible hurt feelings of officials of different localities. St. Louis fans were very fortunate to see such a presentation of good soccer, but officials should have made their decisions on the players' performances, not on the basis of whose feelings might be hurt."

Western Final Today.

Topping the national cup matches, Amateur and Open, scheduled today will be the meeting of Chicago Schwaben and Los Angeles Danes at Los Angeles. Winner of this western final will oppose the eastern winner (Hammerville of Pittsburgh or Hakoah of Brooklyn) for the national title. . . . Moscow's famous Dynamo soccer club will be unable to accept an invitation to tour Canada late this summer but another highly ranked club, Thelokomotivs, has offered to send its club in August.

To Report to Air Force.

GREEN BAY, Wis., March 24 (UP)—Halfback Veryl Switzer of the Green Bay Packers will report at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, next Wednesday for pilot training. He led the National Football League in punt returns last season.

Hart, Buchholz In Indoor Final This Afternoon

Veteran tennis player Ralph Hart would like to add the St. Louis District indoor championship to his collection but confronts the formidable Earl (Butch) Buchholz in the singles final today, at 1 p.m. at the 138th Infantry Armory, Market and Spring.

Hart, No. 2 seeded player who has never won an indoor tourney, breezed through two matches to reach the final on yesterday's program. He beat the Muny boys' champion, Charles McKinley, 6-2, 6-2, and then defeated Bob Ziervogel, 62, 6-4, in a semifinal.

Buchholz, a ninth grader at John Burroughs who rates as one of the country's top youthful players, came through with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Sam Yourtee and then was forced to fight hard to down Al Holtmann in a semifinal, 6-2, 7-5.

The women's singles final is also scheduled at 1 o'clock with Carole Boshard, former Muny champion, playing Erika Puetz, the reigning junior girls' titleholder. Miss Boshard pairs with Virgie Mueller to meet Mrs. Merceina Parker and Miss Puetz in the women's doubles final at 2.

Best action yesterday took place in the doubles event. Two small boys' stars, Rodney Susman and McKinley, upset veterans Karl Hodge and Ron Tolan in the first round, 9-11, 6-0, 6-3. Roy St. Jean had Ned Pfeifer for his partner to tally a 7-5, 7-5 triumph over second-seeded Bill Schock and Ben Bishop in the quarterfinals.

Royals Sell Borkowski.

MONTREAL, March 24 (UP)—The Montreal Royals of the International League sold outfielder Bob Borkowski to Portland of the Pacific Coast League in a straight cash deal.

250,000 See Cambridge Win Ancient Row

LONDON, March 24 (UP)—The Cambridge University crew stroked its way to its fifty-sixth triumph over Oxford today in the 102nd renewal of the Thames River rowing classic.

The heavier "Light Blues" won the toss for starting stations and chose the Surrey (southern shore). When the starting gun sounded, they immediately sprinted into the lead.

As an estimated crowd of 250,000 fans lined the shore from Putney to Mortlak, Cambridge, stroking smoothly, led throughout the four-mile, 374-yard course and flashed across the finish line one and one-quarter lengths ahead of its ancient rival.

The winning time was 18 minutes, 36 seconds, fourth fastest since the first race 127 years ago.

The Cambridge crew averaged six-feet, three inches in height and 183¼ pounds in weight to hold distinct advantages over Oxford. The heavier crew had won more than two-thirds of the past races.

Cambridge also had shown more power to pre-race trials and thus took to the water a six-to-four favorite. Stroking 36 beats to the minute, the husky crew sprinted to a length lead after the first 1000 yards and after a mile led by three quarters of a length. Cambridge never could shake off a game Oxford crew which crept up on Cambridge every time open water showed between the two shells. But Cambridge had no trouble keeping the lead to the end.

13th Title for Dillard, Sowell Stars in Relay

CHICAGO, March 24 (AP)—Harrison Dillard, 32-year-old Olympic champion, tied his own indoor 60-yard high hurdle world record tonight with a :47.1 performance in the Chicago Daily News relays.

Dillard, former Baldwin-Wallace star now running unattached out of Cleveland, nosed out Joe Savoldi of Michigan State to win his thirteenth hurdles title in the meet. Jack Mathews of Iowa was third.

A crowd of about 16,000 turned out for the twentieth relays meet at Chicago Stadium.

Dillard previously had scissored the 60-yard high barriers in :07.1 in 1948, 1948 and 1955.

Arnold Sowell, running a brilliant 880-yard anchor in 1:48, led Pittsburgh to the university two-mile relay crown. Sowell, 1000-yard world record holder, brought a tremendous round of applause when he made up a half lap deficit and beat Syracuse's anchorman, Bob Pugsley, by 15 feet.

Pitt's baton carrier including James Moore, Wendell Harford and Perry Jones—stepped the two miles in 7:35.7, seventenths of a second off the meet record.

Ted Wheeler, Iowa's Big Ten mile champion, won the Banker's Mile with his fastest time on record, 4:07.5.

Wheeler, a lanky Hawkeye senior, turned in the fastest indoor mile so far this season by an eligible American Olympic runner, a clocking bettered in the United States only by the 4:06.3 by Ireland's Ron Delaney at the Boston games.

Wheeler was pressed to the finish by the Chicago Track Club's Phil Coleman, a 24-year-old Army veteran who finished second to Wes Santee a year ago when the Kansas star, now under AAU suspension, won the event with a meet record of 4:04.2.

Si Green to Appear With All-Stars Here

Sihugo Green, a two-time All-America player from Duquesne University, will be among the college all-stars who will meet the Harlem Globetrotters at The Arena on Sunday, April 7. The game will be part of a basketball "world series" tour that begins April 1 in Madison Square Garden.

Other standouts on the college team will include Ohio State's Robin Freeman and Furman's Darrell Floyd, the nation's leading scorer the past season. Green had a 25-point average for Duquesne.

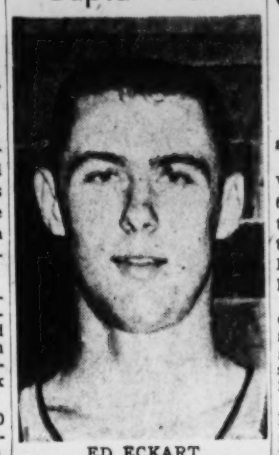

Illini Coach Hurt.

A fencer in one of the foil bouts spun away from an attacker and the end of the weapon struck Garrett across the left eye.

Navy doctors said the injury was not serious. They said the eyelid was lacerated but the eye itself was not damaged.

Captain-Elect

ED ECKART

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

VALPARAISO, Ind., March 25 — Ed Eckart, a junior from Collinsville, Ill., was voted captain-elect for next season's Valparaiso University basketball team. The 6-foot-5 forward had a 13.5 average for the Crusaders during the recent campaign.

Evidence of the heavy schedule that Valparaiso played is the all-opponent team that the players named. On it are Terry Rand of Marquette, Charlie Tyra of Louisville, George Linn of Alabama, Joe Sexson of Purdue and Bob Schrier of DePauw.

O'Connor Named Coach Of 14-Man Collegiate Olympic Basket Squad

EVANSTON, Ill., March 24 (AP)—Bucky O'Connor, coach of Iowa's runnerups in the N.C.A.A. basketball championships, will coach the 12-man college Olympic basketball squad at the trials at Kansas City next week.

O'Connor accepted the appointment after Phil Woolpert of San Francisco's N.C.A.A. turned it down.

Arthur (Dutch) Lonborg, chairman of the college group of the Olympic Basketball Committee, appointed O'Connor after Woolpert's refusal.

The appointment was to have gone to the coach of the N.C.A.A. champions but Woolpert pulled out after his Dons whipped Iowa, 83-71, in the championship game.

"The Olympics will be held in November and December," Woolpert said. "This will interfere with out basketball season. I couldn't get leave, and besides I'd like to relax for awhile."

Cone Hermann Rolls 605 in ABC Tourney

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROCHESTER, March 24—Veteran Cone Hermann shot a 605 in singles today, but was topped by other St. Louisans in the fifty-third annual American Bowling Congress tournament here.

Earl Sterling assured himself of a share of the singles prize money when he rolled 632 on games of 202, 203 and 227. The silver-haired Hermann bowled 209, 228 and 168.

Dick Volling of the G. B. No. 1 team rolled 606 as his squad had 2797. The G. B. No. 2 team shot 2762.

Temple's King Lear Most Valuable Player in N.C.A.A. Tourney

Beats Out Russell by Five Votes

CHICAGO, March 23 (UP)—Temple's sharpshooting guard, Hal (King) Lear, was named today as the most valuable player in the NCAA cage tourney, but San Francisco, national champion for the second straight year, and runnerup Iowa each placed two men on the all-tourney team.

Lear won the most valuable rating by five votes over San Francisco's two time All American center, Bill Russell, whose 26 points and 27 rebounds Friday night paced the Dons to an 83-71 victory over Iowa in the title game.

But Lear, whose team won third place with a 90-81 decision over Southern Methodist, set three scoring records, most points in a game with 48, most points in five-game series with 160, and most field goals in five games, 63.

Lear and Russell were the only unanimous choices to the all-tourney team selected by the 57 news and radio men on hand. Also selected were Iowa's forward, Carl Cain, and center, Bill Logan, while the fifth position went to San Francisco's star guard, Hal Perry.

It was the first time in seven tournaments that Russell failed to receive the "most valuable honor," which he won in the NCAA finals last year when he scored 118 points in five games for a record performance which Lear eclipsed.

Russell's defensive work was as important to San Francisco's victory as his scoring. He grabbed as many rebounds singlehanded as the top two players on Iowa, Logan with 15 and Cain with 12, and half a dozen times blocked lay-up shots by Hawkeye players which seemed certain to find the net.

"Russell was the difference," Hawkeye Coach Bucky O'Connor said. "It's hard to play when your shots are batted right back at you."

San Francisco's coach, Phil Woolpert also tabbed his center as the star, but gave nearly as much credit to sophomore guard, Gene Brown, who switched assignments at the half to "defense" Cain. He held the Iowa star to four points in the final 20 minutes for a 17-point game total.

San Francisco's triumph ran the Dons' victory string to 55 games, and broke Iowa's winning streak at 17. The Dons finished the current season with 29 straight victories. Their last defeat was by UCLA in the third game of the 1954-55 campaign.

Siebern Out for Week After Crash Into Wall

MIAMI, Fla., March 24 (UP)—Rookie outfielder, Norm Siebern, of the New York Yankees suffered no broken bones in his knees when he crashed into a wall on Thursday, but he will be lost to the team for about one week, it was learned today.

X-rays taken by Dr. Robert Phipse showed no broken bones. The swelling in both of Siebern's knees was reduced but he still limped from painful bruises.

The young outfielder, who is rated a good chance to make the Yankee varsity this spring, crashed into a wall of St. Petersburg Thursday in an exhibition game against the Cardinals. He boarded the bus for West Palm Beach Friday morning for a game against the Kansas City Athletics, but his knees stiffened so much during the trip that he had to be assisted from the bus.

Miss Stephens, with Coach Fred Moseley, organized a track and field clinic, yesterday, for the benefit of young women who hope to try out for the 1960 Olympics. Miss Stephens's time for the 100-yard dash at Berlin (11.5 seconds, still stands as the record. At the starting blocks with Miss Stephens is BARBARA HALKER of Maplewood High. Basket Rule Would Outlaw Goal-Dunking

CHICAGO, ILL., March 24 (AP)—The nation's basketball coaches recommended four proposed rule changes — mainly aimed at the extremely tall player—and rejected two other proposals.

The action which came at the thirtieth annual convention of the National Association of Basketball Coaches must be approved by the National Basketball Committee, the group which shares the collegiate and prep playing code.

By an 85-21 vote, the coaches approved a proposal against "goal dunking." The rule which now prohibits any defensive player from touching the ball on or over the hoop or cylinder would also apply to the offensive player.

This hits at such towering performers as San Francisco's Bill Russell and Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain, sensational Kansas freshman.

The penalty for violation would be loss of a basket if one is made or loss of the ball if the "dunking" fails to produce a score.

Another recommended rule change approved which would minimize the advantage of the tall player on offense calls for two defensive players to assume the positions closest to the basket on free throws. At present the home and visiting teams share these positions. This favoring vote was 125-6.

Another measure, approved 115-8, would prevent any ball thrown from out of bounds to pass over the backboard. This play also has been used to advantage by tall players. Penalty for violation would be loss of the ball.

The coaches also voted, 84-6, to prevent a free-throw shooter from stepping over the line until the ball hits the basket or backboard. This is aimed at preventing a big player from lunging in for a "dunk" shot on a rebound. A violation would nullify a resulting score.

The coaches voted against placing any time limit, such as the pros' 24-second rule, in shooting after gaining possession. The negative vote was 100-21.

They also rejected by an unspecified vote a proposal to treat all offensive fouls as violations and charge the offending player with a personal foul. This would have given the offended team the ball out of bounds instead of a free throw.

OWNERS who last season finished among the 10 money winners at Fairmount Park's 60-day-and-night thoroughbred race meeting will be back when the 1956 meeting opens the night of April 28. Among the latest to announce their intentions of returning are H. P. Triplett, whose horses earned $10,950 last season, and George Schatz, who took down $8000.

Schatz, who saddled eight winners, in addition to 13 seconds and four thirds, was tied for tenth among the trainers a year ago.

His King Gallant was one of the Fairmount meet's top money winning horses with $3400. The seven-year-old won four races and placed three times. Schatz also has Lewis A.D., a two-time winner here last season; Quick Imperial, which won twice, and Slamming Sam, in the winner's circle once during the 1955 campaign.

Top campaigner for the Triplett string, which won 10 races, as well as scoring nine seconds and five thirds a year ago, will again have the handicap performer Hopeful Sam. Another winner here a year ago was Eternal Sam.

Crackice Returning.

The seven-year-old Crackice, which won four consecutive races before running second and third in other events, will again race for Tom McCarty, who also has Blit McGee, first in two of four starts at the Collinsville course a year ago. . . . Crackice ranked fifth among the money winning horses with $3600 to his credit.

H. H. Rendleman's King Bebe, which ranked second to Fay's Reaper in money earnings a year ago, will come here from Hot Springs, where he won Friday in the $2600 feature race. Ridden by Harry Holcomb, a St. Louis jockey, King Bebe covered six furlongs over a heavy track in 1:13 3-5 in beating Tolerant and Bobelle. The Rendleman color-bearer paid $5.60, $3.40 and 2.40 across the board. King Bebe had a 2-4-3 record and $4750 in earnings at Fairmount a year ago.

Ten Gallon Hat.

Paul Larvis will be back with Ten Gallon Hat, a three-time winner at the course as well as Last Year and Ramonson. Sam Orr, the veteran O'Fallon (Ill.) trainer, will return with the U.S. horses—U.S. Navy, U.S. Mickey, U.S. Rose, U.S. Rocket, U.S. Weed and U.S. Jet. The last two are two-year-olds. Also in the Orr string are Dr. Reese and Fence Line.

Luther Fryar, Collinsville, who trains for A. P. Hensley, has Barbie B, Sunny Nick, Hachote and Little Hach. William Mossey and J. L. Harrington are coming here from Arizona, while George Ellis, from Sunshine Park, will be back for another season. Others from Florida will be C. E. Green, W. E. Harned and C. W. Kendle. Tom Darrus, who topped the trainers at the track several years ago will return for the coming meeting as will Floyd and Everett Schultz.

FAIRMOUNT NOTES: — General Manager Ray Bennigsen says that more Illinois owners than ever before will be represented. . . . About 300 of the 800 horses which have been approved for the meeting at Racing Secretary Jack Klucina are already on the grounds. . . . A thin layer of sand will be sprinkled on the track as soon as weather permits. . . . There's plenty of activity every morning with the equines going through their training preps. . . . The racing at the Collinsville course will be on the five nights a week basis. . . . Afternoon races on Memorial day and July 4.

Queen Mother's Horse, Leading Grand National, Collapses

E.S.B. Is Winner in Field of 29

AINTREE, England, March 24 (AP)—Queen Mother Elizabeth's fine jumper, Devon Loch, running three lengths ahead with only 40 yards to go, collapsed in exhaustion today and E.S.B. swept home to win the most sensational Grand National Steeplechase in living memory.

Only a collapse or sudden death could stop Devon Loch from becoming the first royal horse in 56 years to capture racing's toughest steeplechase.

He had taken the last of 30 stiff jumps boldly and surely, and all that remained was a flat run to the finish of the 4-mile, 856-yard course.

But Devon Loch came apart, sinking to his knees, a spent and floundering horse, even as the huge mass of 200,000 spectators began shouting "To The Queen!" Thousands of bowler hats were raised and many were tossed into the air in tribute to the widow of King George VI. Then the horse gave way and the roars of applause turned into groans of disappointment.

Woman Owner.

E.S.B., owned by Mrs. Leonard Carver, wife of an English auctioneer, finished 10 lengths ahead of Gentle Moya, one of two mares in the 110th running of the race. Another 10 lengths away in third place came Royal Tan, 1954 Grand National winner.

E.S.B. was 100-7 in the betting, while Gentle Moya, owned by J. J. Straker, was 22-1, and Royal Tan went off at 28-1. Royal Tan ran in the colors of Prince Aly Khan, who bought the 12-year-old veteran after his victory two ytars ago.

Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret witnessed the dramatic ending of their mother's hopes for victory this year. M'as-Tu-Vo, another horse running in the Queen Mother's colors, also came to grief earlier in the race.

In the stands were Georgi Malenkov, former Premier of the Soviet Union, and other Russian officials.

Twenty-nine horses started after Victory Morn was scratched shortly before post time. Only nine finished. An Irish hospitals sweepstakes is based on the result of the race.

E.S.B., who never led in the betting odds, carried 157 pounds, while Gentle Moya had 142, Royal Tan 169 and Devon Loch 158.

Jockey Dave Dick rode the winner, named after his sire, English Summer, and dam, Bider. Last year the brown gelding fell at the famous No. 6 jump, Becher's Brook.

Time of the race was 9 minutes, 21 seconds, an exceptionally fast clocking. The record is 9:20 2-5, set in 1934 by Golden Miller and equaled by Bogskar in 1940.

Fourth place went to Eagle Lodge, followed by Key Royal, Martinique, Carey's Cottage, Clearing and Wild Wisdom.

"It's a tragedy, it's a bloody stinking tragedy," the crowd mumbled as Devon Loch got back to his feet. Jockey Dick Francis, crying like a child, dismounted and stumbled around the course in a rage.

The Queen, the Queen mother and Princess Margaret were on the point of congratulating one another. Their elation turned instantly to dismay.

The Queen Mother slowly lowered her binoculars, turned to her daughters with a faint smile, and shrugged her shoulders. The Queen fidgeted and shook her head, flinging out her hands in a gesture of bitter disappointment. The princess royal, the queen's aunt, kept repeating "Oh no, oh no!"

Royal Horse Won in 1900.

The last royal horse to win a Grand National was Ambush II in 1900, wearing the silks of the then Prince of Wales, later Edward VII.

The nearest thing to a finish like this came in 1936 when the bridle of Davy, ridden by Lord Milmay, snapped shortly before the finish and his horse bolted off the course. That historic incident occurred only a few yards from the spot where Devon Loch collapsed. An assistant to Trainer Peter Caselet said Devon Loch was uninjured.

Skies were overcast for the race, but the track was firm and fast.

"I did not have a penny bet today, said Mrs. Carver later. "Imagine that. My 12-year-old daughter sent me a shilling (14 cents) to bet and I forgot to lay it."

The victory was worth a purse of $24,416 to Mrs. Carver, who bought E.S.B. in 1952 for $21,000.

Texas Pro 18 Under Par in Florida Event

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 24 (UP)—Billy Maxwell piled up a five-stroke lead in the $15,000 Miami Beach Open today with a three-under par 69 for a three-round total of 198.

The red-haired Odessa, Texas, pro had whipped par on the 54 holes by 18 strokes for a lead that will be hard to beat in Sunday's final round.

Gardner Dickinson Jr., of Panama City Beach, Fla., who tied Maxwell in the opening round when both shot a course-tying record of 64, caught fire on the front nine today. He went out in five-under par 31 but said he "just couldn't put them in" on the back nine and finished with a 67 for a total of 203.

The 26-year-old Maxwell came off the final green fighting to control his ire at photographers who he said made his miss "at least two putts I should have sunk."

"Tell those guys I'm no Cary Middlecoff," Maxwell snapped. "They make me nervous."

Tied for third were Jimmy Demaret of Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., who shot a 60 today, and Pete Cooper of Detroit who had a 72. Both have 54-hole totals of 204.

Mike Souchak, Grossinger, N.Y., Wow Finsterwald, Bedford Heights, O., and Bob Inman of Detroit were grouped at 205.

Gene Littler of Palm Springs, Calif., posted the best round of the day, a seven-under-par 65.

A Chrysler took the Langhorne 250-miler and a Ford copped the Memphis Grand National—all using CHAMPION SPARK PLUGS! Putting new CHAMPIONS in the engine before a race is like putting gas in the tank—every race driver does it. There were 13 different makes of cars entered in those races and they all used new CHAMPIONS for top performance. Even if you don't drive in stock car races, you'll get the most out of your car when you put in new 5-rib Champions every 10,000 miles.

Double Victory!

OLDSMOBILE ROCKETS TO TWO FIRST PLACES IN MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN!

Power-Famous Rocket Engine proves its economy as 88 and 98 Both top their fields in gruelling 1468-mile economy test!

The record-breaking Rocket has done it again! And Oldsmobile's new Jetaway Hydra-Matic has proved its economy in the world's most famous economy test!

Oldsmobile is the only manufacturer to take two first places in the 1956 Mobilgas Economy Run! Without fanfare, two strictly stock Oldsmobiles were entered. In a blaze of glory, both won decisive victories!

Here are the facts—

An Oldsmobile 88 chalked up a win in Class C with a record of 19.7044 miles per gallon (50.8077 ton-miles per gallon).*

An Oldsmobile ninety-eight took a solid first in Class D—turing in 18.6694 miles per gallon (50.9488 ton-miles per gallon).

On the route from Los Angeles to Colorado Springs, cars faced all kinds of driving conditions, from mountain to desert roads. Altitude varied from 203 feet below sea level in Death Valley to 11,312 above sea level at Monarch Pass. Weather conditions ran the gamut, to put it mildly, for the 4-day run.

In plain words, this test conclusively proves car performance, and stamina—as well as economy!

Oldsmobile's "twin win" is equally conclusive proof that the Rocket's got it—in more ways than one! "The Rocket's got it."

And that's important to you. Important because there's a Rocket for every pocket—ranging from the budget-priced 88 . . . the action-packed super 88 . . . to the luxurious ninety-eight.

And no matter which Oldsmobile you favor, you'll find impressive leadership on every count. Styling leadership that makes Oldsmobile stand out from the crowd. Leadership in driving ease and riding comfort.

Leadership, of course, in performance and economy—now reconfirmed in the Mobilgas run.

What's more, your investment holds when you go over to Olds. You get top value today—top resale tomorrow. Good news, too, Oldsmobile prices actually start below many models in the lowest price field.

We invite you to visit our showroom and see for yourself. There never was a better time to get out of the ordinary . . . into an Olds!

*Ton-miles per gallon is the official Mobilgas economy run yardstick. It is computed by multiplying the car weight (including occupants) by miles traveled and dividing by the gallons of gas consumed. The competition is conducted under the auspices of the United States Automobile Club.

Mr. Saults Learns About Illinois Fishing

SOME St. Louis fishermen think Dan Saults made a bad cast by asserting he never met a Missourian who fished in Illinois but met many Illinoisans who fish constantly in Missouri.

Dan, editor of the Missouri Conservation Commission's magazine, made the comment in offering a defense of fishing in this state, after Outdoors quoted figures showing Missouri had dropped out of the first 10 states in sale of angling permits.

Referring to the statement by Saults, Francis Littig, 6521 Loran street, wrote:

"This letter will introduce myself and my wife who have fished in Illinois for the past 15 years and more. We fish the Illinois river and sloughs from Grafton past Hardin. In fact, we know these waters so thoroughly we call the fish by their first names.

"Start at Ross's boat dock opposite Marquette State Park, continue north, pass a lagoon, then a ferry, then another boat dock near Nutville, cross the Illinois river at Hardin. Count the Missouri state automobile tags. They outnumber the Illinois.

"I used to be a sucker and buy Missouri licenses. I fished the Alton dam, Winfield dam, Clarksville dam. How can you catch fish in Missouri? Open the dams—close the dams. Water one weekend; dry the next. Spawn has to have water to hatch in.

"I will settle for Illinois fish—in fact, they taste better."

'Thousands Fish in Illinois.'

Rex Carleton, 6219 Dardanella avenue, Pine Lawn, said, in another reference to the statement by Saults:

"How can he possibly know of the many Illinoisans who fish in Missouri without knowing of the thousands who fish in Illinois?

"I have met fellows who claim they don't even buy a Missouri license any more—Illinois only. I can name quite a number who fish three and four days a week—two thirds of that time in Illinois.

"Mr. Saults should take a trip to Maredosia Bay, Hardin, Grafton, Swan Lake, Piassa Creek, Gillespie, Murphysboro, and count the St. Louis cars.

"I'm not knocking Missouri fishing, for I really love the clear streams of our state, but when I have only one day, or half a day, where do I go? Yep, Illinois!"

Another St. Louisan wrote: "If Mr. Dan Saults wants to meet some Missouri fishermen who fish in Illinois he can take a ride across the Jefferson Barracks bridge.

"There are 21 lakes within 20 miles from the bridge — at Columbia, Belleville, East St. Louis, O'Fallon and Chautauqua. Let him ask where these fishermen are from."

This sportsman complained that the Missouri Conservation Commission has failed to provide any good spots for fishermen within 100 miles of St. Louis. The Busch Wildlife Area at Weldon Springs is inadequate because it is open only "during the hot months," he said.

Dr. F. L. Finley, 9438 Lackland avenue, Overland, wrote:

"I read your article on why fishing is dropping off in Missouri.

"Why doesn't the conservation commission remove some of the useless laws (as tagging a minnow bucket)?

"Remove the season entirely. Fishermen won't fish in cold weather anyway and, if they do, won't catch anything.

"Have the commission be less dogmatic with the fisherman."

Dr. Finley suggested that Missouri reduce the cost for its non-resident fishing license, saying this move would encourage sportsmen from other states to visit and spend money.

Tips on Spring Fishing.

The following advice for fishing is offered by Southern Illinois University, as a result of research by its co-operative fisheries laboratory and the Illinois Department of Conservation:

"Minnow fishing is an early spring favorite of the crappie and bass devotee, and success is more likely if a hook of one-half inch gape (No. 6) is used, with the bait hooked above the backbone. Use one or two BB shot and a light float on a 6-pound test line, fishing three to six feet deep.

"Since crappie move in schools, it's best to move the bait until the fish are encountered, or, in some cases anchor and fish along the shoreline until feeding schools pass by. Once the school is located, restrict your fishing to that exact location.

"Bluegill are usually caught with worms, crickets or cockroaches. The ideal bluegill rig consists of a long pole, a six-pound test line, a light float, one or two BB shot for weight and a hook with a quarter-inch gape (No. 8 or 10).

"Fish deep for the larger ones, particularly as summer approaches, using crickets or roaches. Retrieve the bait frequently and cast again, letting it drift down to deeper water.

"Bluegill are easily frightened, so the fisherman should keep quiet while trying to locate a school."

Spring in North Carolina

—North Carolina News Bureau.

Azaleas, moss-hung liveoaks and stately buildings make the gardens and plantations of southeastern North Carolina famous tourist objectives during March and April. Wilmington will celebrate the blooming of more than a million azaleas with the ninth annual Wilmington Azalea Festival April 5-8. Typical of the countryside around Wilmington and the neighboring port city of Southport is this photograph of Orton Plantation in Azalea time.

NEW CAUSEWAY AT CAPE BRETON WORLD'S DEEPEST

The $23,000,000 Canso causeway, which opened last year to automobile traffic, has brought Nova Scotia's Cape Breton Island one-half hour closer to the mainland of North America. The mile-long, 80-foot-wide man-made finger of land is the deepest causeway in the world.

After decades of having to wait for ferries, motorists may now drive swiftly and with safety to the island on a thoroughfare that enhances the natural beauty of the approach to Cape Breton. The Strait of Canso, at least for transportation purposes, is now a geographical memory. Before the causeway's completion, Cape Breton's 160,000 residents were dependent on a system of railway and highway ferries for communication across the strait.

The causeway is expected to bring many more tourists to enjoy the attractions of Cape Breton Highlands National Park and the scenic drive along the Cabot trail. The curved roadway links two scenically beautiful shores. The water's greatest depth is 218 feet and the causeway attains an ocean-floor width of 860 feet.

RESTORED TOWN

The restored ghost town of Virginia City, Mont., is now open to the vacationing public. The town is a fascinating museum of shops, hotels, saloons, stables, offices and a theater, all left over from the days when it was the gold-rush capital of Montana Territory.

Wooden sidewalks, swinging doors that lead to the Bale of Hay saloon, and melodramas at the Old Stone Barn are among the attractions.

U.S. POST OFFICE ESTABLISHED AT MERAMEC CAVERNS

Uncle Sam has established a post office at 100,000,000-year-old Meramec Caverns, Stanton, Mo.

The five-story underground emporium which is open all year-round was selected by the United States Government for a new branch post office because it attracts over 350,000 persons annually and most everyone sends letters and souvenirs from there.

So many people are intrigued by the Meramec Caverns postmark that they send in letters from all over the nation to be mailed by Postmaster Lester Dill.

Tourists visiting the cave get a kick out of sign there:

"Neither snow nor rain or heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

Ironically, Meramec Caverns served as the hideout for Jesse James and his gang which obstructed greatly the delivery of United States mail in the 1870s.

Ancient Font.

The baptisimal font at St. Peter's Church, St. George, Bermuda dates back to 1450. It is made from two pieces of English stone, with eight sides ornamented by crosses, and was brought to Bermuda by the first settlers.

The Lush Beauty of Miami Beach

—Miami Beach News Bureau.

Indian Creek is one of the many waterways that add to the beauty of Miami Beach. Hotels, homes and apartment buildings line the shores, together with coconut palms and other tropical trees and shrubs.

Fishing Fine at Miami Beach During Next Three Months

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—April Fool is on the fish at Miami Beach.

While vacationers come here for many things, from honeymoons to horse racing, some come solely to fish and others spend a substantial part of their time at the sport. For these there is no better season than April, May and June in these waters.

Topping the list is tarpon, now beginning to appear in large numbers in their annual northward migration. The silver kings come in assorted sizes, from 20 pounds on up to close to 200, and offer some of the finest game fishing in the world.

The ship channel at the south end of the main Miami Beach island is one of the famous spots for tarpon, and is but a few minutes from the many hotels and apartments here. As a matter of fact, the lights from buildings on shore give some illumination for the angler drifting at slack tide at night, a favorite time for tarpon fishing.

Numerous boats, some with skippers who specialize exclusively on tarpon, are here for charter by visitors. Tackle is provided with the boats, as well as know-how for those out for the first time. However, the light tackle fancier usually has to furnish his own rod, which saves argument when a big fish runs away with the rig.

White marlin likewise are more numerous in spring, although they do not come in the numbers that accompany the tarpon migration. The white marlin normally runs in the same weight class as the sailfish, which it somewhat resembles, and like the sail is taken on trolled lures in the Gulf Stream, here about two miles offshore.

Many of the same craft used for tarpon are available for trolling, and may be chartered for a half-day or a week. The usual price is $75 a day for a party of six, and thus if split by three couples comes to $25 for a full day at sea. A crew of two operates the boat, normally a twin-engine cruiser 34 to 40 feet long, and prepares bait and tackle. Ocean fishing may yield, in addition to the billfish, such trophies as wahoo, dolphin and bonito.

Inshore waters in the protected reaches of Biscayne and Florida bay may be fished from outboards, for rent at many docks. Fly, spinning and casting rods all are used in quest of bonefish, snapper, snook, jack, channel bass, permit and other species, as well as small tarpon.

Of recreations other than fishing the Miami Beach visitor has many from which to choose. Horse racing is on the calendar through April 21 at Gulfstream Park, and dog racing will be in progress at one or more tracks in the area until June. Night club entertainment includes some of the better known stars in the field, appearing both in clubs and hotel dance spots.

Early April special events include the Metropolitan Miami Flower show, to be held April 5-8; a concert by the University of Miami Symphony orchestra with Sir Thomas Beecham as guest conductor April 15, and the big drop to spring hotel rates April 1.

This latter means April visitors can enjoy all the wintertime activities of this resort capital and pay hardly more than half the mid-season hotel tariffs.

Swimming, golf, tennis, sightseeing and similar recreation is, of course, part of the all-year picture here.

ANCIENT TEMPLES

Visitors to Guatemala, just south of Mexico, see the ruins of mysterious stone temples built by the Maya race centuries before the time of Christ. Many present day Indian tribes, descendants of these builders, still live with their ancient customs and colorful costumes in the mountains of Gautemala.

Cold Germs Rare.

Cold germs are rare in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., since windows may be left open day and night in buildings.

Swiss Leaders Speak:

By MAX PETITPIERRE

Head of the Federal Political Department of Switzerland

TRADITIONALLY, Switzerland and the United States maintain warm and friendly relations, expressed in continuous and abundant exchange of scientific, cultural and economic activity.

Though the countries are unlike in size and materials resources, their peoples have much in common with will to work, technical know-how, creative imagination. Perseverance and continuity of success thus-wise in Switzerland is made possible by a political system founded on the great principles of freedom of the individual and equality of the citizens, as in the United States.

This community of ideas found positive expression in Switzerland in 1848 when the legislature (then called a diet) adopted two-fold representation of the people, made Switzerland into a Federal state similar to the United States.

Three principles, respect of the individual, a just balance between federal and cantons' (states') powers, and permanent neutrality have since been Swiss guiding lights. Thus three different ethnic and linguistic groups have maintained unity, prevented breach of the peace from outside.

This is not passive policy, but active, with an efficient defense system that lays a heavy burden on state's finances and the citizen-soldier, also calls for a duty of international solidarity as a matter of enlightened self-interest and moral obligation. Thus Switzerland always strives, within its means, to contribute to peaceful settlement of problems between nations, participates in work of international organizations so far as compatible with the policy of neutrality.

Because we feel that we pursue the same goals of peace and collaboration we hope and trust the confidence and friendship between Switzerland and the U.S. may continue and increase to our mutual benefit.

By Federal Councillor THOMAS HOLENSTEIN

Head of Federal Department of Public Economy

ABOUT one-tenth as big as California, with one-fifth of that small area unproductive, Switzerland, nevertheless, maintains a sound currency, a prosperous economy and one of the highest standards of living in the world.

This is because the Swiss have developed industry requiring relatively small amounts of raw materials, but developing high quality finished products demanded in world markets. A third of total production is exported, so Swiss always have championed free world trade. Our customs tariff is low, there are almost no import quotas (except for some agricultural items) and Swiss currency is freely convertible.

Switzerland traditionally is a customer of the United States, in 1955 bought $193,000,000 of American goods, sold Americans $151,000,000 of Swiss goods, a favorable balance to the U.S. of $42,000,000, which is about typical.

Swiss are currently unhappy, though, over recent restrictions by the U.S. on import of Swiss made watches and watch parts, because about 95 per cent of this industry's production is exported, much of it to the U.S. With much new capital recently poured into new development and expansion in this industry, a feeling of insecurity has thereby resulted. We are hopeful this matter may be reviewed to the end that a solution satisfactory to both countries may be achieved.

By HENRY DE TORRENTE

Swiss Envoy to the United States

IT is a pleasure to salute the special issue with which the St. Louis Post-Dispatch has decided to honor Switzerland. We are grateful that opportunity should thus be given to the Swiss to tell the American public a little more about their thoughts and achievements without going as far as boasting about them, and also about their problems. This is a typical and positive instance of the application of two principles which are just as fundamental to Swiss as to American thinking: First, that democracy stands and falls with the freedom of the press. Second, to achieve real understanding we must be ready to converse with one another. There is a phrase in Swiss-German, which expresses this colloquially: "Mer muess halt rede mitenand"! "One just has to talk to each other." And that is what this special issue means, among other things, to its Swiss contributors.

SWITZERLAND SPEAKS TO AMERICA

Swiss Invest Heavily In U. S. Securities

By RUD. SPEICH Chairman, Swiss Bank Corporation

FOR many decades the United States of America has constituted a strong attraction for Switzerland, the traditional debtor land of Europe. For a long time America received many Swiss emigrants, all of them with manifold qualifications. Furthermore, from a very early time, a flow of Swiss capital, only interrupted by wars, has contributed to the development of American economy. American stocks, particularly those of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania Railroads, have been officially quoted and traded at Swiss stock exchanges since the turn of the century.

In 1952 the total of Switzerland's capital investments abroad was estimated at about $2,300,000,000. At the end of 1954, American calculations of the Swiss capital investments in the United States showed about $1,900,000,000. This, however, did not include direct investments of Swiss industrial concerns which were valued for the same year for the total dollar area (U.S. and Canada) at $70,000,000. Taking into account other capital exports which are hard to estimate, the sum of Switzerland's capital investments in the U.S.A. may be rated much higher.

Today transfer of Swiss capital to the United States is conditioned primarily by considerations concerning economic risks. A country such as Switzerland, depending to a large degree on the world boom, seeks to secure and strengthen its own economic position.

The economic and political potential of the U.S., her enormous home market and her liberal economic setup are the most important factors which have contributed to the accumulation of the extensive Swiss capital investments abroad.

Capital export has become imperative for Swiss economy during recent years. A consistently highly favorable balance of trade not only causes a glut of the Swiss capital market but also leads, in connection with the interests of foreign trade, almost automatically to an important export of capital.

For capital investment in the U.S., profits are not always the decisive factor, in spite of the usually very attractive yields of the American stocks. Factors weighed equally are those concerning economic policies, such as the free payments system. This situation is sufficiently illustrated by the accumulation of Swiss "idle money" in the U.S., i.e. Swiss dollar assets yielding an insignificant profit, or none at all. During recent years, however, a shifting of dollar assets into industrial stocks has taken place to a certain degree.

The liberal handling of capital transfers between the two countries makes a precise estimate of Swiss investments in the U.S. more difficult. Luckily, the very impressive development of Swiss capital investments in the U.S.A. can be ascertained relatively easily through the survey of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Swiss Capital Investments in the U.S.A.

	in million of U. S.-dollars

Private assets	415.5	484.5	570.3	537.0
Securities	501.0	633.0	903.0	1,353.0
Purely private capital investments of Switzerland without direct investments of Swiss private enterprise	916.5	1,117.5	1,473.3	1,890.0

Survey of Current Business August 1955.

Even considering both depreciation, which was by no means insignificant, and the rise of stock prices in these figures, the increase in Swiss private capital investments, as far as it can be expressed in figures, must be called enormous. The figures, $916,500,000 in 1947, and $1,890,000,000 at the end of 1954, show an increase of 106.2% within seven years.

The most expressive development is to be found in U.S. securities. Switzerland, owning $1,353,000,000 in 1954, has become the top alien stockholder of U.S. securities (corporate stocks). Next on the list are the United Kingdom and The Netherlands, the latter showing a much lower figure than the U.K.

Foreign Holdings of U.S. Domestic Stocks in 1954:

Survey of Current Business August 1955; Federal Reserve Bulletin, October 1955.

So far the results achieved with carefully selected U.S. securities in general were very satisfying. Investments of this kind therefore are being recommended particularly to people with considerable means and adequate solvency. Carried by the waves of the post-war boom, Swiss purchases of securities in the U.S.A. show a continuously upward tendency:

Swiss Net Purchases of Long Term U.S. Securities:

) Decline resulting from the blocking of Swiss assets in the U. S. A. As appeared in: Federal Reserve Bulletin, October, 1955.*

Owing to continuous advertising and the continuation of the boom, the Investment Trusts handling Swiss investments in the U.S.A. managed to greatly raise the interest of a growing number of capitalists with small or medium means for investments guaranteeing a great distribution of risks. In recent years these Trusts were able to constantly enlarge their holdings; this, however, was partly due to profits by exchange. The $145,000,000 thus placed in the U.S. up to the end of 1954 represent more than 67% of the sum total invested abroad by the Swiss Investment Trusts. The net yields of these Trusts are of from 3.7% to 4%, a profit considered very satisfying by Switzerland. The Trusts invest their money in carefully selected U.S. stocks which are either first-rate or promising for the future, such as Public Utilities, the petroleum, chemical or pharmaceutical industries. The machine, electrical and automobile industries are particularly favored.

Swiss Say Thanks For Atomic Reactor

IT IS with a feeling of profound gratitude that we take charge of the research reactor which the Atomic Energy Commission of the United States has permitted us to purchase.

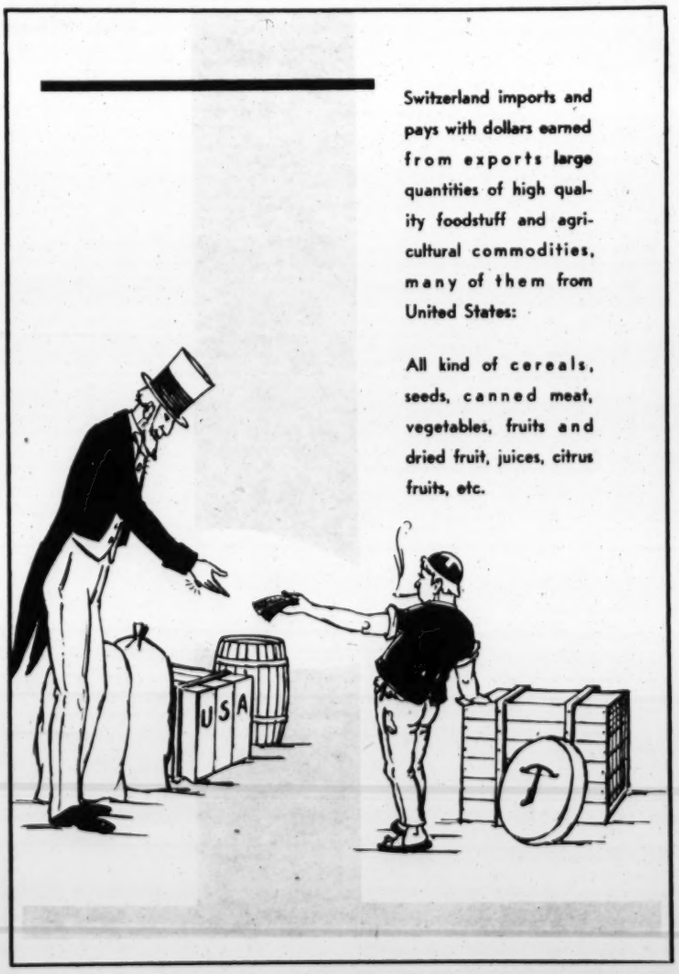

Ever since President Eisenhower proclaimed willingness of the United States to assist other nations, not yet equally advanced in Atomic science, with scientific knowledge and fissionable material, he started another of those generous actions of the U.S.A. which, similar to the Marshall plan, is bound to have profound influence on the destinies of the world.

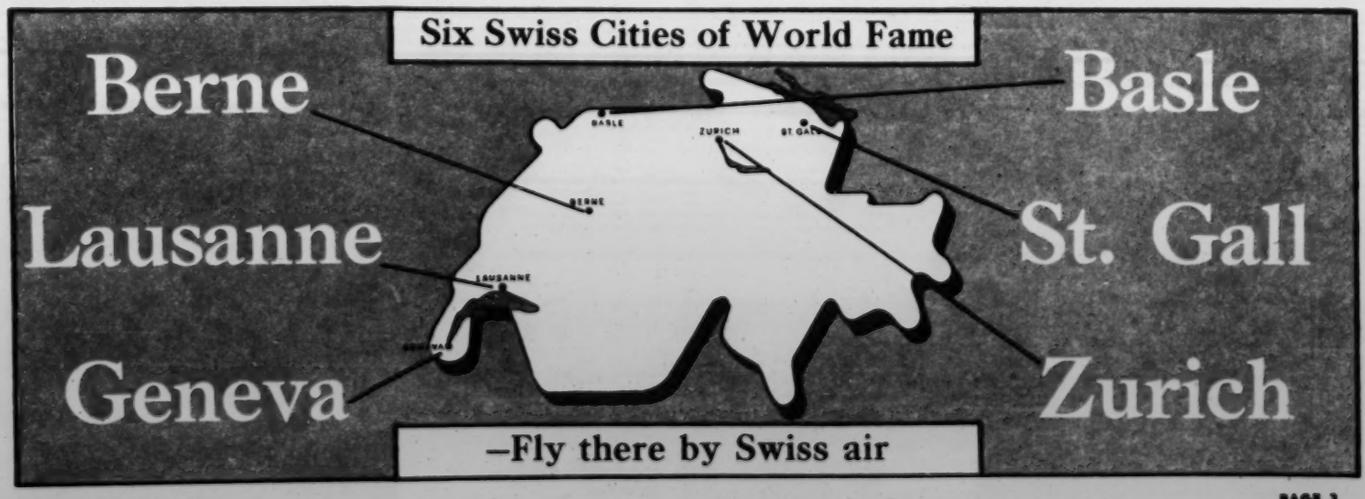

The reactor has been acquired and financed by the newly formed Reactor Corporation.

In my opening address on formation of this corporation last March 1, I expressed hope that sums contributed by our industry, commerce, and financial institutions, in excess of the amounts allotted to them for the construction of our heavy water reactor, could soon provide a reactor with enriched material.

This wish has now been fulfilled by a co-operation of free enterprise on one side and the generosity of the United States Atomic Energy Commission on the other.

The setting to work of the new reactor will mark the first practical step in our country in an endeavor to bring abundant and cheap power for peaceful activities to all sections of the community.

Insurance Export Spreads Swiss Firms' Risks

By Dr. Marcel Grossmann
Professor St. Gall Commercial High School

"SWITZERLAND is the world's second largest insurance exporting country, exceeded only by Britain. Both directly and in reinsurance, Swiss companies operate all over the world."

There are 86 private insurance companies registered in Switzerland, of which 61 are Swiss, the other 25 foreign; of these, 16 Swiss and 3 foreign companies write life business. Though foreign companies are 29% of the total number, their participation in direct Swiss business is small; in 1953 it amounted to 1.5%.

Total premium income of Swiss insurance and reinsurance business for 1953 was, in U.S. dollars, $688,000,000. Of this, two-thirds of the premium income of direct insurance companies and as much as nine-tenths of the premium income of professional reinsurance companies was derived from business abroad.

During recent years Swiss insurance has made great efforts to provide cover for new insurance needs, in addition to writing the traditional forms of life, accident, liability, fire and marine business. In this connection, it has been possible in Switzerland, from Oct. 1, 1953, to obtain, under movable and immovable property insurance, automatic cover on a private basis against damage caused by the forces of nature. This supplementary insurance insures against damage by hazards such as landslides and collapse of rock, falling stones, avalanches, snow pressure, windstorms, rising waters, inundations and hail.

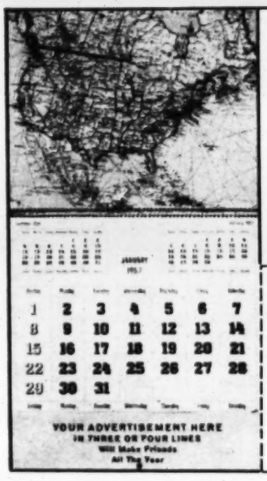

New branches of insurance have recently come into existence, such as disablement and poliomyelitis, sickness and accident double benefits in conjunction with life insurance, and protection against the cost of long illnesses and critical operations.

Burglary insurance can be supplemented by insurance against simple theft. Business-interruption insurance is becoming increasingly popular to recover irreducible costs during the indemnity period and against forfeited profits. One of the most recent types of business written is "rain insurance" for holidays at home and abroad, covering wholly or in part the costs of the journey and accommodation in event of the holiday being ruined by weather.

The small size of our country has led many insurance companies to develop an active business abroad in order to achieve the necessary technical spread of risk. In certain cases these companies have founded numerous branches in foreign countries, and sometimes they have acquired shares in existing foreign companies and either taken them over completely or founded their own enterprises. In 1953 the premium income from abroad for non-life insurance, without reinsurance assumed, amounted to $147,200,000, while that from Swiss business ran to only $99,100,000.

Normally Switzerland's trade balance is a passive one, i.e., in general she imports more goods than she exports. Compensation is provided by income from the tourist trade and from services based on the exporting of capital, as well as from insurance and reinsurance.

Swiss insurance companies are subject to strict supervision by the Federal Insurance Bureau, similar to that imposed by the different states of North America. Although in practice the regulations placed in Switzerland upon foreign insurance companies are not more stringent than those for Swiss companies, the participation of foreign enterprises in Swiss home business is, as already mentioned, rather small.

Big Banks Handle Every Kind of Transaction

By DR. ALBERT LINDER

Chief General Manager of the Swiss Credit Bank (Credit Suisse), Zurich

SWITZERLAND'S economy, like that of the United States, is geared to a high rate of savings and capital outlays. Of especial importance in such an economy is the accumulation and free supply of capital funds, which accounts for existence in Switzerland of a banking system more closely-knit than any other in the world. At the end of 1954, there were in operation 3876 banking offices for a population of about five million, an average of one banking office for every 1284 inhabitants.

There are five institutions traditionally regarded as the country's big commercial banks. Amongst these, only the three leading establishments, the Swiss Credit Bank (Credit Suisse), the Swiss Bank Corporation and the Union Bank of Switzerland, are "commercial" offering complete international facilities. All were founded in the second half of the nineteenth century, assumed their present structure, characterized by versatility, before the first world war. These banks engage both in lending and security transactions and devote considerable attention to acquisition of deposits. They maintain branches in all important Swiss cities and their activities extend beyond national boundaries, in keeping with dependence of the Swiss on world trade, two fifths of the national income being derived from foreign sources.

Coverage of foreign financial centers is primarily assured by an international network of correspondents. With a view to strengthening their ties with the United States, the Swiss Credit Bank (Credit Suisse) and the Swiss Bank Corporation have set up branches in New York. These foreign agencies have become valuable elements for their respective organizations, and much the same can be said of affiliated companies which the two banks constituted in North America, to provide services for the investment and custody of funds belonging to the mother companies' clients.

Unlike most American commercial banks, which concentrate on domestic business and are prohibited from underwriting and dealing in corporate securities, operations of the Swiss "big three" are consistently world-wide and comprise the entire range of banking transactions.

Granting of credit facilities to trade and industry still constitutes the solid basis of their operations. The banks have always been prepared to extend time loans for financing industrial expansion. To an appreciable extent, however, medium term credit (three to five years) also is accorded in connection with exports. These have expanded rapidly since the end of the second world war and have gone far in contributing towards reconstruction of Europe.

Scarcely less important than lending, is the banks' security business, which Switzerland's big banks promote in all forms. They concern themselves with safekeeping, buying and selling of securities both domestic and foreign. They are directly represented on the Swiss stock exchanges, and fulfill functions identical with those performed by brokers in the United States. As underwriters of new issues they possess considerable distributive ability, even by international standards, thanks to their unrelenting efforts to build up a large and faithful clientele. This ability, coupled with the solid monetary position of the country, enabled them after the second world war to open up, at a comparatively early date, the Swiss capital markets to deserving foreign debtors.

Chemists Produce for Home, Export

LACK of raw materials on the one hand, but high quality of finished products on the other, are characteristic of most Swiss industry. This is particularly true of the chemical industry. Air, water and salt are the only things furnished at home, yet finished products are extensive and varied, and are used for the daily requirements of medicine, agriculture, and a growing number of other fields.

Switzerland has made important contributions to advance of the chemical industry since its beginning. This was possible because the unfavorable situation with regard to raw materials could be overcome by positive factors, such as the international character of Swiss economy, the strength in capital of the country and, most important, the high standard of scientific research.

Four living Swiss chemists are holders of Nobel prizes. For decades there has been the closest relationship between research done in the eight institutions of higher learning and the private companies. Scientific work made possible industrial production directed to fabricating specialized products for which excellent technical and commercial distributive organizations are available.

It is typical for the Swiss chemical industry that even countries which have a strong, and often strongly protected, production of their own are among her best customers.

A convertible currency, a liberal commercial policy and tariffs among the lowest the world over have favored this. In Switzerland, not one single chemical product is subject to import restrictions and the customs fees for medical drugs for instance are 4.1%; for pharmaceutical chemicals 1.1%; for colouring substances 0.8%. This means that competing products from abroad have practically free access to Switzerland. But by and large nobody complains about this situation. On the contrary, it is a stimulant for steady increase of the home quality.

While the inorganic, the electrochemical and the soda industry and several others produce mainly for home demand, medical drugs, colouring substances, synthetic products, insecticides and synthetic scents are produced mainly for export. On the whole, about three quarters of the total chemical production, and considerably more as far as some special products are concerned, are designed for markets abroad all over the world. During the last years the exports of chemical products constituted 16-17% of the total of Swiss exports and attained about 900 million Swiss Francs in 1954. Besides, there are the substantial payments for patents and licenses which the Swiss chemical industry has accorded abroad. Finally there is to be mentioned the important turn-over of the branch-establishments of Swiss firms abroad.

The United States is not only a good customer for Swiss chemical products, but also an extremely important supplier, especially of raw material and auxiliaries. Exchange between the two countries has been as follows:

	U.S. supplies million Swiss F.	Swiss supplies million Swiss F.

Swiss Prosperity Keyed Into Prosperity In United States

By DR. ALFRED SCHAEFER

Chief General Manager, Union Bank of Switzerland

SWITZERLAND does not measure up to the United States as to territory, population, soil resources, etc., but it has, in common with the States, a liberal economic system. This has enabled the two sister republics to build up an extremely diversified, intensive economic and financial relationship, which has all along been very amicable. What disagreements there were did not last long. They arose out of the war or in an endeavor to settle postwar differences. There is one pending now, over the importation of Swiss watches. But by and large, the U.S. and Switzerland may be looked upon as test cases of the equilibrating forces of freedom in the international economic sphere.

Because of the poverty of its soil and its relative overpopulation, Switzerland is more dependent on the international exchange of goods and capital than the United States.

There was a time when the U.S. was leaning heavily on Europe for financial aid. Up to the war of 1914 it was actually a debtor country. But whatever help America received in this way has subsequently been repaid a hundred times, its most splendid repayment being the funds which the Marshall plan made available for European reconstruction.

It seems only natural that Switzerland, which was an international creditor country as early as the 19th century, not only sent many of her sons to the New World for pioneering but also contributed her share to the rapid development of the North American Continent through direct investments and through buying securities on American stock exchanges. Of course, she also shared the periodic economic setbacks.

Turning to our own times, it is well to stress that Swiss-American commercial ties are very intimate. To exemplify: In 1954 Swiss imports from the U.S. amounted to $166,000,000 (= 13% of total Swiss imports) and exports to the U.S. $149,000,000 (= 12% of total Swiss exports). These figures may not be impressive by American standards, but it should be noted that Switzerland is the country with the highest foreign trade level per capita of population. Thus, as will be seen, the financial relations resulting from Swiss-American trade add substance to the amicable links which exist between the banks of the two countries.

Conventional foreign trade bonds are further strengthened by the existence of numerous other links between Switzerland and America. Many of the biggest American corporations, such as General Electric, General Motors, several oil companies, International Business Machines and others have branches in Switzerland. Conversely, Swiss business and industry, e.g. banks, numerous insurance companies, the Swiss chemical works, the Nestle Corporation and a string of other industrial firms maintain branches or sales organizations in the States.

The tourist business between the two countries has also grown enormously, in the last few years particularly as a result of the excellent air transport facilities. The travel trade has always been a weighty item, because of the manifold family ties, and tourist spending is an important source of financial transactions and connections.

From a purely financial viewpoint it goes without saying that the United States, by reason of the dominant position of the dollar among the world's currencies, and as a center of the world's gold reserves is, in itself, of great economic importance to Switzerland. The American foreign exchanges exert a far-reaching influence on the determination of exchange rates over here and this influence is of course closely studied in Switzerland which does, by the way, a large foreign exchange business with the United States.

There exists no "transfer problem" between the two countries, yet public transfer movements take place because the Swiss Confederation, which currently experiences a superfluity of funds in connection with its monetary policy, invests part of these from time to time through American financial institutions. There was a time, during and after the first World War, when the Swiss Government had to raise money in the New York capital market. This was the 5% Loan of 1915 of $15,000,000, in addition to which other loans were raised between 1919-1924 totaling $115,000,000, one of which, in 1920, amounted to $25,000,000 at 8 per cent. All these loans were very promptly repaid. In fact the remainder of the said 8% loan was redeemed after the devaluation of the dollar at the old dollar rate, i.e. at a premium.

The cities of Zurich and Berne, too, obtained American loans of $6,000,000 each at 8 per cent directly after the war of 1914-1918, which they repaid in 1926.

At present Swiss investments in American securities have grown to extraordinary size, probably exceeding the volume reached before the second world war. As may be known, the aggregate of all Swiss balances in the U.S., blocked during the last war, was $1,000,000,000.

The close relationship between the American and the Swiss stock exchanges—the preponderating influence of the former on the latter is not denied, manifests itself in the many American equities which are listed on one or more of the Swiss exchanges. They are: Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co., Canadian Pacific Railroad Co., Pennsylvania Railroad Co., American Telephone & Telegraph Co., Consolidated Natural Gas Co., Pacific Gas & Electric Co., The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., International Paper Co., U.S. Steel Corporation, International Nickel Company of Canada Ltd., Kennecott Copper Corporation, General Electric Co., General Motors Corporation, E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Eastman Kodak Co., Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), Union Carbide & Carbon Corporation, Montgomery Ward & Co. Inc., F. W. Woolworth Co., General Foods Corporation, National Distillers Products Corporation.

This list speaks for itself and explains why stock market outlooks and trends in the U.S. are followed in Switzerland with the keenest interest.

Moreover, very important clients of American commission houses are the Swiss investment trusts which specialize largely in American stocks. These trusts hold at present a total of $130,000,000 in American shares, of which approximately $100,000,000 is in the portfolio of the America-Canada Trust Fund. This Fund is managed by an affiliate of the Union Bank of Switzerland; the INTRAG (A.G. fur Verwaltung von Investment Trusts, Zurich-Lausanne).

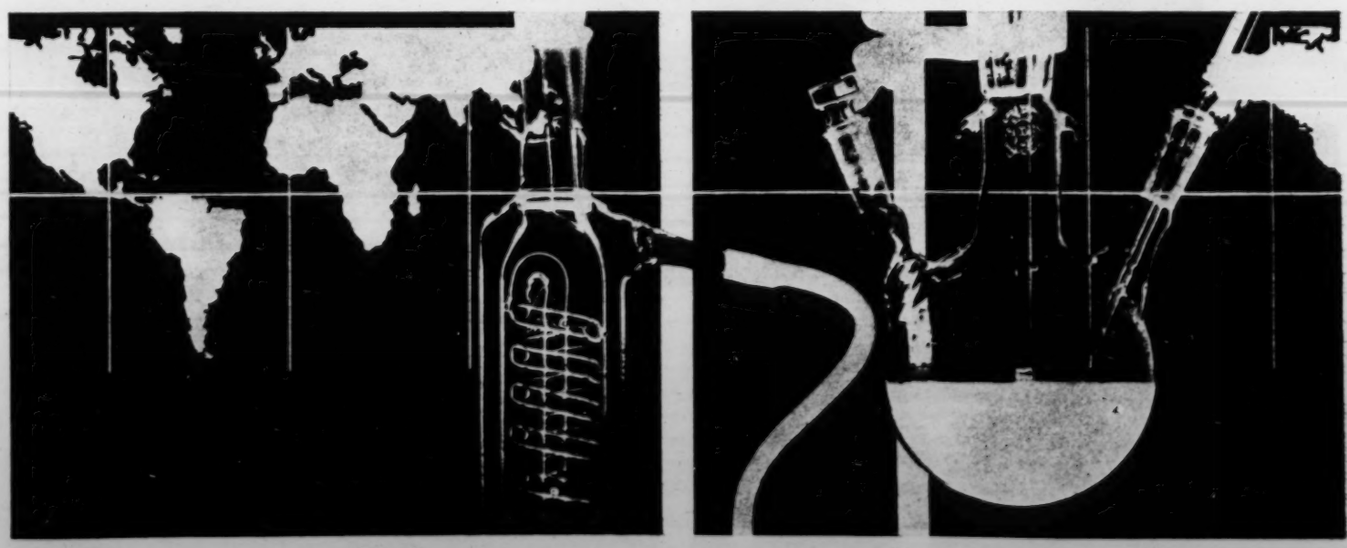

Aside from these opportunities to acquire an interest in American stocks, the Swiss investor may of course buy any individual security directly through the American stock exchanges.

These manifold and intensive financial ties between the U.S. and Switzerland are in the last resort based on mutual trust. They are moreover only possible in a liberal world and they testify to the unparalleled power of the free world economy to create wealth. The implication of such a system is that if one member hurts the other, it does not only inflict damage on this member but also on itself and the entire community.

Chemistry knows no frontiers

It is no mere coincidence that a highly-developed chemical industry is common to two countries of such vastly differing size as the United States and Switzerland. Prominent in the Swiss as in the American way of life are the characteristics which have made this development possible – devotion to the principles of a free economy, encouragement of scientific research, and the spirit of industrial enterprise.
Chemistry as a branch of international science transcends all national boundaries. Year by year increasing numbers of young chemists leave their native Switzerland for the United States either to pursue their studies or enter the service of American industry. Across the Atlantic, too, go the results of Swiss scientific research and the processes and products of Swiss industry, all to help meet the needs of the American consumer.

The many and varied chemical products bearing the names of Ciba, Geigy, Hoffmann-La Roche and Sandoz enjoy the well-earned confidence of the American public. In close partnership with their friends in the United States these Swiss organizations are assisting American chemistry to hold its place in the forefront of advancing science.

Swiss Railways Form Europe's Crossroads

by DR. HUGO GSCHWIND,

President, Swiss Federal Railways

SWITZERLAND has been for ages and continues to be of greater importance to European communication than the area of the country, or its rugged topography, might suggest.

Rome's Legions were traveling over Swiss Alpine passes, and so did Rome's one-time bugbear, Hannibal, in 218 B.C.

DR. HUGO GSCHWIND

Throughout the Middle Ages, merchants, pilgrims and other wayfarers used those shortcuts, then little more than hazardous mountain tracks.

Things remained much the same until Napoleon I., after his rather uncomfortable crossing of the Alps in 1800, ordered a carriage-way to be constructed over the Simplon Pass (1801-1805). Other passes were afterwards developed and traffic at once took advantage of the new facilities.

It was, however, the railways that really opened up Switzerland. Railway construction made a real and effective start after 1850, except for a short section of 1.2 miles which the French Eastern Railways had extended into the frontier town of Basle, in 1844, and another section of 14½ miles opened between Zurich and Baden, in 1847. The latter is of historic interest, as it represents the first railway line to be built actually within Switzerland.

Railway construction, to start, took the line of least resistance, followed rivers and crept up valleys, to form a nucleus of a Swiss system which was, in its first conception, mainly based on the plans of the famous English railway engineer, Robert Stephenson. Tunnels had, of course, to be bored. But before attacking the Alpine barrier, the Hauenstein tunnel was constructed through the Jura range.

Italy's and France's experience with the Mont Cenis tunnel, opened in 1860, encouraged Switzerland to the arduous task of overcoming the Alpine barrier, too. The Gotthard tunnel (9½ miles) was pierced in 1882. There followed the Simplon, the first track (12½ miles), in 1906, the Loetschberg (9 miles), in 1913, and again the Simplon, the second track (a few yards longer than the first), in 1922. These tunnels are among the longest in the world. Yet, there are many others, in fact, 240 of them, on the network of the Swiss Federal Railways alone, covering a total length of nearly 109 miles.

Needless to say, the obvious difficulties of the terrain also called for numerous cuts, embankments and especially bridges. The network of the Swiss Federal Railways, not counting the many private lines, includes 3146 bridges of at least 6½ foot each (the longest arch across the gorge of the river in Berne in one span is 495 feet), or covering a total length of 22½ miles.

This proportion of tunnels, bridges and other constructions is admittedly very high, if the 1865 route miles of the Swiss Federal Railways are taken into consideration. It is, however, not the least of its attractions.

Opening of short-cuts through the Alps for European communications was only one of the incentives for development of the Swiss railway system. Switzerland's scenery attracted numerous tourists. Their access to the spectacular features of Alpine regions had to be facilitated. The Swiss railways carried out this task by extending their lines and increasing the comfort of travel.

At the beginning of this century, the Swiss Federal Railways were established, as an amalgamation of a number of important private lines bought up by the State. Together with other main and secondary lines, tramways, rack-and-pinion and cable railways, still owned by Cantons, municipalities or private owners. Thanks to their tunnels, the railways also "piggy-back" motor-traffic, when mountain roads are snowed in, or motorists wish to save time.

The international transit lines crossing the country from north to south, via the Gotthard, Loetschberg and Simplon, and, to a lesser degree, those from west to east are mainstays of the Swiss railway system. Like the center of a spider's web, they are anchored to other international lines, criss-crossing the whole of Europe, and carry an important share of the traffic between Northern Europe and Italy and between the Western and Eastern parts of the Old Continent.

Technical Progress Marks Communications

By DR. EDUARD WEBER

General Manager, Swiss Post, Telegraph and Telephone Administration

DESPITE the tremendous difference in size, the United States of America and Switzerland have many political, cultural, economic and, above all, technical affinities. In the technical field, transport and communications services may be cited. In Switzerland public transport has largely been controlled by Government, in the United States this can be said of the Postal Service only. In 1849, one year after the Swiss Confederation had been founded, the posts, together with the postal stagecoach passenger service, which had been in the hands of the Cantons or private enterprise, were taken over by the Federal Government. The telegraph service was operated by the Federation from its start in 1852. The first private telephone networks were also transferred to Government ownership after a very short period.

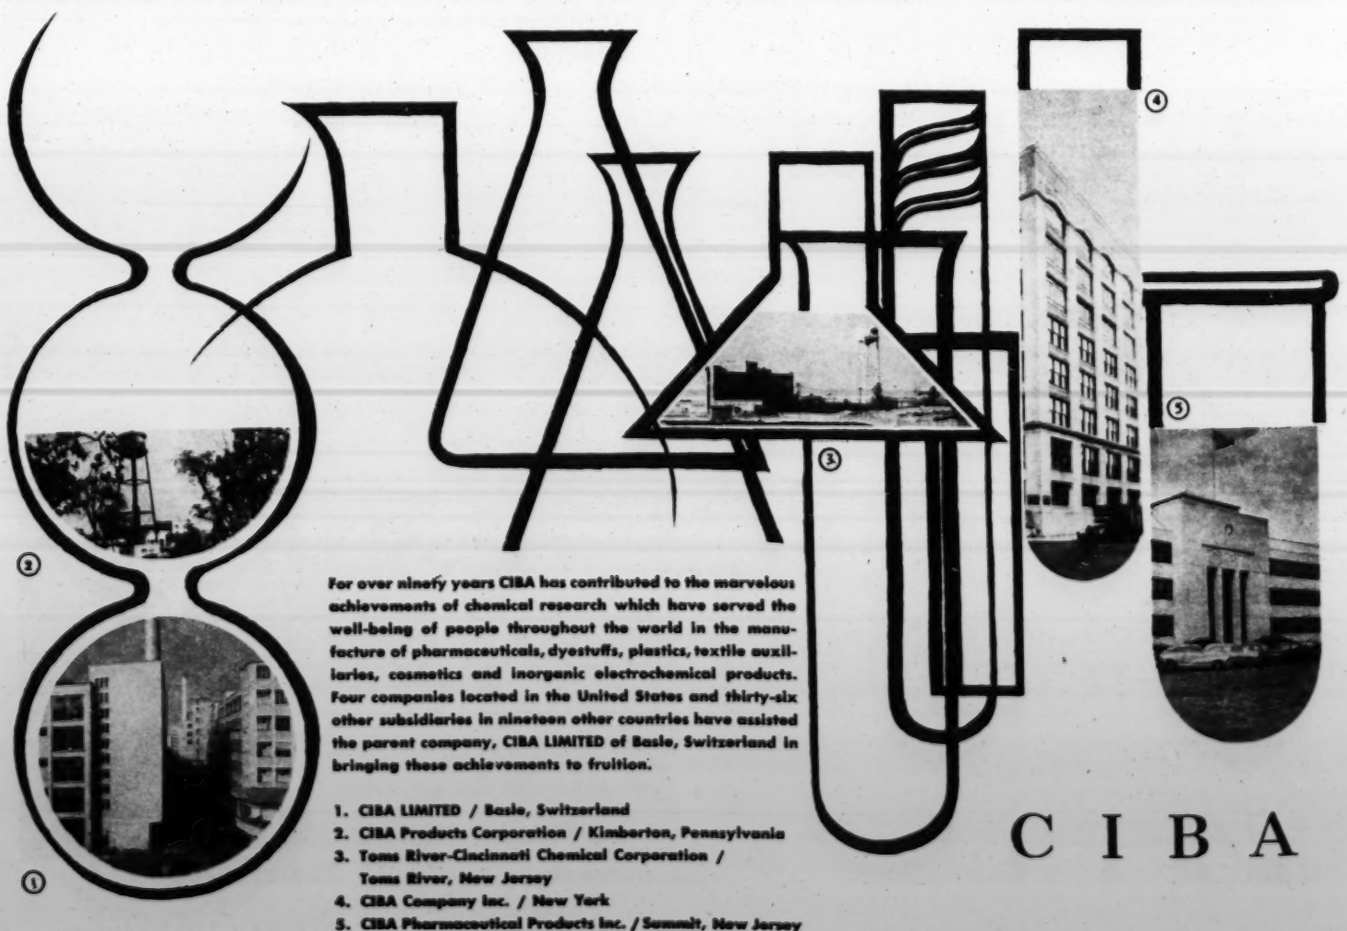

All communications services had rapid development. The Swiss PTT-Administration, which includes the postal, telegraph and telephone services, is making every effort to be rated among the best; speed of money remittance by postal cheque is hardly equalled by any other country. There is a permanent post office to every three square miles, one for every 1249 persons in the cultivatable areas.

At an early stage, Switzerland began to take an active part in international airmail traffic. There are excellent airmail connections between Switzerland and the United States. American aircraft carry mail to Geneva and Zurich, and Swiss planes take mail to New York.

In ratio of telephones to population, Switzerland ranges fourth. There are 23.2 telephones to every hundred persons; 99 per cent of the Swiss telephone subscribers are served by automatic exchanges. Ninety-eight links with extra-European countries bear evidence of the importance of the overseas telephone traffic, which is especially heavy to and from the United States. Moreover, there are 13 radio links with ships at sea as well as links between Switzerland and United States aircraft.

As much as 98 per cent of the Swiss telephone network has been placed into cables in the last few years.

In the international field a semi-automatic rapid telephone service has been introduced with some of our neighboring countries, which in most cases does away with any waiting time, and in the districts close to the German and Austrian frontiers a fully automatic telephone service across the border is in operation.

Zurich Dominates Swiss Financial Activities

By HERMANN WILD

Manager, Commercial Bank in Zurich

THE position of the City of Zurich as the most important financial center in Switzerland is today unchallenged. It is particularly in the traffic between the U.S.A. and Switzerland that Zurich plays a dominating role, for the majority of financial operations between the two countries is probably effected via this center.

The first powerful impulses towards a development of the city into a financial center were given by the change-over from small manufacturing to industrial production in the middle of the nineteenth century, and the attendant necessity of providing capital. The building of railroads, too, required funds far beyond the scope of private capital. The second half of the century accordingly witnessed the formation of the large Swiss commercial banks which soon acquired a position of importance in international banking.

Of the five large banks, three (Credit Suisse, Union Bank of Switzerland, Leu) have their registered head offices in Zurich. Of the aggregate balance-sheet total of the large banks, amounting to 9686 billions of francs, 5201 billions (53.7%) fell to the three Zurich banks, 2.98 billions (30.8%) to the Basle bank (Swiss Bank Corporation) and 1.5 billions (15.6%) to the Berne bank (Banque Populaire Suisse) in the year 1954.

Of the balance-sheet total of all cantonal banks, which amounted to 12.728 billions of francs (end of 1954), 2.481 billions or 19½% were accounted for by Zurich, 535 millions or 4.1% by Basle, and 256 millions or 2% by Geneva.

In the field of foreign exchange, the position of the Swiss banks has become especially strong within the last few decades, and it is particularly in exchange dealings that Zurich belongs among the internationally leading centers. The Swiss exchange market offers special opportunities because the Swiss franc, in contradistinction to currencies such as the dollar, is both hard and soft, the latter owing to the numerous bilateral and multilateral clearing treaties that Switzerland has made with countries of the non-convertible currency area. Therefore the majority of exchange operations from soft currency into hard currency and vice-versa, and the commodities trade that involves such operations, are handled in Swiss banking centers. It is well known that transactions of this type are handled for American accounts on a large scale; they substantially contribute to the adjustment of irreal exchange rates and thus catalyze the international exchange of goods and services. Zurich's share in the Swiss foreign exchange total is estimated to amount to approximately 25 per cent, the foreign exchange transactions effected by the National Bank of Switzerland, which are entirely concentrated in Zurich, not included. Zurich also plays a very special part in international gold traffic, since Switzerland is one of the very few countries in the world in which gold of any type can be traded at entirely free rates; imports, exports and deposits of the metal, which still performs an important function as a capital investment in the countries of Europe and the Middle and Far East, are subject to no restriction whatever.

In the field of letters of credit about one third of all letters opened with Swiss banks is handled via Zurich. International transit trade is of particular importance here, and it is gradually putting to account the advantages that Switzerland can offer in the field of transit financing and foreign currency exchange.

In stock exchange, too, Zurich dominates the other inland centers. In the past year, 99,685 paid rates were noted against 40,505 in Geneva and 40,684 in Basle.

Zurich Airport International Crossroads

By DR. P. MEIERHANS

Director of Public Works of the Canton of Zurich

THE Zurich Airport received almost 700,000 passengers in 1955. This figure is noteworthy for a country whose population is only about 5,000,000. Almost all of these passengers were "international." Because of the small area of the country, domestic air traffic is relatively unimportant.

The more than average increase of 19% in passenger traffic, and 21% in freight traffic in 1955, as compared to 1954, speaks for itself. Since 1949 the volume of traffic has tripled. On January 6, 1956, i.e., seven and one-half years after the opening of the Zurich Airport, the three-millionth passenger was welcomed. In passenger traffic Zurich ranks seventh in the list of big cities, such as London, Paris, etc.

At present Zurich is being served by the following 14 airlines: Swissair, Air France, Air India, BEA, BOAC, El-Al, LAI, KLM, Panair do Brasil, SABENA, SAS, Seaboard and Western Airlines, TWA and YAT. Direct connections with all the continents of the world are maintained as well as with the most important economic centers of Europe. For both national economy and tourist trade the multiple direct connections with the U.S.A. (Swissair, El-Al, TWA), to Central America (KLM), to South America (Swissair, KLM, Panair do Brasil, SAS), to South Africa (KLM, SAS), to the Near and Far East (Swissair, Air India, TWA, BOAC, KLM, SAS), and to Australia (BOAC) are particularly important. The most frequented European connections are those to London (56 flights per week), Frankfort (32), Paris (27), Rome (22), etc.

To date about 112,000,000 francs have been invested in the Zurich Airport. Out of these, 57,000,000 francs were granted by the population of the canton of Zurich (made possible by referendums held on May 5, 1945, and May 7, 1950), 31,000,000 by the Swiss Confederation and 8,000,000 by the cities of Zurich and Winterthur. For the buildings, 16,000,000 francs were provided by private enterprise. Airport construction began in 1946; by June 1948 it was opened to traffic.

Maintenance of the airport is secured by the canton of Zurich. Owing to both the high rate of air traffic and the great number of visitors from all over Switzerland and from abroad, it was possible to close the books on the airport construction with a surplus of about 500,000 francs.

Zurich possesses a modern three-runway airport of class B1 according to the standards of the International Civil Aviation Organization. The blind-landing runway, measuring 8580x247.5 feet (2600x75m) is one of the largest runways in Europe. The second runway for intercontinental traffic is 6270x198 feet (1900x60m). The third runway, 5065x148.5 feet (1535x45m), was built for light twin-engine aircraft only. In respect to the anticipated jet passenger traffic it is highly important that the possibility exists to extend the blind-landing runway to 11,550 feet (3500m) in length, and the western runway to 8250 feet (2500m).

In order to maintain the regular schedule of flights it is essential that all aircraft land and take off safely in all kinds of weather conditions, and at night. The canton of Zurich commissioned the Radio-Schweiz A.-G. for wireless telegraphy and telephony, which is 50% government-owned, with flight control and transmission. Of the radio-electric navigation equipment available, a number of radio beacons and an instrument-landing system, well known in the U.S.A., are considered most important. By using the most up-to-date facilities for landing in bad weather, the surveillance radar equipment and the ground control approach, the Zurich Airport is capable of providing the utmost of help and security for approaching aircraft.

U.S. Ranks Third As Buyer of Swiss Cheese

FOR millions of persons all over the world the name of Swiss Emmenthal Cheese represents perfection. Housewives and epicures alike know that the red Trade Mark SWITZERLAND, a guarantee for the origin, ensures a delicate flavour and high quality. For this reason one can find real Swiss cheese even in those countries which are themselves producers, and who even go so far, in some cases, as to try to imitate the real Swiss Emmenthal Cheese.

More than 500 years ago agents of the cheese producing centers of Switzerland visited the markets of France and Prussia (Germany). The U.S.A. have long been good customers for the best Swiss cheese, and today stand third upon Switzerland's list of clients.

Swiss cheese owes its unprecedented success to a whole series of factors:— Agricultural conditions, position and climate are all ideal for dairy produce. These are the gifts of nature, but the Swiss peasants and cheese makers have known how to make full use of these gifts. Through the industry of the former and the practical knowledge of the latter, and by a long and fine tradition they have together created and maintained throughout the centuries the world-wide fame of Swiss cheese.

Naturally, the processes of manufacture have been developed in the course of the years, but never to such an extent as to affect the flavour of the cheese. Today, the village cheese factories have been modernized. The cheese makers, of which there are real dynasties where for generations the profession has passed from father to son, now attend special dairy schools and later can attend special courses. They are all well versed in hygiene, chemistry and bacteriology.

The Federal Economic and Bacteriologic Experimental Station Berne-Liebefeld and the Swiss Technical University in Zurich have laboratories equipped for scientific research in questions relating to the manufacture of cheese. Thus peasants and cheese makers work together with Trade and Science in the interest of quality.

Moreover, not only is the quality of the milk, the process of manufacturing and the cheese itself regularly controlled, but good dairy-farmers and cheese makers also receive special premiums, an incentive to quality. When the cheese finally comes into the cellars of the exporters it still requires many months of technical skill and care until it is ripe for consumption. Each cheese demands individual treatment: It is regularly tested. This individual attention contributes to the quality of Swiss cheese. Those who have had the opportunity to follow the various stages of cheese production, from the delivery of the milk to the dairy, to the packaging for export, could not fail to be impressed by the exceptional care taken, for the consumer is a keen observer. He wants the best goods for his money, and he is right. This the Swiss know, and they act accordingly.

The cheese maker is always delighted when his cheese achieves success. When I visited the prize-winners in a big cheese making competition in Switzerland, I found that the cheeses made by the winner of the Gold Medal were sold as far afield as the Vatican, and had been for many years, as this master cheese maker is over 70 years old. Another winner had just sent a quantity of his cheese to South Africa.

Swiss Import Many Foodstuffs, Much From U.S.A.

By H. P. KELLER
Director of Swiss Cereals Administration

ONLY about 16 per cent of the Swiss population farms, so herdsmen are about as scarce here as are real old-fashioned cowboys in the U.S.A. And since farms here average about 10 times smaller than average farms in America, production per man is less. The rest of the people earn their living in industry and commerce, including services to tourists.

As a result, Switzerland imports foodstuffs at the rate of $70 per capita, half from European countries, half from overseas. In overseas imports, foodstuffs from the United States lead.

Swiss importers are obliged by law to keep continuous reserves and, in so doing, must buy only top quality farm products such as cereals, oil seeds, foodstuffs, seeds for planting, etc. As for wheat, imports must be such as to constitute a complement to home-grown soft wheat (European wheats generally have rather low protein), hence, top-grade U.S. wheats, Northern Spring, for example, are preferred.

U.S. corn, if dried too quickly, sometimes causes trouble because the interior of the kernel is not dry enough and losses thereby occur in transport or in storing.

Our country respects engagements made with the Organization for European Economic Co-operation regarding the liberalization of trade, and Switzerland applies the same regulations in trade with the U.S.A. Further, we have an easy custom-system based upon the import weight, not ad valorem of the goods, and the charges levied upon foodstuffs still are based on unchanged and generally considered modest pre-war rates. Switzerland however, like most of other European countries, has had to take certain protective measures for its agriculture production.

Switzerland buys in the U.S.A. food and foodstuff in great diversity through private trade (even wheat) though import of the latter is under Government's monopoly.

International Air Transport Wipes Out Ignorance and Prejudices

By DR. WALTER BERCHTOLD
General Manager of the Swissair

ONLY a few decades ago trips by Swiss to the United States were rare events. The number of Americans who visited Europe, and our country in particular, was also relatively small. In both cases the privilege of crossing the Atlantic was reserved for those with the necessary time and money. This lack of personal contact added fuel to numerous prejudices current in Switzerland about America and in the United States about Switzerland. The American who made private or business trips to the old world was generally regarded in our country at that time as an enormously rich man who had rapidly amassed a fortune or had risen from dishwasher to captain of industry in the "country of unlimited possibilities." The American, on the other hand, imagined Switzerland to be a region of yodelling Alpine cowherds, with a few cheese dairies, watchmaking and chocolate factories and a number of luxury hotels.

If this situation has changed substantially for the better today, this is not least due to the gigantic progress achieved in the field of peaceful air traffic. Switzerland and its air transport company, Swissair, may claim to have made a positive contribution to this development. In 1932 Swissair was the first European airline company to use Lockheed-Orion aircraft of American origin on its air routes and thus to acquaint Europe with the products of the American aircraft industry. Subsequently, too, Swissair was among the first companies to acquire the Douglas DC-2 and later the DC-3, the DC-4, the Convair Liner and the DC-6B, and to place orders for the latest DC-7C as well as for the Convair Metropolitan. The pioneering act of introducing American aircraft to the European Continent was undoubtedly a brilliant success, both for our firm and for the American suppliers who, thanks to the quality of their products, largely control the European market today. Thus, for instance, Swissair's entire fleet consists exclusively of types produced in U.S.A. and comprises at present six DC-6B for services across the North and South Atlantic, as well as to the Near and Far East, seven Convair Liners, three DC-4's and nine DC-3's for the medium and short routes of the European network. The Convair Liners will shortly be replaced by eight Convair Metropolitans, and the long-distance fleet will be complemented in 1956/57 by four Douglas "Seven Seas" and, later on, by jet aircraft, whereby the expansion of the long-distance services and the intensification of the transatlantic flights will enter an acute stage.

Although Swissair is regarded as the national Swiss airline company, it is not a nationalized concern. Seventy per cent of the share capital is in private hands and only the remaining 30 per cent is held by public institutions. Thanks to this predominantly private character with all its advantages in respect of operational efficiency, the company has not required any state subsidies for years, except for an annual contribution in the interests of military economy, which amounts to some $100,000, and is intended for the training of aircrew. In Switzerland no subsidies are paid, in particular, by the postal authorities.

Geneva, Cathedral in Background

Since 1948 the aircraft marked with the white cross on the red ground have also been flying regularly across the North Atlantic after Trans-World Airlines had begun the first scheduled connection between the United States and Switzerland as early as 1947 and had thus most commendably brought the two countries a great deal closer together. In recent years American-Swissair traffic in both directions has increased in a gratifying manner, the mutual exchange of passengers and goods is still on the upgrade and Swissair will soon be able to raise the number of its transatlantic flights from seven to ten a week. The result of the increased number of business and private contracts between Switzerland and U.S.A. is that the citizens of both nations have got to know, understand and appreciate each other much better. In other words, the closer, and at the same time broader contact between the two nations, which has been made possible by modern air travel in general, greatly assists international understanding among peoples. We in Switzerland are the more pleased at this, as commercial air traffic is for us not a question of national prestige, but an economic necessity.

Switzerland, being a land-locked country, has no direct access to the open sea and thus our air space must replace our non-existent coasts. Our country therefore possesses, in Geneva-Cointrin, Zurich-Kloten and Basel-Mulhouse, no fewer than three airports of intercontinental significance. This fact, in conjunction with its outstanding geographical position in the centre of Europe, enabled Switzerland to become an important crossroad of worldwide air traffic in the postwar years. In addition, she is known throughout the world as the tourist country par excellence and attracts more and more visitors every year. Thus, from 1938 to 1954 the number of American visitors to Switzerland increased roughly threefold. It is estimated that well above 150,000 American tourists will have come to our country in 1955.

Switzerland, however, also exerts a great power of attraction as an important centre for trade, industry, banking and insurance, etc. Since, moreover, it has no raw materials, it must import and process them and re-export the finished or improved products. Thus it comes about that export business and tourism are the main pillars of Swiss national economy. A liberal trade policy and the necessary international character of the economic activity of a small country which is surrounded on all sides by foreign states naturally call for favorable communications. The airplane has therefore become the quickest, most convenient and far-reaching means of transport for an important part of the economic structure. Today, for instance, there is a very brisk air freight traffic between Switzerland and the United States. Swissair has been obliged to use one of its aircraft, once a week provisionally, purely as a freight carrier across the North Atlantic. Numerous products of Swiss industry, such as watches, precision instruments, machine components, small apparatus, textiles, chemicals, and so on are splendidly suitable as air freight. From U.S.A. the articles brought to Switzerland by air are, as a rule machines, tobacco, preserves, nylon stockings, ready made clothing, periodicals, newspapers and other printed matter, films and occasionally small sport airplanes. The volume of air freight will undoubtedly increase considerably in the next few years.

Watches Provide Swiss Half Their Dollar Balance

By M. VAUCHER
President of the Swiss Federation of Watch Manufacturers Associations

IT is a respected and happy custom each winter for citizens of the United States and Switzerland to commemorate the anniversaries of the two historic treaties which symbolize mutual understanding and trust between their free nations.

America and Switzerland have been good commercial partners ever since the signing, 105 years ago, of the Treaty of Friendship and Commerce on Nov. 25, 1850. With establishment on Jan. 9, 1936, of a Reciprocal Trade Agreement, which relaxed earlier tariff barriers, international exchange was given further impetus.

More than most nations, Switzerland, short in natural resources, must trade. Consequently, its economy, which provides the Swiss the highest standard of living in Europe, revolves around trade. And, most critical item of sale for the Swiss is the watch, the export of which provides 50 per cent of the dollars used in buying essential American agricultural and manufactured products.

Here are 35,000 synthetic rubies, half a-wine-glass full, one day's output of a Swiss "jewel" factory. Process discovered about 1900 gave Swiss world leadership in watchmaking.

Americans like to wear our watches, particularly the wrist and special feature watches such as the waterproofs, self-winding watches, chronographs, chronometers, wrist alarms and calendars, in which we pioneered. We are happy this is so, for we are thereby enabled to purchase in return foodstuffs, tobacco, automobiles and machinery.

In the expanding economy of the United States, there is a vast potential for watch sales, both our own and those of American manufacturers. Two and three cars, two and three television sets per American family are fast becoming the rule. Consequently, there is every reason to believe that two or more watches per U.S. citizen, dress and special purpose types, will not prove the exception. The future points to vastly growing use of consumer goods everywhere, and both American and Swiss watch manufacturers must plan production for this expanding market.

International trade has enabled the Swiss to create the highest living standard in Europe, the third highest, after the United States and Canada, in the world. The wage scale of the watchmaker, the elite of our working class, is an enviable goal towards which the rest of European labor is striving. And, as other Europeans are permitted to produce more goods to sell in the United States, they, in turn, can buy more from America which they, like the Swiss, are eager to do. In this way, the American and Continental economies will be stimulated.

Nowhere have I read a better exposition of this principle than in this short statement by President Eisenhower: "Foreign trade means much more than the obtaining of vital raw materials from other nations. It means effectively strengthening our friends in the world at large — strengthening them not only to fortify their own economies — but also to buy from us what we must sell to the world."

Therefore, we Swiss, whose watch sales to the United States are critical in a trade relationship which annually averages 50 million cash dollars in America's favor, can only view with alarm any attempt to limit them. The erection of insurmountable trade barriers can only set back our mutual trade development at a time when the world is looking to us to set a forward example.

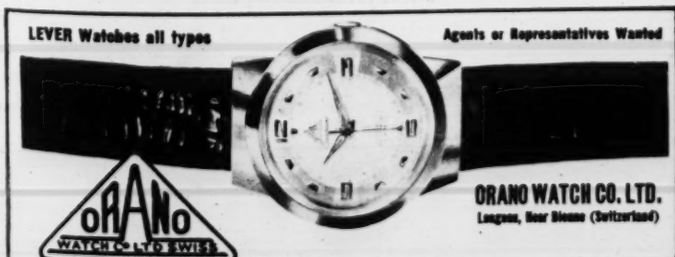

Fair competition works to the advantage of the consumer, for it results in product innovation, improved quality and better values. Thus, buying is stimulated and everyone (including the American watch manufacturer) is the gainer; and no nation knows better than America that this is so.

To penalize the American consumer, the proud Swiss craftsmen who make the watches and the American businessmen who import and assemble them does not make modern economic sense. And there has been no period when good sense was so imperative as the present.

Business is Business

in Detroit, Michigan or Bienne, Switzerland

Have a little trouble figuring out which plant is which?

We don't blame you. For American auto equipment is as familiar a sight in this Bienne assembly plant (left) as it is in the Detroit, Michigan, plant (right). American products are top favorites with the Swiss.

The happy thing about it is this: Bienne plant owners can afford to buy American equipment. And it goes even further. The Swiss worker and his family enjoy all sorts of American products in their home. For Swiss tariffs do not price American products out of reach.

Quality tells the story

However, American equipment isn't the only thing the men above agree upon. They have remarkable unanimity about another famous product, too.

Fine, jeweled-lever watches from Switzerland.

Americans and Swiss, alike, go to work and play to the count of these splendid timepieces. They see eye-to-eye on Swiss watches for the same reason they choose American automotive items. They're the world's best.

What's bad for Detroit...

More than a year ago, America's tariff on jeweled-lever Swiss watches was increased some 50%. Right now, additional restrictions (all bound to boost prices) are being seriously considered. If passed, they could very well price the fine, jeweled-lever Swiss watch right off the wrist of the gentleman from Detroit.

...is bad for Bienne

The same tariff burden that could deny a Swiss watch to the man in Detroit can very well strip American equipment from the plant in Bienne.

It's the fundamental law of economics. The Swiss simply cannot buy American products (which they've been doing more and more every year) unless they can sell what they make. And that's mostly watches.

Time to get rolling?

The man from Switzerland has no opportunity to speak about American laws or restrictions which impose additional costs on American buyers (even though he may have to go without American products later).

This issue must be left squarely up to the gentleman from Detroit, Michigan, U.S.A.

TIME TO TAKE A LOOK

Jeweled-lever Swiss watches have become a target for tariffs.

Over a year ago, America increased her tariff by 50%. New restrictions, now being proposed, could price the fine Swiss watch right off your wrist.

In an era of free competition – stretching back almost 300 years – the Swiss watchmaker has brought time further along than any other artisan in the world. Is it wise to levy such progress out of existence?

CALCUTTA, India, March 24 (AP)—Workers erecting a big steel plant in Orissa state walk warily to and from work. Sometimes they don't venture out of their homes for days at a time. The reason is a man-eating tiger which is blamed for killing 43 persons in the area since 1954.

Prefabricated Homes come of age . . .

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH PART NINE PAGES 1—10-I
SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 25, 195(

Pre-Fab Home Owners Active in Their Community Life Pattern

Community activities, like the Home Bureau, shown here meeting at the home of Mrs. Daniel F. Good (extreme left) play an important part in the lives of today's home owners. Thirty-four per cent of those interviewed in a survey of national home owners by Elmer Roper said they are active in churches, civic organizations, parent-teacher groups and social clubs.

Families Keep Up

Ninety-two per cent of the American families interviewed in a survey of national home owners by Elmo Roper keep up with the activities in their communities by reading the local newspaper, which they have delivered to their home. Here a youth goes out to meet the newsboy on the lawn of his home.

Expansion of Families, Prosperity Mean Homes

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—Expanding American families and a steadily rising standard of living are the main stimulants to the country's greatest era of home building, a survey by Elmo Roper showed today.

Presenting a new and enlightening composite picture of today's home owners, the survey was undertaken by National Homes Corporation in anticipation of the production of its 100,000th home, scheduled for next fall.

"Home ownership in America deserves a great deal more study today than it has ever been given in the past," said James R. Price, president of National Homes. "National Homes and its builder-dealers unquestionably have a broader experience with home ownership than any other organization in the world today. It seemed to us, therefore, that for ourselves and as a public service, we ought to make a study of the 100,000 American families who will be living in National homes before the end of 1956."

It was evident from the results of the survey that the bumper baby crop was playing a far more important part than family formations in the current housing demand.

Children Mean Homes.

Discounting the theory that family formations govern this demand, only 1 per cent of the home owners said they had been married for less than a year. On the other hand, the great majority, 89 per cent, had been married three years or more.

This larger group was prompted to become home owners when their children began to arrive, as they have in unprecedented numbers in recent years. Fifty-five per cent of the families had children ranging in age from two to six years and 39 per cent had children between the ages of six and 12. Yet 99 per cent of the families had moved into their new homes within the last three years.

Today's home owners, the survey showed, are most likely to be a young couple, under 35 years of age, with two children. They live in a fair-sized community of a hundred or so homes in a small town, not far from a large city.

Their income is about $5395, which is well above the national median average of $4100 and enough to support the payments on a home costing as much as $15,000. Home ownership definitely is not proving a burden financially, because nearly two-thirds of the home owners have active savings accounts and 12 per cent have saved more than $1000. In addition, 83 per cent have insurance protection.

Also reflecting the rising standard of living, nearly all of these families living in National homes throughout the country also own automobiles (97 per cent), television sets (94 per cent), and automatic washers (95 per cent). In each instance, the percentage is considerably higher than that for the households of the nation as a whole.

Likely a Laborer.

The educational background of these home-owning families also is considerably above the national average. Sixty-three per cent completed high school and 21 per cent graduated from college. For the nation as a whole, comparable figures are 37.2 per cent for high school attendance and 13.9 per cent for college.

The breadwinner of the family is more likely to be a laborer (48 per cent) than a white collar worker (25 per cent). Forty-nine per cent of the total are members of a labor union.

For 73 per cent of the families, their National home is the first home they ever owned. Most bought a three-bedroom house with a single bath. Half of them moved into their new homes from apartments. Now they enjoy almost complete privacy in their family life because only 7 per cent share their homes with others.

A more selective housing market was indicated by the fact that economy was the most prevalent reason given by the families for buying their National homes. Seventy-three per cent felt they either got more house for the money or could buy the home they wanted with a lower down payment, and monthly terms that were within their means.

"Since prefabricated homes are still relatively new," Roper reported, "it is a fair question to ask about the results of the survey in terms of acceptance of prefabricated houses.

"In our experience," he continued, "no product has had a higher percentage of customer approval than National homes. Better than four out of five National home owners would recommend a house like theirs to a friend with problems and circumstances like their own.

"Again," Roper added, "when asked to compare their house and their community with other houses and other communities as a place to raise children, about nine out of ten said it was on a par if not better than similarly priced houses in similar communities.

Plan to Stay.

"Further testimony to satisfaction with their homes is the fact that a clear majority of the people we talked to plan to live in their houses not for just two, four, or ten years, but indefinitely; and while 28 per cent have already made some substantial addition to their homes, well over half are planning additions like garages, porches, bedrooms, and patios, for some time in the future," he concluded.

Over the past few years, American families have spent more for their homes. But this undoubtedly reflects the improvement in their standard of living as much as it does an increase in the cost of home building.

Forty-two per cent of the families buying their homes three years or more ago paid from $6000 to $8000 for them. But of those who have bought their homes within the last year, only 31 per cent paid that figure and an equal per cent paid from $10,000 to $12,000. Only 20 per cent paid that much three or more years ago.

To pay for their homes, the largest group, 27 per cent, were amortizing mortgages of $8000 to $10,000. Twenty-three per cent were paying on mortgages of $4000 to $6000; 21 per cent from $6000 to $8000, and 19 per cent from $10,000 to $12,000. Only 3 per cent were paying on mortgages of $12,000 or more.

A third of the mortgages on these homes were for 30 years; 31 per cent for 25 years, and 28 per cent for 20 years.

Homes Worth More.

In amortizing these mortgages, 29 per cent of the families are paying from $60 to $70 a month and the next largest group, 21 per cent, are paying from $40 to $50. Fourteen per cent are paying from $50 to $60, 17 per cent from $70 to $80, and only 8 per cent more than $80 a month.

Half of the families felt they would get more for their homes, if they put them on the market for resale. Better than 20 per cent said the increased value would be from $600 to $1500. Ten per cent thought they would make from $1500 to $2000 on a sale; 4 per cent, from $2500 to $4500 and 1 per cent $4500 or more.

According to the survey, home ownership leads American families to make increasingly important social and economic contributions to the communities in which they live.

Thirty-four per cent are active in churches, fraternal organizations, and civic associations, such as the P.T.A., and 36 per cent reported their children as belonging to scout groups, church organizations, teen-age clubs and similar activities.

Ninety-two per cent of the families keep up with the activities in their community by having a daily newspaper delivered to their homes.

Buy in Same Town.

A study of their buying habits revealed that 28 per cent of the families bought their food at neighborhood stores while another 52 per cent patronized stores in the same town. Only 20 per cent went any distance away to do their food shopping. Fifty-four per cent of the families spent between $80 and $120 a month for food and 17 per cent from $120 to $160. Only 23 per cent spent less than $80 and only 2 per cent more than $160.

Better than half of the families also bought their children's clothes and their own in the same town where they lived. The clothing budget was from $15 to $30 a month for 39 per cent of the families. Twenty-four per cent spent less than $15 but 16 per cent more than $30.

In maintaining their National homes, 62 per cent of the families spent between $50 and $150 a year for heat. Six per cent spent as little as $50 and only 11 per cent spent more than $150.

Forty-four per cent had gas and electrical bills ranging between $10 and $15 per month, but 29 per cent spent less than $10. Twenty per cent spent more than $15 a month on those utilities.

Summarizing his report, Roper said that "as these families grow older, and as they progress up the economic ladder, they will be in a better and better position to solve the pinch for space they are beginning to feel already, and, as they now appear to be converts to prefabricated homes, they might very well constitute a hard core for a future market in larger and larger prefabricated homes."

Height Makes Difference.

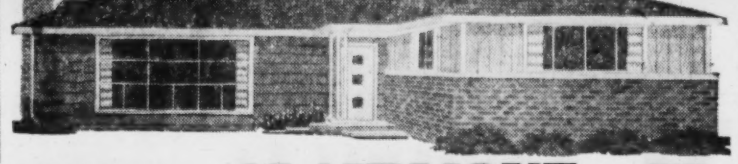

Know the difference between a tree and a shrub? A tree usually is a woody plant over 10 feet tall, with a single stem and definite crown of leaves, says the National Arborist Association. A shrub usually is less than 15 feet tall, with several or more stems and no definite crown.

Five Home Designs in Westridge

An all-new trend in the direction of supplying the home buyers demand can be seen this weekend during the grand opening of Westridge Acres No. 4 in Ballwin. As "Personalization" will be the keynote, five new 1956 homes have been designed with the very latest interior and exterior features incorporated into them.

Their Own Home Show.

Dale J. Notestine, president of the St. Louis Construction Company, builders of the 700-home community, said that home buyers visiting Westridge Acres this weekend will have the opportunity of seeing another home show. He pointed out that five completely furnished homes, featuring the home buyers most demanded items, would be on display. Notestine said, "Their ideas were taken from a national survey, and incorporated into our five new homes by Charles M. Goodman, world famous architect." "Now", explained Notestine, "we've not only got a popularly priced home with monthly payments less than most people pay for rent, but we also have a home to suit their tastes, needs and desires! In addition to all this, plans have been made for a school and church to be built right in the development. Construction is expected to begin this spring."

A complete new appearance has taken place in Westridge Acres No. 4 as an all-new "L" shaped or "Offset" home has been introduced. This new design has been heralded as one of the most eye-appealing for subdivision appearance, he said.

Although all homes will include new color-styled kitchens with natural birchwood cabinets, heating by the automatic gas furnaces, three bedrooms, sliding closet doors, dry wall interiors, each of the five new homes on display has its own distinct "personalized" features.

The Delwood.

For those families with an expensive taste but a moderate income, there is an "L" shaped home called the Delwood. The exterior, 52 feet by 28 feet, of brick and frame variation is further complimented by the low rambling contemporary roof lines. Features include full length basement, one and one-half baths, 16-foot by 10½-foot master bedroom, a 13-foot by 20-foot living room with window wall, a large dining room with window wall, the all-new built-in kitchen with electric appliances, year-round air-conditioning and a 12-foot by 24-foot attached carport with outside storage locker.

The Daybrook.

Those families requiring the personalized features of the Delwood, but can't quite fit it into their budget may find the Daybrook tailored to suit their pocketbooks. Practically the twin brother, just four feet smaller, it includes carport and storage locker, three bedrooms, full basement, bath and a half, dining room and the color-styled kitchen with natural birchwood cabinets.

The Danbury.

The Danbury is another "L" shaped home, comparable to the Daybrook in cost. Overall, it measures 52 feet by 28 feet. Extra dining space aids a family with small children.

The Fargo.

The Fargo is said to be one of the most popular prefabricated homes on the market this year. In the living room, one wall is paneled to give it a decorator touch. Just off the living room is a dining "L". The "U" shaped step saving kitchen is equipped with colored built-in electric kitchen. The dining area is separated from the kitchen by a folding door. Both inside and outside storage, as well as an attached garage is included with this home.

The Fernbrook.

The Fernbrook, due to its popularity last year, is back again with "personalized" features. The Fernbrook's 12 foot by 20 foot living room is just off the color styled kitchen. A third bedroom with one entrance adjacent to the kitchen may be used as a dining room, study or den. The basement entrance is two steps from the back entrance. It will eliminate traffic through the main parts of the home. A garage adjoins, and adds an element of length.

Entrances to Westridge Acres No. 4 are south of Clayton road on Kehrs Mills road, or north of Manchester road on Kehrs Mill road in Manchester.

Average Persons Use 15 Gallons To Take Shower

The average person uses 15 gallons of hot water while taking a shower . . . a housewife uses 22 gallons for every tub full of clothes she washes . . . members of the family, especially the children, consume another three gallons to keep their faces and hands clean.

These daily demands on the hot water supply supply by the average American family prompted designers of National homes to select the automatic gas water heater as standard equipment. This heater is available for use with either natural or L.P. gas, depending on the choice of the buyer.

A feature of the heater is shut-off controls which operate automatically to shut off the gas flow to both the pilot and burner in the event of a failure along the supply line. The gas remains off until the pilot is relighted so there is no dangerous accumulation of gas.

A heavy blanket of glass fiber insulation encases the water tank.

Another feature is a spiral flue baffle that runs the entire length of the inner tank. This baffle retains the heat for maximum use before it is lost through the flue.

EASILY REMOVABLE

Front panel of the modern convector is easily removable for periodic cleaning of the interior of the uits.

This Luxury Model Examplifies Prefab Growth

The Ridgewood, one of National Homes' new luxury type models, features three bedrooms, two full baths, built-in electric kitchen and large family room. Purchasers may choose from a wide variety of garage and carport locations and outdoor living arrangements.

Miller Opens Second Part Of Fernbrook

J. Ben Miller has opened the second section of "Fernbrook" subdivision in Florissant, near the Elm Grove public school and St. Ferdinand Parochial school, which are serviced by busses.

"Fernbrook's" second section, as the first, has paved streets, storm and sanitary sewers and full driveways.

The home being built in "Fernbrook" is a three-bedroom, full basement house that reflects all the styling of Charles M. Goodman, A.I.A., one of the foremost architects in the home field. Color styling by Beatrice West adds a distinctive touch to the home.

An active family will find the large basement of the home in "Fernbrook" ideal for recreation and entertaining, Miller says. In addition, the basement provides plenty of space for storage and placement of utilities and household equipment. There is an easy access to the rear door of the home.

The exterior of the home in "Fernbrook" features a window wall that accents the outdoor-indoor living plan. Shoulder-high windows assure privacy in the bedrooms and create wall space for greater flexibility in furniture placement.

Wide, overhanging eaves give added protection against the elements, and the gable ends are styled to provide adequate ventilation without unsightly louvers.

Just inside the front entrance, there is a roomy guest closet. It features the newly-designed metal combination shelf and hangers that are sturdy and convenient to use.

The living room has an abundance of wall area, permitting easy furniture placement and attractive decoration, Miller said.

Three large bedrooms open from a center hall, providing an easy access to the alcove-type bath. Each bedroom has roomy, floor-to-ceiling closets with easy-to-manage closures.

In the step-saving kitchen, everything is arranged for convenience of a busy housewife. The base cabinets have plastic work tops that make kitchen chores easier. Blond birch doors on the metal wall cabinets of harmonizing color give the kitchen a pleasing appearance.

Into the J. Ben Miller "Fernbrook" goes standarized quality of many years experience as a successful builder and developer.

Corn Time Varies.

Barbecue, a sweet corn that comes from Massachusetts, will mature in 90 days. Another new variety, Canearly, is supposed to be ready for the table in 70 days.

How Homes Are Developed

Preplanning of each subdivision is worked out by the builder-dealer with each department head, some builder-dealers maintain their own real estate, mortgage, production control, cost analysis, sales, publicity and sales promotion departments.

Financial interest is shown by mortgage banker as builder-dealer and mortgage conselor arrange for loans.

Every detail of finishing up to standards. Here builder-dealer checks paint tone with his superintendent and general foreman to make sure it conforms to the color plan.

Customer relations are maintained long after the family is in its new home. Many homes are sold because satisfied home owners enthusiastically urge their friends to buy.

With Same Plans, Prefab Builders' Homes Differ

A typical example of the thousands of builder-dealers throughout the nation today, is Dale J. Notestine, president of the St. Louis Construction Company, a builder-dealer for National Homes Corporation of Lafayette, Ind.

Notestine, an experienced conventional builder, turned to building National Homes in 1951. Before then his company conventionally was building homes ranging in price from $15,000 to $100,000. Like many other conventional builders, Notestine was quick to sense the significant change that is taking place in home building in the United States. It appeared logical and inevitable to him that the faster, better, money saving methods used by the prefabricating industry and its builder-dealers should replace the slower, more costly, piece-by-piece construction of conventional builders.

Started Slowly.

In the beginning, they started out slowly building 34 homes in Waynesville, Mo., and 66 in Rolla, Mo. The speed with which they built and sold these two projects was so amazing that they called a complete halt to their conventional program and took on the man-sized job of building four homes a day at Marycrest subdivision in Joliet, Ill. Today they have built more than 1000 National Homes and are the largest builder-dealer of Nationals west of the Mississippi.

Now they operate with all the advantages of a 25,000-house-a-year builder because National Homes Corporation's operations are geared to the production of 25,000 homes a year—a rate which consistently sets the pace for the entire home-building industry.

The average builder in the United States produces fewer than 25 houses a year. Only the largest project builders construct as many as 500 or 1000, and their operators are limited to the more populous metropolitan areas, where the demand for housing is greatest.

Consequently there is a growing number of outstanding builders who are anticipating the trend and changing over to the building of prefabricated housing. This means one thing. No longer is it true that once you have seen a prefab you have seen them all. Instead, each prefabricating company is distinctly different and each of its builder dealers operates quite independently from the other. Each is able to offer many individual and completely different features to his buyers.

Although it is true that there is toward the outskirts of town where land is cheaper and homes can be built on larger lots. St. Louis Construction Company, for instance, by going to Ballwin, Mo., is able to build their homes on half-acre lots without an increase in price. Also because of location dealers will appeal more strongly to people working in the area surrounding their subdivisions. This way they are not competing with other fellow dealers.

On the one hand, some builder-dealers may offer such benefits as concrete streets, curbs and gutters, as St. Louis Construction Company, while on the other hand others may only offer asphalt-paved streets.

Still others, due to their size, can erect anywhere from one to five homes a day and thereby provide the purchaser quicker occupancy. Some may offer special attractions, as ceramic tile in the kitchen and bath, some plastic tile, some fully sodded and shrubbed lawns over seeded yards, churches and school right in the development, and many many other features that all add up to one thing: no matter how many builder-dealers are building the same prefabricated floor plan, each one offers his purchasers benefits that make his home and development individually different from all other builder-dealers.

Big as a Baseball.

Home gardeners should appreciate a new "baseball" cabbage, Morden Dwarf. Originated at the Morden experimental farm in Manitoba, Canada, it produces solid, four-inch heads that do not split.

Smith to Preside

E. Paul Smith, president of St. Louis Federal Savings and Loan Association will be one of the presiding officers at the United States Savings and Loan League Management meeting to be held in Colorado Springs the week of April 2. Smith is a former executive committeeman of the United States Savings and Loan League for the district covering Missouri, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma.

Resistant Bean.

The new Tenderbest bush bean is resistant to mosaic, and it is said to bear fine crops. Burpee's Golden Pole bean has tender, fleshy, stringless pods. Even after they mature they can be shelled, and the mature beans have fine flavor.

Glenview's Second Area Now Opened

Open house is scheduled at Dale Construction Co.'s Glenview subdivision today from 1 to 5 p.m. The subdivision, a new residential area of Granite City, is only 20 minutes from downtown St. Louis. Here, two completely furnished three-bedroom National Homes will be on view. Many visitors always are attracted to newest displays by Granite City's National Homes builder.

Glenview, comprising a total of 350 individual home sites, of which 80 have already been completed, is in a location designed for pleasant living. Conveniences include new grade schools and a newly enlarged high school, within walking distance.

Churches of all denominations are also close at hand and many new ones are under construction.

A new $1,500,000 shopping center containing all types of stores is only five blocks from the entrances to Glenview.

In Granite City, one of the fastest growing communities in the nation, the residents enjoy lovely Wilson Park with spacious athletic fields, picnic grounds and beautiful outdoor swimming pool. This too is but a short distance from Glenview.

In Second Addition.

While there are many places of employment available in Granite City due to the large amount of industry located there, to those who work in St. Louis the easy accessibility and the pleasure of going to and from work with the sun at one's back becomes additional comfort to the new home owners of Glenview.

Now in its second addition, Glenview's large lots front on wide asphalt streets, sidewalks and concrete curbing and gutters.

City sewers, as well as adequate storm water drainage lines, are being installed.

Natural gas lines for cooking and heating and city electric lines are also being installed.

A. R. Cooper, president of Dale Construction Co., whose builder group has developed and built more than 700 homes in Granite City, says "Our many Veteran friends will be happy to know that no down payment is required to purchase one of these 1956 model National Homes."

Although National Homes has a wide selection of many models, the two that are currently featured at Glenview have proved to be the most popular types. Both homes, including lot, priced in a low bracket, require a Veteran to pay only the closing cost and a relatively nominal sum each month, including principal, interest, taxes and insurance.

National Homes Delta model is one of the contemporary styles with low pitched roof. This home, 36 feet by 28 feet, has large closets and storage space, plus additional outside storage as well as three good-sized bedrooms, dining area, living room, bath and kitchen. The bath-shower combination is tiled around the tub area. The interior floor plan is designed to create a feeling of open living which is popular in contemporary styles. Radial gas heating, with ducts installed in the floor, is one of the many features of the Delta.

The National Homes Fenley, slightly smaller with a higher pitched roof, also has three comfortably sized bedrooms, large living room, tiled bath with shower, a spacious kitchen with dining area and a large inside utility room. Large closets are also found in the Fenley and the heating is supplied by a gas pipeless counterflow, with radial heating optional.

Both models have many features, such as natural birch cabinets and kitchens in color, designed to blend with all kitchen fixtures and appliances; sliding aluminum windows with easy sliding tracks. Large picture windows contribute to the light appearance of the interior. Automatic hot water heaters and quality plumbing fixtures with chromium bath fixtures are additional attractions of these homes. New 1956 model gas furnaces supply the heating. Buyers have a variety of selections in these two floor plans, with a choice of 12 different exteriors. One may have his choice of lot, type of home, exterior plan, as well as complete choice of interior decorating, including asphalt flooring and bathroom tile.

Although many have visited and selected, due to speed of production delivery may still be had this summer.

Big Windows Put Extra Livability Into Homes

Big windows put extra livability into modern homes; they let in more daylight and sunshine and add to the spaciousness of the open planning found in the model houses featured in National Homes Open-House showing.

"It's no quirk of the building trades that more and more glass is going into today's houses," according to Otto F. Wenzler, technical consultant. Instead, he says, big windows were long coming and were preceded by years of research on the part of glass manufacturers, sash makers, heating engineers, architects and designers to develop a window that would withstand winter cold.

The result of this research and the answer to the spread of big windows, Wenzler says, is the insulating window, which provides as effective insulation as a 10-inch concrete or an 8-inch brick wall.

Makes Many Seeds.

Seeds from cone-bearing trees range from 500 to 500,000 to the pound, says the National Arborist Association. White pine seed averages 27,000 to the pound, red pine, 52,000; black spruce, 400,000; Atlantic white cedar 460,000. The Torrey pine averages about 500 seeds to the pound.

Display Home in Granite City

This is the display home in the Dale Construction Co.'s subdivision in Granite City. It is a National model.

QUICK REACTION

Flow of heat from convectors on hot water or steam heating systems stops almost instantly when comfort demands are satisfied and the heat is turned off. The units cool down quickly in contrast to cast iron radiators which hold heat beyond comfort levels. Special metals in convectors also enable them to supply heat almost instantly when the units are turned on.

C. T. Wilson Home Plant Expanding

St. Louis' own pre-fabricated home manufacturing company, Wilson Homes, Inc., actually began in 1936 as the germ of an idea in C. T. Wilson's mind.

With a successful background of industrial construction and an idea for a special kind of house, Wilson gathered together what he needed to build one house—the first one in St. Louis designed and built around central air conditioning. This put Wilson in the home building industry where his ideas on land development, subdivision planning and factory - controlled methods of precision construction led to the organization of Wilson Homes, Inc., in 1953.

Today Wilson Homes, Inc., is expanding into larger quarters on a 40-acre tract at St. Charles and Taussig roads in Robertson, St. Louis county, where Wilson is further adapting the physical aspects of home construction to modern assembly line methods. This St. Louis plant produces distinctively modern homes in 78 design variations with several optional floor plans. They can be erected with full basements or on concrete slabs.

Exerting a phenomenal appeal to today's young homemaker, Wilson Homes are designed primarily for comfortable family living. Heart of each Wilson Home is a "Wife Saver" kitchen with natural birch cabinets, pass-through cabinet to dining room and built-in breakfast nook. Large living-dining area lends a feeling of luxury and spaciousness to the home. Other compelling features include indirect lighting, generous closet space and window placement that allows full use of wall space.

The typical Wilson Home is a three-bedroom home with full basement designed to sell in low to medium price range, complete on the average lot, and including year around air conditioning.

Thorough research and actual experience in community development has enabled the Wilson Homes organization to offer its builder-dealers competent counsel on such varied features as land development, subdivision and community planning, financing, engineering, selling and advertising.

Wilson is convinced that the purchaser of a well-designed, well-built pre-fabricated home gets greater value for his money because of mass purchasing and mass production facilities and the immense amount of research that paces the industry's progress.

This is one of the brick clad National prefabricated homes being built in Oliver L. Park's St. Joseph Gardens subdivision in Cahokia.

This Is Air View of Parkside, Near Grand Marias State Park

One of the most popular in recent years in East Side developments is said to be Parkside, a subdivision about half way between East St. Louis and Belleville, where prefabricated homes are being erected.

Fast Growth At Parkside Continuing

In less than three years, Parkside has become East St. Louis's fastest growing subdivision.

It is located midway between Belleville and East St. Louis, is bounded on the north side by State street and on the south side by Lake drive.

Grand Marais State Park is located adjacent to Parkside. There one can find such diversified recreation as golfing, fishing, boating, picnicking, and horseback riding.

More than 400 homes have been built in the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth additions to Parkside. The first section of the sixth addition is expected to be completed by June 1. There are 168 homes in the first section, all sold. More than 100 of them have been completed. The balance are being completed at the rate of one house per day. Upon completion of the first section to Parkside, the construction of homes will start immediately on 110 lots in the second section.

Parkside is laid out to become the last word in convenient, comfortable, distinctive city living with a suburban atmosphere, say the developers. The entire section is within easy access to schools, churches, playgrounds and shopping centers. State street, only one block from Parkside, has direct 30 minutes bus service between Belleville and St. Louis. Since Parkside is less than six miles from downtown St. Louis, it is possible under normal traffic to drive the distance in less than 15 minutes, say the builders and downtown East St. Louis can be reached in less than 10 minutes.

Parkside is within the city limits of East St. Louis with fire and police protection and public utilities, such as sanitary sewers, city water, curb and gutters, storm sewers and surfaced streets.

The homes now being built and to be built are all custom-line styles with optional carports and patios for inside and outside living.

There are several exterior house designs available. One of the most popular currently has patio-carport arrangement. The carport may be used as a porch and children's play area in inclement weather.

The low contemporary roof has gravel over built-up layers of mopped on asphalt felt. The white gravel has reflective qualities that aid in keeping the house cool during hot summer months.

Of all the dozens of features incorporated in the new Fleetwood for 1956, the most outstanding is the kitchen and dining area, the builder thinks. A step-saving "U" shaped kitchen has been developed . . . an abundance of wall cabinets, base cabinets with plastic work surfaces, and a large sink are included.

Bedrooms in the Fleetwood are spacious, and many have cross-ventilation. All bedrooms have floor-to-ceiling closets, with sliding doors. In the master bedroom there are twin closets.

The bathroom has modern fixtures, linen closet, and large medicine chest with sliding mirror doors. Custom-Line National houses are available with the low contemporary or the higher conventional roof.

Model of Southern Homes Called Aristocrat

Pictured is the "Aristocrat," model featured in the Southern Homes line for 1956. A luxurious home, the Aristocrat has 2185 square feet over all. It is 84 feet across the front and 32 feet deep. Living room is designed for a fireplace. Kitchen provides room for informal eating when it is not necessary to use the formal dining room.

Fancy Baths Still Require Pipe Beneath

How well the fancy colored plumbing fixtures and scientifically planned bathrooms function still will depend on the hidden soil, waste and sewer pipes that serve them, declared Homer E. Robertson of the Cast Iron Soil Pipe Institute, a leading plumbing industry spokesman. He added that home buyers and home owners must continue to pay careful attention to the unseen plumbing while admiring the beautiful styling and modern efficiency of the new bathrooms. This is vital, he said, to family health and comfort and to the home's resale value.

For example, larger families now put common plumbing fixtures to increased use — bath tubs, wash basins, toilets, kitchen sinks and showers. Also, many new devices are popular —home laundries, dish washers, garbage disposal units. It's estimated that the average home's sanitary system carries away over 200 gallons of soil and waste each day! Obviously, a pipe failure within or outside the house could result in a health hazard as well as costly destruction of decoration, landscaping and paved areas.

A home waste-disposal system has three parts. The soil stack with its branches from various plumbing fixtures join a main drain which empties into the house sewer outside the building. The vent stack and its branches from each fixture facilitate proper flushing and drainage and carry away possible sewer gas. The house sewer underground connects the soil stack (a few feet outside the foundation) to the city sewer or private septic tank.

If your home's soil and waste lines are not cast iron, certain precautions should be taken. Indoors, avoid installing heavy built-ins over them and provide an access panel for emergency repairs. When hanging a heavy picture, aim for a stud, because nails can puncture non-cast iron pipe. Should remodeling require opening the walls, check pipes for leaks or corrosion. If bubbles form after brushing questionable pipe surfaces with a soap solution, gas or air is escaping. Prevent trouble later by repairing them immediately.

Outdoors, avoid building driveways or planting trees over house sewers that are not cast iron; otherwise, vehicles might crush them or roots could penetrate the joints and clog them. The house sewer can be located easily for this purpose. Usually, it follows the straightest line between the house entry and city sewer connection or the septic tank. The latter is on the downhill side of the house and is quickly located in summer; in winter, it often is marked by a melted patch of snow.

One of the prefabricated homes being constructed here by the Bach Co., Realtors, and others is the "Best" home manufactured at Effingham, Ill. The company moved to Effingham from Peoria about two years ago and came into the St. Louis market at that time.

Predicts 'Prefabs' Will Lead

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN, Tenn.—P. S. Knox Jr., of Thomson, Ga., president of the Prefabricated Home Manufacturers' Institute, predicted here that eventually 90 per cent of all the single-family homes erected in America would be factory-produced.

"As leaders for better and more economical housing," Knox said, "we will employ the new and startling techniques that are now discernible on the industrial horizon and we will carry the mass production of homes to a dominant place in the economy. The day is gone when we look at the business of mass-produced housing as merely minor improvements on the old carpenter operations.

Shouldn't Be Content.

"In comparison with the job ahead, however, we have only made a good start. While we can take pride in having captured about 10 per cent of the single-family housing market, our job is to capture 20, 40 and ultimately 90 per cent of this tremendous field. The only thing that will stand in the way of this goal in the next 10 or 20 years is lack of vigorous action and imaginative thinking on our own part.

"We should not be content to operate in terms of materials and methods whose only merits are the stamp of satisfactory performance in the past, although I am not unmindful that this very young group is now leading the parade of progress in the field of better housing. No one will deny that a revolution is taking place in home building with mechanization replacing the inefficient hand operations to the benefit of home owners, labor builders, material manufacturers and the mortgage financing groups, and all this contributes to thriving communities and a stronger nation."

Outlook Good.

The housing outlook for the next year is good, Senator John Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, told members of the Institute.

"The economy continues to grow, and individual income continues to climb," he said. But he also pointed to the "discouraging and sobering influence" of "the worsening position of farm families" and the tightness of the mortgage market as limitations on high levels of house activity.

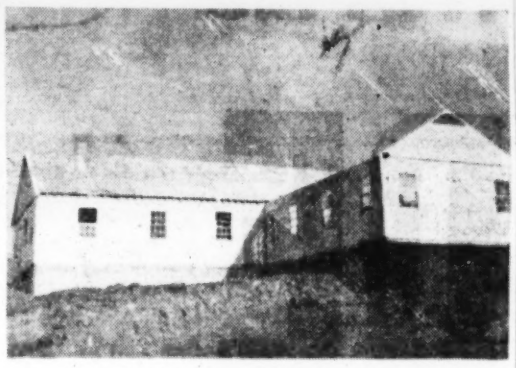

To meet the needs and demands of the future, Senator Sparkman declared that at least 1,500,000 new homes should be built each year.

In warning about the farm crisis, he said that farm families "are not only a great potential market for the purchase and modernization of homes; their purchasing power, or lack of it, plays a great part in the well-being, and consequently the home-buying or home-renting abilities, of city dwellers."

Wins Citation

The modern bright-colored annex to the Bristol Primary School in Webster Groves, Mo., a top winner in the 1955 competition of the American Association of School Administrators, was given further national recognition in the March Architectural Forum, design and building industry magazine.

Garden Transform County Home

This was how it looked around the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Shapleigh when they were busy building it.

This is how the Shapleigh home looks after a gardening program was developed. The home will be one of those to be opened on a spring garden tour, coming soon.

Barren Area Transformed By Gardening

An example of how planning and hard work can transform barren land into an attractive setting for a home and surrounding garden is found at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Shapleigh, R. R. No. 13, Mason Road, Kirkwood.

The Shapleigh home and gardens will be one of 10 residences and gardens that will be open to visitors participating in the Garden Club of St. Louis spring garden tour April 27, 28 and 29. Theme of the tour will be "What Makes a Garden," and consultants will be on hand at some of the homes to answer any gardening questions.

Proceeds from the tour will go to the Missouri Botanical Gardens. Tickets, which cost $2, may be obtained at the Missouri Botanical Garden and by mail from Mr. William Weld, 9936 Litzinger road, St. Louis 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Shapleigh are familiar with "What Makes a Garden," because they literally made their home and garden themselves. Eight year ago, the land on which their home now stands was a barren eroded clay pasture, devoid of topsoil, and cluttered with deep erosion ditches. Today, as a result of their hard work, their seven-room prefabricated Cape Cod home stands on the land, surrounded by three attractive small gardens.

Compost Down First.

Their home (a prefabricated house) was built eight years ago on a 13.77-acre tract. Constructed on a partial basement, it consists of living room, dining room, kitchen, four bedrooms, and three baths. It is Cape Cod in style, white clapboard with dark green shutters and small paned windows.

Before final grading was completed, the Shapleighs put a thick layer of compost in the immediate area of the house. The compost consisted of leaves, debris, and clay produced humus about 10 feet below the surface.

No topsoil was hauled in. The Shapleighs planted Sudan grass, plowed it under, then limited the ground. Next they planted Lespedeza and rye which they permitted to grow and re-seed itself. They are currently planting a mixture of rye and blue grass and now have a good stand of grass, most of which is kept as a pasture.

Ditches caused by erosion were filled in with debris such as bricks and tree branches. Dirt was pushed in on top of the fill with a tractor, and the steepest places on the hill were terraced. A large ditch near the front entrance has been planted with honeysuckle which is clipped very low to permit growth of spring bulbs.

Ground around the house and in a vegetable garden has been fertilized twice with ammonium nitrate and regular applications of manure and compost.

Between the house and Mason road, which lies just to the north, the owners planted by hand a hedge of 5000 Multiflora roses. Now, after eight years, the hedge is nearly six feet high and serves to fence in horses. Birds enjoy the hedge berries and it has added to the privacy of the home.

Originally there were no trees near the house. Today, two small orchards consisting of various fruit trees add to the general landscaping.

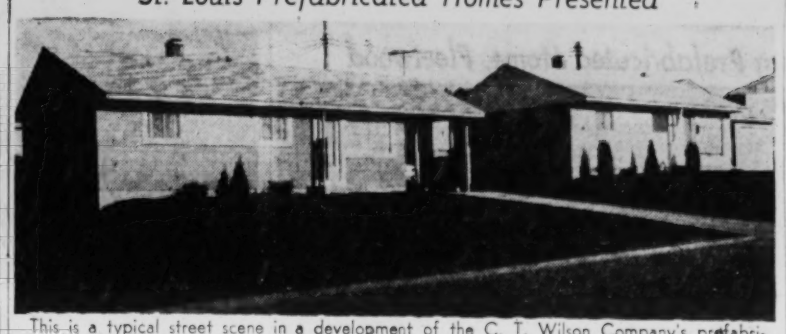

The shape of the house has enabled the owners to create three attractive small gardens:

1. An east door-yard garden. The garden is an evergreen carpeted in myrtle. Excellent specimens of Ilex convexa and Euyonomus vegetus climb the chimney. Earliest bloom consists of jonquils, narcissi and grape hyacinths. There are four white dogwood trees which bloom at the same time as do clusters of white Carrara tulips.

2. A west garden consists of flower beds of perennials and annuals along brick walks edged in Bulgarian ivy. (This ivy was developed by the Missouri Botanical Garden and has proved particularly hardy in this climate.) In summer, a beautiful Henryi Clematic spills over a low brick wall.

3. A north garden outside the dining room window features azaleas and rhododendrons around a brick terrace. The terrace is enclosed with an attractive iron railing.

St. Louis Prefabricated Homes Presented

This is a typical street scene in a development of the C. T. Wilson Company's prefabricated homes in the St. Louis area. Wilson homes are architecturally designed, built around the idea of engineered air-conditioning as part of the basic planning, and with a step-saving kitchen.

Schickedanz Has Plans for a New P.&H. Subdivision

The W. A. Schickedanz Agency, Inc., real estate dealers and developers of subdivisions, held a meeting at the Dubonnet room of the Hotel Belleville at which W. A. Schickedanz, chairman of the board of the corporation, reported the agency's plans for 1956.

Present were contractor Earl Smalling, Marshall Smith, of Louisville, Ky., area representative of the Harnischfeger Corporation of Port Washington, Wis. Schickedanz reported, in introducing Smith, that a Veterans' panel of brick veneer P. & H. homes would be erected, and that the agency had exclusive franchise rights for Harnischfeger's homes in St. Clair county.

Schickedanz predicted that the future of new home construction lays in making it possible for home owners to use present homes as trade-in material just the same as automobiles, refrigerators, television sets, etc.

All indications pointed, according to Schickedanz, toward Belleville's biggest building boom during the coming season.

"A recent subdivision bill passed by the Belleville City Council was definitely a step in the right direction and the minimum requirements in that bill have been met under the Schickedanz's development program for the past three years," the group was told.

Important Feature.

An important feature in the development of the home property is the intelligent and artistic use of trees, according to the National Arborist Association.

Arrow Plans Pattonville Subdivision

The Arrow Construction Company was organized in 1953. It's president is Mr. Russell T. Schwartz. Arrow builds conventional and prefabricated homes and in the last two years has completed two major subdivisions.

One subdivision consisted of approximately 35 houses, being of conventional brick construction. The second was a subdivision of some 30 National Homes in Webster Groves.

Arrow is presently working on plans to develop a subdivision of 300 homes in the area just south of old St. Charles Rock road and west of Lindbergh boulevard. This subdivision is in the engineering stage at this time.

Arrow has been active in the commercial buildings, principally in the University City area. The company now is erecting an office building at 8129 Delmar.

Prefabrication was of vital interest to Arrow, almost from the inception of the company and the firm has held a franchise with National Homes Corporation for about three and one half years.

"We believe there is a tremendous future in prefabrication and feel that there are two major advantages to prefabrication over conventional construction," said Schwartz. First, the speed of erection or completion of a home is greatly increased. Secondly, the materials used in prefabricated homes are of a far better quality than those which a custom house builder can afford or can assemble at a given price. Prefabrication also affords the builder standardization, assistance in the field of financing and in technical information or data.

Arrow Construction Company is relatively a young company in the years of its existence and in the age of its principles. Schwartz, Arrow's president, is 30 years old. He attended Washington University School of Engineering for two years prior to World War II. He became interested in the building field after his return from the services, having served in the Army during World War II. Prior to organizing Arrow Construction Company, Schwartz served a two-year apprenticeship with a real estate company, principally in handling new construction.

Arrow maintains offices at 8131 Delmar. Serving Arrow as vice president and treasurer is Rosenmery Schwarz; as secretary, Priscilla J. Krause, and as general superintendent, Walter Schmidt. "The company is staffed by a capable office force as well as an efficient conscientious group of carpenters, all of whom have been with the company for a period of over two years," Schwart said.

Another Modern Prefabricated Home, Fleetwood

Another modern model of prefabricated home indicating that the industry has "come of age" is this one called "The Fleetwood", which is among those being erected by St. Louis area builders in subdivisions and on individual lots for home owners.

Easy on the Back.

Mopping floors becomes easier and quicker, with a minimum of back-bending effort, when a toe-operated galvanized steel mop-wringer pail is used.

Many Builders, Buyer Like Fernbrook Home

The Fernbrook is the home in the J. Ben Miller Fernbrook subdivision in Florissant, is also one of five model homes being displayed in Westridge Acres' Section four and in other subdivisions of prefabricated homes. It has three bedrooms, 12x20 living room, large kitchen and dining area, bath, full basement and attached garage. A third bedroom adjacent to the kitchen is ideal for a dining room, study or TV room.

Thrift Firm In Pre-Fabs For 32 Years

Thrift Lumber & Supply Company has been in the lumber prefabricating business the last 32 years. This experience in the building field has shown that the trend is towards precision cut factory assembled homes, Thrift officials declare.

Thrift has gone one step further. A customer does not have to take any standard plan, can have any home he wants with brick or stone construction as well as frames. The home is built to standard specifications.

According to all records, 17 per cent of loans made two years ago by the FHA were on pre-fabricated homes. In the last year this increased to 60 per cent.

It is more feasible to assemble homes in the shop, under strict specifications that qualify them for FHA or G.I. loans. This eliminates men working in the rain, snow or storm weather and they can do a better job, says Thrift.

Such homes are built of select quality material as on site homes.

Large scale carload buying guarantees top material at economy prices, say the manufacturers.

Firms Here Using Illinois Best Homes

Lloyd Baker is building three bedroom "Best" homes in a subdivision in Creve Coeur. He has a display house on Oakhaven Lane, off Grazier road, two blocks south of Olive Street road.

Keeley and Cherrington are building Best homes in Maplewood, the Markway Construction Co. is opening St. Joseph Acres in Ballwin with Best homes, the L. G. Mayes Real Estates Co. at Centralia, Mo., is using Best homes; the T. & M. Construction Co. of St. Genevieve is completing a Best display house there.

The WestWard Realty, Inc., is finishing a 40-house subdivision of Best Homes in Overland, and the Wilson Construction & Development Co. of Edwardsville, Ill., is erecting its first Best home this week.

Contrast Between Two April Weddings

(Editor's Note: April weddings are planned for the movie queen and her real life Prince, for the ex-President's daughter and her newspaper man. The similarity ends there. Seldom has there been more contrast than between the two romances—and the preparations for the weddings.)

By Cynthia Lowry

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP).

THE beautiful blonde movie star will marry the Prince, son of a thousand years of princes, in the Romanesque Cathedral of Monaco.

Little girls will throw flowers, there will be dancing in the streets, and fireworks. The day of the wedding will be a national holiday, delegations of dignitaries will arrive. There will be affairs with men in white tie and dress uniforms and full medals, their ladies in rich ball gowns, ablaze with gems.

GRACE KELLY . . . DANCING IN THE STREETS.

That's the fairy-tale romance, a real-life re-enactment of every little girl's dream of happiness.

The pretty blonde girl from Independence, Mo., will marry the newspaper man from Zebulon, N.C., son of a druggist, in the small red brick Trinity Episcopal Church of Independence where her mother and father were married and where she sang in the choir. A reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents.

This is the American teen-ager's real-life marriage. This is the story of a typical wedding, full of simplicity and warmth, even though the bride is a former President's daughter.

Both of these weddings will take place next month and a nation, sentimental and incurably romantic, will linger and dream a bit over both of them.

On April 19, Grace Patricia Kelly, 26, daughter of a self-made millionaire Philadelphia contractor, ex-model, ex-New York actress and, she insists, ex-movie star, will marry His Serene Highness Prince Rainier III of Monaco, 32, who possesses also 23 other titles ranging from duke to seigneur.

Two days later Mary Margaret Truman, 32, daughter of the thirty-third President of the United States, concert singer, television and radio performer, will marry Clifton Daniel, 43, New York newspaper man and former foreign correspondent.

The four principals—and the trappings of the two romances—couldn't offer a more vivid contrast. From their original meetings to wedding plans the two stories illustrate colorfully the number of miles between Independence, Mo., and Monte Carlo to the east and Hollywood to the west.

● STARTING at the beginning, compare these two courses of true love:

Grace Kelly, a prime box office property, was presented to His Serene Highness last May when, with a photographer, she was making publicity shots against the backdoor of the fourteenth century palace of the Grimaldis. The next time she saw him was in December when he dropped in to call on the Philadelphia Kellys. Less than two weeks later they announced their engagement.

Margaret Truman met suave, graying Daniel in early November when they were dinner guests of mutual friends in New York. They dated around New York regularly for a couple of months, Daniel proposed late in January, was accepted, received the blessing of his prospective in-laws. On March 2 he gave her a ring. No one suspected a thing. Then Daniel took his girl to Zebulon to meet his parents—and rumors started.

Then there are the wedding plans.

Miss Kelly will have six attendants and four flower girls. There will be almost a week of festivities, including two football games and a special appearance of a London ballet, preceding the ceremonies. There will even be two ceremonies, a day apart. The first is the civil ceremony, in the palace throne room. The second, and more important, is the religious one, in the cathedral with the Archbishop of Monaco presiding.

● MISS TRUMAN, on the other hand, will have a "small, quiet wedding for the families," with two of her oldest, closest friends as attendants. She has always disliked formal wedding gowns and will be married in a short beige gown, a combination of lace and tulle.

MARGARET TRUMAN . . . QUIET HOME RECEPTION.

"After all," she remarked to a friend, "I'm not an 18-year-old girl."

After the simple Episcopal ceremony performed by the rector, the Rev. Patric Hutton, the couple, their parents and invited guests will return to the Trumans' old-fashioned Victorian house for an old-fashioned, American wedding reception.

After that, the honeymoon.

The Prince and Princess will go for a cruise on their 125-foot yacht. Margaret and her bridegroom will have a honeymoon, but again in the American tradition, the destination is a secret.

And then—

Margaret and her husband will return to New York—and an apartment. He'll go back to work. She'll continue her career, if she wants to. He says he won't object.

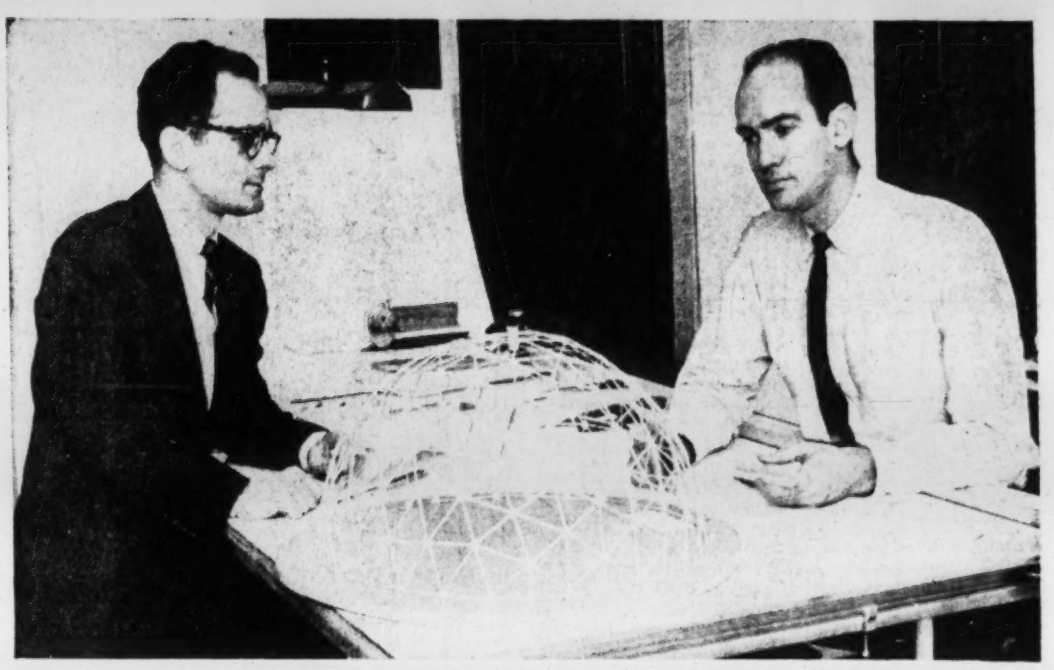

Princess Grace of Monaco will become chatelaine of a 120-room palace and preside over a number of other establishments the Prince maintains. She has agreed to give up her career, the Prince says.

Ah, April. Ah, romance.

Preparations for the Jubilee

Professional Staff, Augmented by Volunteer Committees, Busy on Plans for Celebration to Be Held Here Month of September

By Dickson Terry

ALFRED STERN, LEFT, MANAGING DIRECTOR OF THE MID-AMERICA JUBILEE, AND JACK ROBINSON, ART DIRECTOR AND DESIGNER, INSPECT A MODEL OF ONE OF THE BUILDINGS OF THE EXPOSITION, A GEODESIC DOME, WHICH WILL HOUSE THE STYLE CENTER WHERE MODELS WILL SHOW SHOES, HATS, DRESSES AND SO FORTH DESIGNED AND MADE IN ST. LOUIS.

HAVING received word that the Mid-America Jubilee has shifted into high gear and is gaining speed and momentum every day, we availed ourselves of an invitation from Frank Doyle, director of promotion, to come by Jubilee headquarters, have a cup of coffee and see how things are rolling.

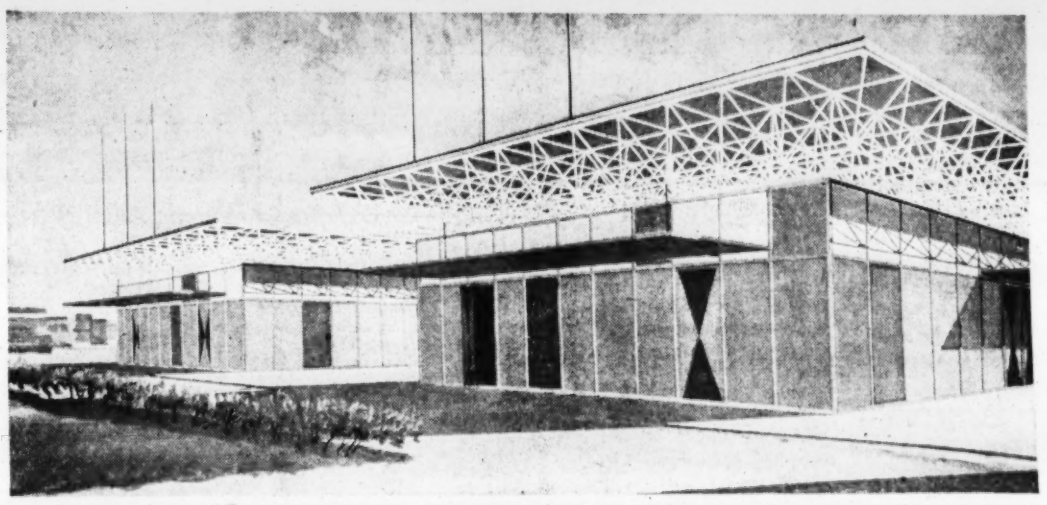

The Jubilee, which now has a working staff of a half dozen people—this doesn't include, of course, the 650 or so citizens serving on several dozen volunteer committees—has quarters on the fourth floor of the General American Life Insurance building at 1501 Locust street. The space provides a business office, an office for the managing director, Alfred Stern, and a large studio where the mechanics of implementing the show are being carried on by Jack Robinson, art director and designer.

Doyle first turned us over to Stern, a voluble and articulate man of 39 who once was a child prodigy and now looks a child prodigy grown up. He is short, thin, dark, intense, wears horn-rimmed glasses and smokes almost constantly.

He can talk for hours without stopping about what the Jubilee, which will be held on the riverfront all during the month of September, means to a city such as St. Louis. His conversation is serious, punctuated now and then by colorful bits of metaphor. Of St. Louis, for instance, he says:

"This is a city of a great many sound values, but it has always been amazingly backward in its ability to dramatize those values. That's why you hear St. Louis called things like 'the Dowager City'. Well, we're going to give the old dowager a shot in the arm."

Stern was brought to St. Louis a year ago when the Chamber of Commerce first conceived the idea of some kind of a jubilee. He made a 30-day preliminary survey, and came up with a 58-page report which completely sold City-County Cavalcade, Inc., the non-profit sponsoring group of the Chamber of Commerce-inspired exposition.

WITH A FEW EXCEPTIONS, THE BUILDINGS AT THE MID-AMERICA JUBILEE WILL FOLLOW THE DESIGN SHOWN HERE. IT IS CALLED "UNISTRUT," IS MODERN IN DESIGN, FUNCTIONAL, AND ECONOMICAL IN THAT IT CAN BE TAKEN DOWN AND USED AGAIN. EXCEPTIONS WILL BE FOUND IN THE BEER GARDEN, WHICH WILL CAPTURE A GAY NINETIES FLAVOR, AND THE GEODESIC DOME.

Well it might, because Stern is a man who knows what he is about. When he came to St. Louis he had just finished a summer-long centennial celebration at Flint, Mich. Before that he had staged a year-long centennial celebration for Omaha, and before that a year-long affair for Detroit, celebrating that city's 250th birthday. The Jubilee here, incidentally, is to celebrate St. Louis's 200th birthday. Stern has also staged jubilees in Portland, Maine, Winston-Salem, N. C. among other places.

BORN in Cleveland, O., he became interested in things artistic when, as a small boy, he was taken to Germany for a visit. An uncle, Professor Ernest Stern, was art director for Max Reinhardt, and young Alfred pined to follow in his uncle's footsteps. Fortunately, he had a lot of what it takes.

In grade school he got interested in oil painting and was one of those selected from the various city schools to attend Saturday Morning Art Classes for Gifted Children. He was seven years old when he was selected, the youngest in the group. He stayed with it until he got too old and they kicked him out.

The classes encouraged complete freedom of expression, and young Stern learned to work in every medium, from making marionettes to wood cuts. His chief love was design, and when he was 13 years old he was doing professional designing for a firm, doing things for children's rooms, such as wallpaper and furniture. "Designed for a child by a child" was the advertising gimmick.

Then when he was 16 and they had dropped him from the art classes, he quit school and stayed home for a year and just thought. He also read plays and designed stage sets for them, and then he set out with his portfolia of designs under his arm and braced several producers. He got a job, at the age of 17, as an assistant to the art director of the famed Roxy theater in New York. From there he went to the Music Hall in Rockefeller Center, where he worked as assistant to Vincent Minelli and the late John Murray Anderson.

When the New York World's Fair was being put together he was given the job of account executive on entertainment for the department of exhibits and concessions. It was during his term with the New York Fair that he realized that cities, states and industries needed him.

"They don't know how to dramatize themselves," he says. "I saw they needed help." Stern set out to help them, and he's been doing it ever since.

No exhibitor is going to come into one of his expositions, set up a table with dozen cans of paint on it and a sign which says, "We make Peachy-dandy paint."

What then, we asked, is the alternative?

"There are lots of them," Stern says. "Let people mix their own colors. Have a man there to show the do-it-yourself people the right and wrong way to paint, have a color consultant on hand—there are any number of things you can do to dramatize paint. In fact," he adds, "there's no exhibitor with a problem that I can't help with ideas."

Stern's principal job, however, is to co-ordinate all the effort going into the show, including the work of 650 people on various committees. Right now his staff consists of Robinson, an administrative assistant and several secretaries. Coming in June will be several others, including James Vincent Russo, a New York producer and director, who will serve in that capacity for the stage spectacle, and Norman Zeno, a writer of New York and Hollywood, who will write the show.

Stern wants it strictly understood that this show isn't going to be a pageant with a lot of people in white-cotton wigs standing around signing treaties with quill pens. Rather, it will be a musical romance using a nucleus of professional performers surrounded by several hundred local singers, dancers and spear carriers, and will deal with the historical development of the area, with the widest possible participation by the whole community. For instance, Stern wants to bring in all the nationality groups in St. Louis.

"The Polish people, for instance," he points out, "have preserved a lot of their folk dances. But Poles dance only for other Poles at a Polish hall. I want them to dance for everybody."

STERN has no personal staff as such, but he has a number of experts who have worked for him and on whom he calls when he needs them. Among the foremost of these is Robinson.

Robinson, 32 years old, holds forth in the large, well-lighted studio, which has a desk and a big architect's drawing table. The walls are covered with sketches, both in color and black and white, of buildings, sections of buildings, backgrounds, and various other reflections of a designer's thinking while he's in the throes.

Robinson is a tall thin man with dark hair rapidly receding in front, a friendly smile and also with an air of knowing what he's doing. He is a native of Dallas, Tex., went to school at Southern Methodist University and then spent six years in the Air Force, first as a pilot and then, after the war, as an officer in personnel research where he was concerned with things such as man-power analysis.

He studied art while at the university, was particularly interested in sculpture and then became fascinated with industrial design which, he thinks, is a sort of natural outgrowth of sculpture.

"It's three-dimensional, which satisfies the frustrated sculptor, which is what most industrial designers are," he said. So after the Air Force duty he went to Pratt Institute in New York and gave himself to industrial design. Then he joined Paul McCobb Design Associates where he designed interiors, furniture, lamps, radio and TV sets, cameras and sewing machines, to name a few. He also did large interiors, such as hotel lobbies and department stores, in which connection he first came in contact with Stern.

Robinson has been at work for some weeks now on the basic five elements of the show, which will be the agriculture exhibit area, the spectacle show, various exhibit buildings, the beer garden and restaurant and the amusement area.

The exhibit buildings will utilize a type of construction known as "unistrut" which, to over-simplify it, is something like a youngster's erector set. It consists of steel frames and sections that bolt together. The buildings will be modern, functional, and have the added advantage of being completely salvageable. They can be taken apart, put away and used again. In view of the fact it is planned to make the Jubilee an annual affair, this would seem expedient.

ONE of the chief attractions, or at least attention-getters, at the show, from an architectural standpoint, will be a 100-foot geodesic dome. A geodesic dome, for those who have fallen behind, is a type of architecture evolved by Buckminster Fuller, and can only be described, briefly, as the farthest projection of all advanced thinking in new building techniques. The dome will house a fashion center, where there will be regularly scheduled fashion shows featuring St. Louis designs.

The beer garden incidentally, will go to the other extreme and revert to the turn of the century. Robinson has stacks and files of old newspapers and prints showing St. Louis beer gardens and other hot spots of the period, and he hopes to capture the real atmosphere.

But what Robinson mostly wants to do is arouse interest in new ideas of construction. "I'd like to do as much to influence the taste of people today as the buildings at the World's Fair did back in 1904," he said. "I want to get people to thinking in the future, in the use of new materials and ideas, and an exposition should be the place where you show people new things."

The site of the Jubilee will be along the waterfront extending from Market to Poplar, an area of 37 acres, which will have the Old Cathedral near the northwest corner. The Cathedral will become an integral part of the show. The stage for the daily spectacle will be constructed in front of the Cathedral, which will serve as a backdrop. Its pillars may be the pillars of a public building in one scene, a plantation mansion in another. The grandstand will face the Cathedral.

A HIGH fence will be built around the whole area and we are all going to pay to get in. It will cost 75 cents for adults to get into the grounds and 35 cents for children. The spectacle show, which will be shown once nightly, six nights a week, will cost $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children. Or, you can buy the economical package deal which will let adults in the grounds and into the show for $2, and $1 for children.

They are also going to print 1956 season tickets on gold-colored cardboard, which will sell for $10, and admit the holder any time to anything.

Everything on the grounds will conform to the architectural and color schemes, Stern made it clear, even the hot dog stands. Robinson will design them and specify the colors.

"If we tell the man with the ferris wheel it has to be pink and gray," said Stern firmly, "it will be pink and gray, or no ferris wheel."

The official colors of the show, incidentally, are "jubilee red" and "mid-America blue." The emblem, which was designed by a St. Louis artist, Jean Flowers, is remarkable mainly in that there is no figure of St. Louis on a horse, and no steamboat. Stern concedes that it took considerable doing, but through the exercise of diligence and will power, they forebore.

Instead, the emblem, stylized almost to the point of abstraction, features a steer's head, some plants, and some smokestacks symbolizing industry.

The gates will open at 11 o'clock every morning and close at 11 o'clock every night. However, the grounds will remain open until 12. The gates will close at 11 to give time to get everybody out by midnight, especially out of the beer garden.

To sum it up, most of the designs are in the process of being finished now, and exhibitors are buying space. The Jubilee has been underwritten by St. Louis industry to the tune of $400,000, which should more than take up the deficit of some $180,000 which is expected after they spend an estimated $850,000 and take in an estimated $670,000.

In June work of filling and grading the ground and laying a sewage line and water lines will get under way. Walkways will be laid out, the buildings will start going up, and on Saturday, the first day of September, the gates will open, the band will start to play, and the show will begin.

THE EXPOSITION GROUNDS ALONG THE WATERFRONT, OUTLINED ABOVE, WILL EXTEND FROM MARKET STREET SOUTH TO POPLAR AND COVER APPROXIMATELY 37 ACRES.

On Audubon Tour

Severe Drouth, Fires In Southern Florida

By Leonard Hall

ATLANTA, Ga.

NO column, unless it were written daily, could keep abreast of the travels of an Audubon Screen Tour lecturer. And no Audubon lecturer, traveling at the rate he does, could turn out a daily column. Since we landed back in Miami from the Caribbean we have traversed the length of Florida, or most of it, five times and are now far up in Georgia and will soon be headed north to the Great Smoky Mountains and then westward on the last long leg of our journey.

Florida is a state which almost defies description, although if we had to wrap it up in a few words for the length of our stay, the words certainly would be "warm sunshine and hospitality." But a few words aren't enough, so I'll try to telescope our adventures into some inadequate paragraphs. When we flew in from Jamaica, our good friend Syd Heckler met us at the airport and we went to supper at Wayne Short's jewel of a house on the ocean at Coconut Grove. Then, though it was after dark, we loaded our gear into the faithful Clipper and headed north for Clewiston on Lake Okeechobee where we hoped to spend part of a day birding with ornithologist Alex Sprunt of the Audubon Society, who makes his headquarters there during early spring.

Southern Florida has been suffering from a severe drouth and we passed tremendous fires burning both in the Everglades and in the drained pasture lands where Brahman cattle graze. This combination of fire and dry weather has dropped the water table dangerously in the whole area and must be taking a heavy toll of birds and all other wildlife. In fact, I'd venture that today Florida has the worst fire record of any state. Much of the burning is deliberate to control palmetto scrub on the grazing lands, yet the removal of green cover from the land and the destruction of humus year after year will eventually cause irreparable damage to the state's soil and perhaps even change the rainfall pattern.

● LAKE OKEECHOBEE isn't an easy place to go birding. It is entirely surrounded by a great hurricane dike to protect the grazing, vegetable and sugar cane lands against tidal waves which have on occasion literally lifted several feet of water out of the lake bed and blown it across the land. Also, due to drouth and drainage, the lake level is far below normal and birds have been forced to move far out. Yet as we drove around the west boundary, a distance of some 60 miles, we found a little road leading out to a fishing camp and turned aside to see whether it would lead to the water. Before long we saw the vast expanse of Okeechobee stretching ahead of us; and perched atop the dike, peering through a bird-spotting scope, was a tall, lean outdoorsman whom we recognized as Sprunt, even seen from the back. Standing next to him with binoculars at his eyes was our friend Tommy Beers of Chicago. Picking out these two species in an area of some 2000 square miles not only made us feel pretty proud of our birding ability but proved once more that it is a mighty small world, after all.

Incidentally, we saw here our only white pelicans of the trip; great birds with a nine-foot wingspread which are uncommon enough to be a find for the casual observer. There were also cattle egrets and some ducks and shore birds, as well as Audubon's Caracara and two bald eagles. These helped run our Florida bird list up to about 100 species, which isn't bad when you're doing most of the observing from a car at 60 miles an hour and haven't time to stop for every duck, shorebird and songbird. But we missed seeing the vanishing Everglade kite and also the painted buntings which are present in this area.

● AFTER DRIVING to Jacksonville at the north edge of Florida, we returned to beautiful Winter Park in the center of the state where I lectured at the well-attended annual meeting of the Florida Audubon Society before starting south to Key West. This active organization numbers John Storer and many other fine ornithologists among its members; John being mentioned particularly because we've used his book on basic ecology, "The Web of Life," in many conservation workshops.

Interesting enough, we found that the theme of the year for the Florida society was the water resources of the state. Even with a normally high rainfall and the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico on three sides, fire and continued unplanned drainage of the great marshlands and swamps, as well as over-grazing and cutting of timber are beginning to cause intelligent Floridians to think seriously about this important subject. There is much pulling and hauling between cattlemen, vegetable growers, lumbermen, real estate developers, sugar corporations, Army engineers and industry about the use of water. And many wildlife species, like the little Key deer and the Everglade kite, are rapidly losing out.

Some people, however, are concerned about these things and I think that at the end of National Wildlife Week it is worth quoting Aldo Leopold's epitaph to the vanished passenger pigeon: "For one species to mourn the extinction of another is a new thing under the sun. . . . We who have lost our passenger pigeons mourn the loss. Had the funeral been ours, the birds would hardly have mourned us. In this fact, rather than in the ball-point pen, the plastic age and the suicidal H-bomb, lies man's objective superiority over the beasts." Sometimes I wonder, though, whether there are enough of us who mourn the loss of the passenger pigeon to make any difference.

Stories From the Life of Jesus

Jesus's Entry Into Jerusalem

By April Oursler Armstrong

"THERE HE IS! THERE IS JESUS!" CRIED A VOICE FROM THE THRONGS. "SEE HE RIDES ON A WHITE DONKEY LIKE A KING!"

Happy Throngs Welcome Him — 'Blessed Is He That Comes in the Name of the Lord'

CHAPTER 22

THE roads leading to Jerusalem were clotted with pilgrims, families from all parts of the world hurrying to celebrate the Passover Feast at the Temple. Inside the city the narrow cobblestoned streets were crowded with thousands of other pilgrims.

One question filled the air: "Where is Jesus?"

In the bazaars, the marketplaces, the courts of the Temple, the people asked:

"Isn't the Master coming to celebrate the feast with us?"

And in the dark council rooms of the Temple, the Pharisees and chief priests who hated Jesus asked the same question, for a different reason:

"Where is Jesus? We cannot destroy Him until we find Him. Is He afraid?"

Jesus was on His way. As the sun climbed in the clear spring-blue sky that Sunday morning, He was coming with His twelve apostles.

The wind whirled the shy green leaves of the olives. The world seemed new with that dawning, after days of sodden chill rain.

But the apostles wore long faces, and their eyes were dark-circled. Only the night before Jesus had spoken of His death, death that would strike Him in Jerusalem. They were afraid for Him, and for themselves.

"We will follow Him, even to death," they said. "But why insist on going headlong into danger? Why does He lead us to Jerusalem?"

"And why — WHY — does He smile this morning?

At the foot of the Mount of Olives, in sight of Jerusalem, Jesus paused. He called two disciples, and with a mysterious smile said:

"Go into that village. And there you shall find a colt tied, upon which no man has yet sat. Bring him here!"

Bring him here? Without paying? Or asking, Lord?

"If any man ask you: 'Why do you loose this colt?' you shall say to him: 'Because the Lord has need of his service.'"

Obediently the disciples went. Down into the valley they hurried, and through the gates of the town.

There by the gate stood an ass, a farm beast used to the yoke, and her baby colt. The farmers who owned the beasts, lounged idly by.

Nervously the two disciples unhitched the young donkey.

"Hey—what are you doing, untying that colt?" asked one farmer.

"The Lord has need of him," answered the disciples.

And that was enough! Without a question, without objection, the farmers smiled, "Take him!"

The disciples, grinning in amazement, led the little white donkey by the short tether up the slope to Jesus. And when the Master asked them, they laid their extra robes over the donkey's back for a makeshift saddle, and the Master straddled him, and rode slowly down the mountain.

Following on foot they whispered:

"Isn't it strange that after three years of traveling only on foot He suddenly rides? Of course, He SHOULD ride—but why now, and why on an ass?"

Later they were to understand. Then they would remember, the words spoken centuries before by the prophet Zacharias, the words describing the coming of Christ:

"Behold your King will come to you, the just and saviour. He is poor, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt, the foal of an ass."

SLOWLY Jesus rode, and they followed on the steep path to Jerusalem.

Then a most extraordinary thing happened.

One moment Jesus and the twelve were traveling unnoticed and unattended. The next, they were the center of a singing, shouting, glorious crowd, the greatest, happiest parade in history.

"There He is! There is Jesus!" cried a voice from the throngs. "See He rides on a white donkey like a king!"

One voice cried out, and thousands joined it. The pilgrims on the road, dusty and footsore, whirled to face Jesus with joy shining on their faces.

And in Jerusalem the people heard that Jesus was coming, and they ran to welcome Him.

"Hosannah!" they cried. "Blessed is He that comes in the name of the Lord!"

"Hosannah to the Son of David!"

Hundreds of thousands of people surged around Him, wild with devotion. They threw their cloaks upon the stony ground to spread a carpet for Him. They cut green boughs of sweet-smelling balsam and spread palms before Him. They strewed the ground with the shining fronds of palms, and wild flowers.

"Hallelujah! Glory to God!" they cried.

"Peace in heaven and glory on high."

LOVE and honor shone in their eyes. Here was their Savior, their Messiah, Son of God, Christ, the Prince of Peace. Never did any conqueror ride in such triumph as Jesus, King of all hearts.

Up the hill the procession climbed, up very near to the city with its walls, its tower forts and tall, armored gates.

And as Jesus came near to Jerusalem, tears sprang to His eyes. Jerusalem, golden city of the ages, where for thousands of years good men had waited for this day when the Son of God would come—was the city where He would die.

On He moved with the joyous crowds. Through the city gate He rode. Mobs from the streets came spilling and mingling, the whole city running to ask:

"Who is this?"

And the people answered: "This is Jesus!"

The blind and the crippled, the sick and the deaf and dumb clustered round Him until He reached the courts of the Temple. And there in the shadow of the altar, Jesus healed them.

From the shadowy pillars of the Temple the Pharisees and the chief priests watched in horror.

"He holds the crowds spellbound!"

"The whole world follows Him like a king!"

"With those mobs He could do anything. He is dangerous," said Caiphas, the high priest. "We must stop Him. Destroy Him. Not now—but soon. Listen! Hear how they praise Him and even adore Him. They are saying that He is the Savior!"

And, indeed, at that moment, children, flocking near the Master who loved them so dearly, were repeating the famous words of the prophets:

"Hosannah to the Son of David!"

THE Son of David! Another name for the Savior, a name from the Scriptures! The sound of it terrified the Pharisees.

"Hosannah to the Son of David!" chanted the children, heaping bright flowers at the feet of Jesus.

The Pharisees angrily shoved the children aside.

"Do you hear what these brats are saying?" they screamed at Jesus.

"Yes!" agreed Jesus. And He too quoted from the Scriptures to them: "Have you never read: 'Out of the mouths of infants you have perfected praise?'"

Ah! They knew what that meant. That, too, was an old prophecy about the Messiah!

Back they went into the shadows, seething with anger.

"This Jesus must not live!" they whispered. "He will destroy us all!

Day after day, that week before Passover, Jesus came into the Temple to teach and the crowds listened to Him with such devotion that no one dared interfere. One morning, He strode as usual into the Temple, flanked by His twelve apostles. Inside the outer court He stopped, the fire of indignation playing over His face.

On one side stood the tables of the money-changers. At those counters men must stop and change their everyday Roman coins into the coins of Israel, for only those coins could be used in the Temple. And it was not a fair exchange. The money-changers kept a fat sum for themselves, swelling their own pockets with the hard-earned cash of the poor.

Jesus looked at the clutter of pennies and mites, and gold and silver, and at the hard eyes and brass smiles of the greedy money-changers. Who shared in their thievery? The high priests and the Pharisees! Jesus knew.

On the other side of the court stood the booths and stalls of the men who sold animals for sacrifice at the altar, the chairs of the dove-sellers and the sheep-merchants. The souls who came to the Temple believed that God appreciated the sacrifice of animals to Him, and according to their means they bought lambs or pigeons to offer Him, even as Joseph had done so long ago when Jesus was a baby. But animals in the Temple cost twice as much as they did elsewhere, and the poor were robbed when they tried to buy them.

SLOWLY Jesus moved through the throngs of buyers and sellers, watching the money pass hands. He heard the cooing of the doves and the bleating of the young lambs, and the shrill voices of men bargaining.

Out of the corner of His eye Jesus watched the people going up to change their money at the bankers' tables. And in His hands, the apostles noticed, He carried a loop of ropes, picked up somewhere idly on His morning walk to the Temple.

Suddenly, swiftly, Jesus's hands moved. From those cords He made a whip, a scourge, and before anyone could see what He was going to do, He let fly with that whip.

He flailed the backs of the money-changers, and turned over their tables so that the money spilled and ran tinkling over the marble floor.

He whirled on the sellers of doves and lambs and knocked over their chairs and overturned their booths. The birds fluttered free, soaring and flapping and wheeling overhead, and the curly-haired lambs scampered and scattered and ran out of the gates of the Temple.

Startled and screaming the crowd backed away.

ALONE Jesus stood. His breath came heavily. His face was damp, as He lifted His hands and said in a voice deep with scorn and anger:

"Is it not written: 'My house shall be called the house of prayer to all nations'? But you have made it a den of thieves.

"Take these things hence, and make not the house of My Father a house of traffic!"

The money-changers and the dove-sellers scrambled to their feet and backed slowly out of the temple, stumbling and pushing and falling as they went. And the doves soared overhead, clinging to the blood-red cedar beams of the ceiling.

Then one of the Pharisees, standing in the crowd, called out:

"By what right do You do these things? What sign do You show us, seeing that You do these things?"

Jesus turned His face to the Pharisee, but He answered in a voice that all could hear:

"Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up."

The people looked at each other and smiled. How could anyone, even the Master do that?

"It took 46 years to build the Temple!" they said. "And will You raise it up in three days?"

The Pharisees began to laugh, and jeer, and mock at Jesus. But the others in the crowd, who loved Him and believed Him, watched Him leave in silence.

They did not understand those words, either, but they remembered them. For they knew that Jesus had a way of clothing great secrets in strange words.

Jesus left the Temple, and went to His lodgings in Bethany, His apostles with Him.

And those who saw Him go pondered His words, and turned back into the Temple, the house of prayer, the house of God the Father.

Marriage

Saving Time in The Home

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

MOST homemakers confess that they don't get as much accomplished in a day as they ought to, and some of them are bitter about it.

"I don't see how you expect a woman with two children to keep the home going and have time for anything else," Mrs. S. informs me in a long letter describing her difficulties. The fact is that some women do so, Mrs. S., and during the war thousands of them discovered that they could achieve results that they previously thought impossible. There are only 24 hours in a day, however, and if you are going to find time and energy to do some other things, you will succeed only by leaving out some of the things you now do. These things that you are going to leave out may be merely loafing, or puttering, or talking with your friends on the telephone, but you'll have to cut somewhere. Go at it this way as a start:

Begin with the budget. Work over it with the rest of the family. If there are any real labor-saving devices that you ought to have, you may find it possible to get them by some readjustments in the budget.

THEN ORGANIZE your daily work so as to save time. If you have been going marketing every day, maybe you can do it once a week. Innumerable housewives have found that practical. (I usually find myself behind one of these seven-day buyers when I'm trying to get by the checker at the supermarket with a can of coffee). Maybe you are setting too high a standard in some of your housekeeping. Maybe you need to shorten the legs of a table, get a kitchen stool or put up a few hooks or shelves to save steps. Maybe you could cooperate with the neighbors in use of a washing machine or even house cleaning.

Don't be afraid to do something different. You'll have fewer pots and kettles to wash for instance, if you follow the French practice of cooking in a casserole which can then be set on the table.

Let the family help.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Q. IS A HUSBAND'S first loyalty to his wife or to his parents?

A. If it isn't given to his wife, he's a mighty poor imitation of a husband.

Q. Why do boys always seem to think it's a girl's job to keep the conversation going on a date?

A. It may be partly because the boy is less mature socially, than is the girl of equal age. Boys are therefore more uncomfortable and on the defensive. They'll outgrow it some day—we hope. One study found the freshman girls more mature socially than the senior boys.

Q. Do children tend to keep a family together, or does quarreling over children lead the parents to divorce?

A. Both, according to circumstances; but socialogists M. F. Nimkoff and William F. Osborn figured, at one time ,that "the probability of divorce in any one year of a marriage without children under 21 living at home is about 17 times as great as that for marriages with children."

Q. Which is worse for a child—to lose the father or the mother?

A. On the whole, loss of the father is more damaging—a fact which mothers ought to bear in mind before starting divorce proceedings. Psychologist C. M. Louttit found almost twice as many delinquents came from fatherless homes as from motherless homes.

Q. As a conscientious father, I'm finding it hard to think of things that will entertain the children.

A. Maybe you are aiming too high. They'll be entertained merely by helping you fix a leaky faucet; or by joining you in a Sunday visit to a house under construction in the neighborhood. If you talk freely with them, answer questions, and introduce them to the work of the world outside the home, they'll always consider it a privilege to be with you.

Hollywood Chatter

By Edward A. Harris

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

HOLLYWOOD, March 24.

AN intriguing starlet is Myrna Hansen, Miss U.S.A. in 1954, who has had only two dates in two years, likes to get up at 3 a.m. and drive swiftly to the desert to watch the sun rise, and who is so wild about horses that she talked Universal - International Studio into letting her be assistant wrangler while going to talent school there.

MYRNA HANSEN . . . LIMITED TO FOUR WORDS.

Myrna, as strikingly beautiful now as when she won the national pulchritude contest three years ago (she won in 1953, reigned in '54), left U.-I. to free lance, and has been signed by M.-G.-M. for a sexy role in "Raintree County."

In that film she will appear a number of times but have only one four-word line to say: "Haven't you had enough?" This to a drinking man, and Myrna hopes that this one line, if enunciated the right way and with the proper bit of restrained acting, may be as productive career-wise as Rita Gam's wordless appearance a few years ago in "The Thief."

When Myrna, now 21, first came to Hollywood her telephone jangled incessantly as the town's Romoes gave her the rush. After three months of night-clubbing she suddenly decided she couldn't be a social butterfly and an earnest student of drama, promptly gave up virtually all dating. She did go to a party given here by the Shah of Iran, and later dated—once—a nephew of a relative of the Shah.

● MYRNA'S MANAGER and dramatic instructor is a bearded character player named Chubbie Johnson, who is colorful, quick-witted and absolutely certain that Myrna will achieve real film recognition within the next two years. She looks like a combination of Barbara Stanwyck and Marilyn Monroe. Her voice is low and alluring, like Miss Stanwyck's, and she's a great admirer of Miss Stanwyck's acting.

Myrna is a modest girl. When she was complimented on her looks she said:

"For heaven's sake don't give me any credit. If any credit is due, give it to my parents."

● TAKE IT FROM VALERIE FRENCH, the young English actress who plays opposite Glenn Ford in Columbia's "Jubal," the American cowboy is the most "exciting" male in the whole wide world.

"The cowboy has a virile, he-man look that most men in Europe seem to lack," she said. "The lean, tall, hawk-faced, clear-eyed cowboys I have seen on location in Wyoming seem a totally different breed, even from the men in American cities. No other man in the world walks like a cowboy. He looks all man."

Building Stockpile of History

Story of Our Times, From Viewpoint of Participants, Being Gathered at Columbia U.

By Virginia Irwin

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, March 24.

FOR the past seven years a handful of workers at Columbia University have been busy on a little-publicized project. They are mining "historical gold" and depositing it in a "deep freeze." Working with modern electronic recording equipment, they are amassing for future scholars, for the historians of tomorrow, the life story of our times.

Under the direction of Professor Allan Nevins, twice winner of the Pulitzer Prize for biography, this operation has already produced tape-recorded memoirs of some 400 of today's outstanding national and international leaders. Transcribed, the recorded interviews total more than 80,000 pages and more than 250,000,000 words.

Some of the material in this vast cache of memoirs is controversial; some downright explosive. But all of it is invaluable as raw source materials to be drawn upon when the formal history of our era is written.

Obtained by assuring persons willing to talk into the tape recorder that whatever they say will be sealed away for as many years as they may specify, some of the tape-recorded memoirs are amazing in their candid detail. In at least one instance the material will remain sealed until after the turn of the next century.

Called the Oral History Project, the undertaking provides prominent figures of our time with the perfect opportunity to give in their own words accounts of their own lives and their roles as the makers of modern history. Among the 400 history makers so far interviewed there have been men in many walks of life—politicians, publishers, bankers, big business men, doctors, statesmen, philosophers, sociologists and scientists.

DUE to modesty, inertia or pressure of business, many of the notables interviewed would never have reached the point of putting the record of their lives and work down on paper. But at the gentle insistence of the staff of the Oral History Project the vital stories of their influence on our times are now safely salted away in cold storage, "frozen from the sensationalism of the present, someday to be thawed in the future light of scholarly research."

The Oral History Project came into being late in 1948 when Prof. Nevins decided that a remedy had to be found for the peculiar crisis historians were facing. With each year, less and less day-to-day historical reference material was being preserved. For hundreds of years history had been written from documents, diaries, letters, notes and voluminous records faithfully kept. But with the coming of the airplane, the telephone and the practice of face-to-face conferences, the old sources have been vanishing and the historian often has little to work with except boiled-down records of a particular conference or cryptic notes kept of some telephone conversation.

Nevins decided that today's history should be sought from the people involved before they had "taken their memories into death's dateless night." From the start, the scheme worked with surprising ease. Experience soon demonstrated that the average public figure could dig from his memory sufficient detail to fill an average of 200 pages when the tapes had been transcribed.

Among the memoirs already in the historical deep-freeze or now being processed are those of such prominent personages as Nobel Peace Prize winner Sir Norman Angell; former member of Parliament Viscountess Nancy Astor; American Civil Liberties Union pioneer, Roger Baldwin; journalist Bruce Bliven; prohibitionist Ella Boole; lawyer Henry S. Breckenridge; the late John W. Davis, who tried more cases before the Supreme Court than any other lawyer; Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter; Charles Edison, son of Thomas Alva Edison; the late Justice Robert H. Jackson, prosecutor of the Nuernberg War Crimes trials; publisher Alfred A. Knopf; Mrs. Marie LaGuardia, wife of the late Fiorella LaGuardia; the late Albert D. Lasker, famed advertising man who drafted the plan which made Kenesaw Mountain Landis the autocrat of baseball; N. Y. Senator Herbert H. Lehman; religious leader Reinhold Niebuhr; the late Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the Post-Dispatch; the late Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war under Franklin D. Roosevelt; Norman Thomas, leader of the Socialist party in the United States, and Henry A. Wallace, former vice president and secretary of agriculture.

DOUBLE-LOCKED in a remote recess of the University library, some items in this treasure trove of history can now be consulted by accredited scholars. But in about 50 per cent of the cases, such as that of the late international lawyer Frederick R. Coudert Sr., who specified that the transcription of his tape recording be sealed until the year 2001, the material will not be available to historians for some years to come.

At Columbia, trained scholars working on the continuing Oral History Project sees no reason why similar projects cannot be undertaken by other universities throughout the country.

"Not every community," says Prof. Nevins, "has in its midst an Albert D. Lasker; or a Jackson Reynolds, able to tell at length the history of the founding of the Bank for International Settlements; or a Reuben Lazarus, able to expose—for posterity, not for the present day—the inner workings of Tammany Hall, and to relate how he served as defense counsel for Jimmy Walker at the dramatic hearings before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt which ended in Mayor Walker's resignation. But every community does possess men and women who, though they often do not realize it themselves, have stories to tell which posterity will find significant and engrossing."

PROFESSOR ALLAN NEVINS OF COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, LEFT, HEAD OF THE ORAL HISTORY PROJECT, CHATS WITH SENATOR HERBERT H. LEHMAN OF NEW YORK PRIOR TO LEHMAN'S TALKING INTO A RECORDER FOR POSTERITY.

TWO TRAINED TRANSCRIBERS PUTTING DOWN ON PAPER THE SPOKEN WORDS OF PERSONS WHO HAVE BEEN INTERVIEWED.

PROFESSOR NEVINS . . . THE OPERATION HE HEADS HAS ALREADY PRODUCED TAPE-RECORDED MEMOIRS OF SOME 400 OF TODAY'S NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL LEADERS.

At last count the interviewers working on the project had spent a total of 3337 interviewing hours on the some 400 notable men and women who agreed to contribute their memories of things past and observations on events of the present to the historical freezer. Many of the subjects interviewed granted hour after hour of their valuable time. Madame Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor under Franklin D. Roosevelt, reminisced for the tape recorder at sufficient length to produce 6000 pages when transcribed into typescript.

MOST of the actual interviewing on the project has been carried out by Columbia scholars who have done graduate work in history. Dean Albertson, Dr. Harlan B. Phillips, Louis Starr, and Dr. Saul Benison. The interviewers make a thorough study of their subject and his period before the first interview session is set. The subject, too, is asked to spend some time cudgeling his memory and digging up old letters, records and diaries, if he has them, for microfilming and later filing along with the transcription of the subject's tape-recorded memoirs. So far thousands of pieces of materials have either been given to the project or loaned for microfilming. Langdon P. Marvin, one-time law partner of Franklin D. Roosevelt, gave 4000 pieces containing letters from Roosevelt and from Theodore Roosevelt, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Elihu Root and others.

Once the series of interviews is over and the interviewee has, to the satisfaction of interviewer, described in detail every major thing he has done, his motives, estimates and evaluations over a busy lifetime, the tapes are transcribed and the script is sent to the interviewee. He checks it for accuracy but the flavor of a "spoken manuscript" is retained. Trained transcribers convey this flavor to the manuscript by the use of punctuation and underscoring for any special emphasis given words and sentences by the speaker. As soon as the script is returned to the Oral History Research Office, processing of the script is completed. Perfectly typed on the most lasting bond paper, it is filed, bound and sealed and placed in the Special Collections Department of the university library. The manuscript will not be opened for use until the date specified by the interviewee, and then only to serious and accredited research scholars.

No complete tapes are kept, but in the case of important individuals, an hour of tape is retained so that their voices can be heard by future generations. In the cases of individuals of lesser importance, only a 15- to 20-minute portion of the tape is saved.

SO far about 95 per cent of the notables approached have consented to participate in the project. Interviewers believe that most American leaders have an awareness of their participation in historical events and that while they appreciate that a request from Columbia to tell their stories for posterity amounts to a pleasant massaging of the ego, it is primarily their sense of history which leads them to do it. However, some public figures have flatly refused to be interviewed. One politician stated that his period of public life was so painful he never wanted to think of it again. Another wrote that he went into public service "only to get Roosevelt out of the White House, and to end deficit government financing" and had nothing else to say.

Speaking of the project's value for future historians, Nevins said: "Too scornful of what is commonplace today, we forget that in half a century it will begin to seem romantic and that in a century much of it will obviously possess transcendent social significance. And we are often misled by a plain, homely, even vulgar exterior into overlooking rich lodes of ore that lurk just under the surface.

"At Columbia University we are making a prolonged, carefully planned effort to expose and quarry some of the veins of historical material that branch all about us. We have rescued from oblivion magazine editor Burton J. Hendrick's account of how he, Ida Tarbell, Lincoln Steffens and others made McClure's Magazine great in muckracking days. We preserved the late Dr. Joseph Collins's narrative of how he treated Henry James and other distinguished men for mental ailments, and how he founded the Neurological Institute. It is obvious that the memoirs of Norman Thomas, for example, or Judge Learned Hand, or Walter Lippmann must have enduring social value. But it is extraordinary how frequently a person of outwardly ordinary antecedents and appearances, who might seem to have lived an uneventful life, has a record of striking originality and value to relate."

THE history collected so far flows through cabinet meetings and political conventions; through the world of big business back to the personal tales of lumber jacks and the romance of logging in the West. It ranges from the reminiscences of Robert Lincoln O'Brien, who was personal secretary to Grover Cleveland, through the recollections of Ben Reese of his years as city editor and managing editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It covers peace treaties and panics, military intelligence in World War II and the atom bomb. Already "a priceless stockpile of personal recollections with which the historian of the future can fill in gaps and explain motives," the Oral History Project workers see no end to this "historical research among the living."

Census of Livestock And Such

By Stan Delaplane

SAN FRANCISCO.

I HAVE BEEN counting my flocks and herds and find Nature is taking care of things well.

I count one boxer dog, excellent appetite. A fair watchdog though he is not sure what he is watching for and is likely to welcome strangers and growl at neighbors.

One Siamese kitten. Once a week she comes to the door and presents me with a field mouse that has passed to its reward. If I pay no attention, she stacks it behind the washing machine. I think she has it confused with the deep freeze.

Every day or so I must push the washing machine away from the wall and make sure we are not harboring the results of the chase.

One guppy. My 12-year-old daughter keeps guppies. She keeps them in my bathroom. Because hers is too crowded. We used to have six guppies but they have succumbed gradually to guppy problems and gone down the drain.

THIS MAKES a fair array of livestock as spring rolls around. On the face of it, we are five guppies shorter than we were last year. But Nature is arranging a balance.

This morning I heard a good deal of howling in the front yard. Two wild tomcats had come out of the woods. They sat in the yard dasting each other to knock the chip off their shoulders.

The Siamese kitten sat up in the window like a debutante preparing for the dance. She washed her face and primped. Once in a while she hissed at the warriors down below.

I put my head out the window and yelled at the wild toms.

"American, go home."

The toms took off for the woods. They know I am a handy man with a rock.

A pair of does have been feeding on the slopes behind the house. Up among the madrone trees. I think they have dropped their fawns and have them somewhere up the canyon. It is about that season.

They are dainty eaters. They nip just the flowers of the wild iris. They eat wild iris because my azaleas are not in bloom. As soon as they flower out, the deer will come down and eat every one. I don't know why I plant flowers.

THE DOES are as aware of their immunity as a member of the Mothers Club of America.

They do not move even when I pick up rocks and make threatening noises.

They know the game laws better than I do. I cannot blast them with a rock salt, because the county says I cannot discharge a firearm. The deer get fat and the garden gets thinner.

I read the other day that many species are vanishing. The Leadbeater's possum has completely disappeared.

This is too bad. The Leadbeater's possum never did anything to me. Never ate my flowers. Never howled at my Siamese cat. Never growled at the neighbors.

Yet Nature has seen fit to let the Leadbeater's possum die out.

The same is true of the Great Auk and Steller's sea cow. Neither of which was doing me a bit of harm. The Toolach wallaby so far as I was concerned was a friendly beast that never nipped an azalea. Yet gone is the Toolach wallaby, alas.

So why is it when I count my flocks and herds, I find so many of them determined to survive? And not a one of them providing anything but more work for the master of the house? Answer me that.

'Calling, Sweetly Calling'

Church Bells on a Sunday Morning in New England

By Relman Morin

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)

IT was a Sunday morning in New England, and very hushed and still. From time to time, a car with clinking chains sloshed through the little town. A freight train whistled in the distance, and another answered with a low moan. Then silence again, and the lonely quiet.

Suddenly, like a sunburst of music, church bells began ringing.

The tones came rolling down the street, across the common, glistening with snow, bouncing between the buildings, jostling each other in a wonderful din and clangor.

One was a merry little bell, all crystal and silver. Another was sweet and serene. Still another spoke with deep-throated authority, a serious, hard-working bell.

I PUT DOWN the Sunday paper—the floor of my hotel room already was knee-deep in the scattered pages—and sat there, listening. It occurred to me that you seldom hear church bells in New York, or in most big cities, unless you listen specially for them. They have to compete with too many other sounds.

And you don't often go to church in the city, either. Too much competition for time, I guess. When was the last time? Probably for "marryin' or buryin'," as they say in the South. It must have been a long time back, too far to remember, anyway.

Through the window, I could see people converging on the churches. I wondered what it would be like. An instant later, I was putting on my hat and coat. . . .

The churches in New England are gems. They are usually small, usually white, always exquisite in line and proportion. They have tall, tapering spires and graceful doors. Stained glass windows gleam like jewels against the white. These are simple and beautiful churches.

AND THEY ARE AMERICAN, deeply and truly American, a part of the very fabric of our tradition. It is hard to imagine a New England town without a white church on the edge of the common. I sat well back and watched the congregation before the service began.

A woman reached around her husband, trying to smooth an unruly cowlick in her son's hair; the boy looked at her with despair. Two teen-agers, on opposite sides of the aisle, stole furtive glances at each other. The inevitable late-comer appeared, stumbling over feet, murmuring "Sorry," all the way to the very middle of the pew.

On a board beside the choir, the numbers of the hymns had been posted. The organist was playing a gentle, musing song. Then came the first hymn, and to my immense delight, a man behind me sang bass. As far back as I can remember, there was always a deep-voiced man in church who harmonized the bass part.

THE WHOLE MOMENT was intensely familiar. Suddenly, the years fell away and this became another church in another place and time. I thought of absent friends, but not in sorrow; they seemed closer now.

A feeling of peace that is rare these days was in that church.

The minister read a passage from St. Mark.

"And he said unto them, the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath."

Then he began his sermon. He spoke simply and with a compelling sincerity, and he had wisdom. When he finished, there was another hymn, and a moment of prayer. As the people left, he stood beside the front door shaking hands. He looked like a happy man, and some of his happiness communicated itself to them.

I went back to the hotel and the Sunday papers, feeling glad about the bells.

Good Singer to Everyone But Herself

Molly Bee of Tennessee Ernie Show Stresses Self Improvement

HOLLYWOOD, March 24.

WHEN Molly Bee, 16-year-old singer on the Tennessee Ernie television show said recently, "I'm just not a good singer," others on the show were quick to suggest that she was being much too harsh with herself.

She is a good singer, in fact, is generally recognized as one of TV's brightest young songbirds. Just a couple of months ago she signed a long term contract with a recording company. At an age when most teen-agers consider a broken date as their most complex problem, Molly is a seasoned performer, with six years of show business to her credit.

Molly has her own manager, Cliffie Stone, and she relies solely on his judgment. It was Stone who first discovered her on a local TV program in 1949 and signed her to appear on his Los Angeles show, "Hometown Jamboree." She was only 10 at the time, and still appears with Cliffie on his variety Western program every Saturday in addition to her five-day-a-week stint on Tennessee Ernie's NBC network program (on KSD-TV, 11 a.m. Monday through Friday). That, say her friends, is hardly the schedule of one who is "not a good singer."

IN November 1955 Ella Fitzgerald was a guest on Ernie's show and it was her appearance that prompted Molly to take stock of herself as a singer. Miss Fitzgerald had always been one of Molly's favorite artists and her singing of "It Might as Well Be Spring" that day had a special significance for the girl. As the last notes of the song faded away, Molly overheard the band musicians murmuring their admiration for Miss Fitzgerald. "She's a real musician." "She's got perfect pitch." "Her phrasing is sensational."

MOLLY BEE WITH TENNESSEE ERNIE . . . AT 16 SHE HAS BEEN A PERFORMER FOR SIX YEARS.

These remarks overheard by chance started the pretty girl thinking about her own voice. She asked herself these questions: Do I have perfect pitch? Is my phrasing all it could be? Am I a musician's singer? And in all cases her answer was no. Hence her remark "I'm just not a good singer." She decided then and there to do something about it.

NOW, instead of frolicking through a number and depending on her natural sense of timing and youthful vibrancy, Molly is making a careful study of pitch, timing and phrasing.

"I've got to do it," says Molly. "I've never heard the boys (the musicians) saying those things about me." She already is getting hundreds of letters every month from her fans telling her how much they like her singing, but she still insists that she must also have the admiration of "the people I most admire and respect—the musicians."

Not that they don't like her now. Far from it. Molly gets along with everybody. She never gets upset by constructive criticism. She's not temperamental—she'll sing solos, duets, or in a quartet. Billings make no difference to her.

"Molly never does anything half way," her manager said. "She's one of the fastest students in the show business and a tireless worker. If she feels the need to improve her voice, in a technical sense, there will be no stopping her."

Aside from her career and voice studies, Molly has a year more before she fulfills her high school requirements. She would like to continue a formal education, but feels that the demands of show business will be all she can handle. She has a dynamic style. Her personal taste in music runs to the jazz-blues. As she puts it, that's blues with "licks" in it.

Television Letter Box

RECENT programs we have had the pleasure of viewing demonstrate the great advance of television. Within the space of a week or so we had the two Shakespearean plays, "Richard III" and "Taming of the Shrew," Edward R. Murrow's "See It Now" report on the Middle East crisis, "The Twisted Cross" review of Nazi Germany, and "Out of Darkness," the documentary on mental illness. There's no longer any excuse for the diehards to resist entry of television into their lives.

BERT SCHAEFER.

Lawrence Welk's program of "Champagne Music" on KSD-TV is one of the most pleasant and entertaining programs that I ever have listened to and watched. I would prefer that program to several of the "spectaculars."

JACK DENNY.

Thanks to KWK-TV and the sponsors of "Fabian of Scotland Yard" for this very interesting program. We have watched this program regularly for months and appreciate it very much. Why anyone should call it dull or uninteresting, as someone did in a recent letters column, is beyond me. I also wish to express my appreciation for the religious program at 8:30 Sunday mornings.

LEONA B. DEUEL,
Jerseyville, Ill.

I liked "Conspiracy of Heart" on KSD-TV. It was entertaining and good for both young and old. We should have more like it.

What is happening to KSD-TV in the entertainment we have to tolerate? If it is necessary to show such things as "Conspiracy of Hearts" let it be done in churches and schools. We have had too much of this kind of stuff.

As Crosby Sees It

'Out of Darkness' Should Be Repeated

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, March 24.

I DIDN'T SEE all of "Out of Darkness" on CBS-TV because it conflicted with "Taming of the Shrew" on NBC-TV, but I saw enough of it to think that it out to be repeated. Mental health is the country's number one medical problem and this was certainly the most ambitious attempt to tackle it both comprehensively and yet so simply that most anyone could understand it.

Heroine of the show was a catatonic woman—a woman who could not or would not speak — in the Metropolitan State Hospital, Norwalk (Calif.). This was quite a bold step on the part of writer-producer Al Wasserman and executive producer Irving Gitlin because it was quite possible that the woman, an actual patient, would not respond to treatment in which case they would have wound up with thousands of feet of film but not much of a show.

Happily she did respond, enough at least to give the show a hopeful ending. Either by luck or design, Wasserman had a heroine with a haunting, unusual face on which were clearly mirrored her fears, her withdrawal from the world, her "rich life of fantasy." Another happy choice was that of Dr. William C. Menninger, one of the nation's top psychiatrists, as narrator. Menninger has a warm personality, an abundance of plain ordinary common sense, and a marvelously uncomplicated prose style.

THE PROBLEM OF mental disease, as Dr. Menninger pointed out, is entirely a matter of degree. There is not one of us who has not suffered some of the fears and insecurities that tormented this girl, who has not withdrawn at least briefly from the world into a world of fantasy. Whether you are a hospital case or not, depends on how far you withdraw and how long you've been away.

This factor gave "Out of Darkness" a universality of appeal that should have been deeply moving to anyone above the age of six. Beginning with her arrival in the hospital, mute and withdrawn, the camera followed the girl during a two and a half month period of extremely delicate and precarious psychotherapy with Dr. Louis Cholden, Los Angeles psychiatrist.

The girl knew she was being filmed but the actual photography was done through one-way glass so as not to intrude on the doctor-patient relationship. With heart-breaking slowness, Dr. Cholden won the girl's confidence and got her to speak haltingly of her conflicts to take part in the routine of the hospital, to re-enter the world of people. There was a very moving scene with her husband, a remarkably patient and understanding fellow, telling the mute girl of the home he had waiting for her and imploring her to speak because he wanted to hear the sound of her voice.

JUST WHAT HURT the girl so badly that it threw her into this trancelike state was never explained. Perhaps there were reasons why it couldn't be told but this omission was the only weakness in an otherwise splendid show.

RED BUTTONS . . . AS "ST. EMERGENCY" ON KWK-TV TOMORROW NIGHT.

I have always had some reservations about medical shows on television simply because many of them are about subjects which I feel are the business of the physician, not of me. To the laymen they are not even very enlightening and in some cases they can even be harmful by needlessly frightening people. "Out of Darkness" was a conspicuous exception. I don't see how anyone could sit through an hour and a half of it without finding out something about himself, his own inner conflicts and the way his mind and his emotions work. In that respect, this was a genuinely educational program, and considering the importance of the subject, it should be repeated.

As a sort of counterpoint to the actual story, Orson Welles read portions of a remarkable book written anonymously almost 100 years ago by a patient in a mental hospital in Glasgow, Scotland. It's a remarkably prescient book that reveals an insight into mental illness that is ahead of its time even today, and Welles read it beautifully. Still, I don't know that this part was very necessary. The girl and her haunting face were the star of the show.

Music And Music Makers

The Symphony's Immediate Future

By Thomas B. Sherman

THE St. Louis Symphony Orchestra has closed its 1955-56 season with its plans for the future not wholly clarified. The reasons for this may be found in the situation of its conductor, Vladimir Golschmann, who undergoes a change of status beginning with next season and whose future relations with the orchestra have not been publicly defined.

The fact that a number of guest conductors will appear with the orchestra during the coming year indicates that the Board of Directors is considering several possible future arrangements. Whatever they may be it seems likely that the orchestra must go through an interim period without a single artistic director who can be held accountable for all phases of its performance. This is not unprecedented. The orchestra once played for three seasons with guest conductors. The disadvantage of such an arrangement is that the orchestra can never adjust its style to the personality of any one conductor; and discipline suffers to some extent. It has advantages for the public however. It brings variety to the concerts and afford an opportunity to observe the effects of differing leadership upon the quality of the music performed.

IN ANY CASE the symphony board will be considering long time as well as short time consequences in making its decision. It will be an important one, but the men and women who have shouldered the responsibility for symphonic music in St. Louis should be allowed to make it without too much coaching from the grandstand.

While staying within the limits of justifiable heckling it is possible to point out that the bad effects of an interim period can be minimized. But first of all the natural consequences, other than those mentioned, of a system of guest conductors should be considered.

The conductor who comes to St. Louis for one, two or three weeks is naturally disinclined to undertake works that require advance planning. He is more or less limited in his choice of programs by the amount of rehearsal time that he will have with the orchestra. He is further limited by the necessity of adjusting his programs to those of his predecessors and successors. Moreover he can take no part in forming policies that affect the children's concerts or educational concerts. In short an integrated and enterprising season cannot be successfully worked out by someone whose contact with the orchestra and local conditions is limited to one or two weeks.

AT THIS POINT it is pertinent to consider just what the function of an American symphony orchestra should be. There was a time, perhaps, when it could justifiably operate like the art museums of 50 years ago which were repositories of a past culture and nothing more. The symphony orchestra which hopes to have a maximum effect on the community cannot possibly be satisfied with a static role. It must not only conceive of music as a living and changing art but must neglect no phase of music that lies within its capacity and which does not duplicate the work of other organizations.

A case in point is the operatic literature. Most American cities have no professional opera because of economic factors that need not be labored. Yet the operatic literature has an importance that cannot be realized through the performance of a few overtures. So the presentation of opera in concert form or quasi-dramatic form—as in the recent case of Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte"—is an indicated activity for orchestras in cities that have no opera seasons. This would not only fill a void but would also introduce a stimulating variety to its general program.

A GOOD MODEL for what might be done in the way of operatic programs was provided by the hitherto mentioned performance of "Cosi Fan Tutte." This performance, however, came in a "package" and a systematic attempt to include operatic literature would undoubtedly require the local selection of soloists and perhaps the training of a chorus. None of this can be attempted while the orchestra is on a guest conductor basis.

In short the best possible artistic program as well as the best possible performing technique requires permanent leadership. Yet a season, perhaps two seasons, of guest conductors may be necessary before the symphony board is in a position to determine the shape of things to come.

It would not be impossible however, to have an interim conductor, a qualified musician who for reasons of his own would not expect a permanent post. In that way the line of continuity could be preserved.

At the Movies

By Myles Standish

THE ROSE TATTOO—Anna Magnani, the Italian star, is simply volcanic as a Sicilian-born dressmaker morbidly idolizing the memory of her dead husband in a Gulf Coast town. In the Tennessee Williams play—he originally wrote the role with her in mind—she is sensual, tough, fierce, earthily coy, wildly passionate in grief and love, savagely possessive, coldly suspicious, slatternly scornful, and proud. She fully deserved the Academy Award she received last week. Burt Lancaster's doltish, high-spirited truck driver with whom she finds ultimate compensation is a good surface comic portrayal, although too obviously planned. Director Daniel Mann's production, made at Key West, Fla., is realistic and sleazy in its backgrounds to make a lusty, down-to-earth comedy-drama. ST. LOUIS.

THE MAN WHO LOVED REDHEADS—An adroit and amusing English piece, a satire on the solemn drama of unfaithlessness, which pokes some gay fun at a wandering husband, a viscount. Deftly acted by John Justin, Moira Shearer and Roland Culver. SHADY OAK.

BACKLASH—A tough Western, full of gunfights, murders and action, and featuring Richard Widmark, Donna Reed. Also WORLD IN MY CORNER, a lukewarm fight picture starring Audie Murphy. FOX.

PICNIC—Joshua Logan has made a vital and lusty CinemaScope production of William Inge's Pulitzer Prize play about a muscular loafer's impact on some assorted females in a Kansas small town. Some fine Americana in the town picnic sequences. Well acted by Bill Holden, Kim Novak, Rosalind Russell and others, although the shallowness of the characters is still the play's weakness. MISSOURI.

MARTY—Return of the fine Academy Award winning drama about a lonely butcher, with Ernest Borgnine's Oscar-grabbing performance. Also SUMMERTIME, in which love comes to a spinster in beautifully photographed Venice, with Katharine Hepburn's Oscar-nominated portrayal. ORPHEUM.

DOCTOR AT SEA—Dirk Bogarde in a diverting sequel to "Doctor in the House," which finds Simon, the bashful medic at sea between two vibrant females and a roaring captain. PAGEANT.

THE TROUBLE WITH HARRY—This Alfred Hitchcock satire on the suspense-murder melodrama is a droll shaggy-dog story. With John Forsythe. RICHMOND.

MEET ME IN LAS VEGAS—A lush and entertaining musical that has everything—pungent dances, pleasant songs, a diverting comedy romance, Dan Dailey—and Cyd Charisse, who blossoms into a real star. LOEW'S STATE.

CINERAMA HOLIDAY—The travelogue in the spectacular depth process. AMBASSADOR.

Art and Artists

On Creativity in Children

By Howard Derrickson

THE SEVENTH annual Children's Art Bazaar, which will open April 28 at Famous-Barr's downtown store, already is consuming productive thought and energy of St. Louis artists, teachers, parents and students.

Last month at City Art Museum, art consultants and supervisors in public and private schools of St. Louis and St. Louis county who are working on the Bazaar heard a talk they liked so much that arrangements are being made for it to be repeated before a larger body, this area's teachers of art.

It is by Eloise Frazier Mikkelsen of Ladue, a student of contemporary writing on art and mother of one girl now a Washington University art student and of another who plans to become a teacher. Eloise Mikkelsen herself is a portrait artist, one who expresses her sitter's personality rather than her own.

But her talk stresses the art class's potential for self-expression, for creative thought, for escape from the otherwise incessant pressures to conform that are exerted on children. Using the title "Oasis," she writes:

"The child is continuously jockeying to achieve and maintain his position among his contemporaries, his teachers and the members of his family. Add to this his extra-curricular activities—music lessons, dancing lessons, swimming lessons, riding lessons, skating lessons, Cubs, Brownies, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, all of which bombard him with their own rules and regulations to follow—and you begin to wonder why more children don't go berserk.

"AND ALL UNDER ideal conditions. I've not even mentioned the emotional stress to which his home life may subject him. However, youth is young and resilient and full of vitamins. But I'll bet that if you or I were subjected, on an adult level, to pressures comparable to those experienced every day by a child, we would, long ago, have flipped our lids.

"That a child can attend your class where he is alone with himself, can think with freedom for himself and express himself constructively — that is a life-giving and, in many cases, a life-saving oasis. It is true that other activities give him the same refreshment, but they are not immediately available to all ages.

"Moreover, they require closer adherence to rule, to practice of techniques, and their elements are too restrictive. A tiny tot can express himself in art and the elements he may use are almost infinite. In music he is limited to the notes of the scale, and middle C always sounds like middle C. Literature depends on the meaning of words, and dancing is controlled by the force of gravity and restricted by the mobility of human joints (and you know about those old things)."

"OASIS" BEGINS by expressing gratitude for the "tangibles" that art teachers impart—principles of perspective and composition, color theory, use of tools and materials. But it emphasizes "intangibles."

In Eloise Mikkelsen's view these values are, to the individual, emotional release in untrammeled expression; to society, the special ability that gifted persons can develop from such uninhibited activity in art—chiefly a stimulation of the imagination conducive to leadership in other fields, notably science.

Industry, she points out, has recognized the importance of unrestricted creative thought by subsidizing scientists to do pure research. Fred Olsen of Alton, art collector and scientist, spoke in a public lecture at Washington University of the radical, unconventional, unconfined nature of all creative thinking, whether in science or art.

"OASIS" CONCLUDES with a suggestion that expansion of the course offering in art may now be in order if the world is to uncover and develop the imaginative leadership it needs. Perhaps in creative art, the essay declares, educators will find "the kind of course that will stimulate a youngster's imagination from the time he enters kindergarten to the day he graduates from high school."

This heady idea, naturally appealing to art teachers, approaches the old pedagogical theory of "transfer values." Today these occupy a low estate in professional education thought. Few educators now hold, for instance, that logic or neatness inculcated from study of geometry will carry over automatically to English composition.

With a considerable proportion of the population engaging in some form of art activity on a hobby or semi-professional basis, more and more thought is being expended on possible deferred or collateral values thus gained. In the light of this "everybody paints" movement, it will be interesting to see whether educational research will be undertaken with a view to curriculum revision and, as "Oasis" suggests, to expansion of school art programs.

Queeny Wildlife Film Premiere At 'Pop' Concert

THE last "pop" concert of the season by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, at 3 p.m. today in Kiel Auditorium Opera House, will feature the world premiere of the 28-minute documentary film, "Mike," photographed and produced by Edgar M. Queeny, chairman of the board of Monsanto Chemical Co. The orchestra recorded the musical score for the film last Dec. 7. The score was arranged by Gene Forrell of New York. The film, in color, looks at nature and wildfowl in terms of the experience of a hunting dog, a Labrador retriever named Mike.

The orchestra, with Harry Farbman conducting, will accompany baritone Arthur Burgett in his singing of "Evening Star" from Wagner's "Tannhauser," and a special arrangement of Greiner's hit song, "Sixteen Tons." The Metropolitan Singers, a local chorus directed by Helen Graves, will sing a tribute to Sigmund Romberg, the late operetta composer.

Orchestral selections will include Gershwin's "Strike Up the Band," the prelude to Act III of Wagner's "Lohengrin," excerpts from "Oklahoma", the French Military March from Romberg's "The Desert Song," and Ravel's "Bolero."

Striking Decoration

Schiffli embroidery in stripes tapering to the hemline contributes striking decoration to a cotton dress in the Mr. Mort spring collection. Gleaming patent accents are added at the neckline and waistline. A crisp, removable white linen collar completes the costume.

'Don Giovanni' Tonight In Clayton Auditorium

Mozart's opera, "Don Giovanni," will be presented by the Opera Department of the St. Louis Institute of Music in Clayton High School Auditorium, 1 Mark Twain Circle, at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

Joseph Pielecki, baritone, will sing the title role. Three singers from the Mexican National Opera who are studying at the institute will have leads. They are Sergio Morales, basso, as Leporello, Eudoxia Gonzalez, soprano, as Donna Anna, and Eduardo Valles, tenor, as Don Ottavio. Jean Koch will sing Donna Elvira, Cheri Schear will be Zerlina, and Harry Goz the commendatore.

Handsome Compacts

Worried Wife

Husband's Brother Is Too Attentive

By Martha Carr

Dear Martha:

I AM so worried about a situation that I don't know what in the world to do so I am pleading with you to help me. I have been married seven years. My husband's younger brother who came here from another city has been staying with us although he earns enough to have his own place. Everything was fine for a few weeks, then this brother started becoming interested in me. He arranges to be there as much as possible when my husband is away. When my husband is home and the three of us are at dinner or sitting in the living room, his brother will make sly remarks or look at me with an odd expression as though he and I are keeping a secret from my husband. My husband doesn't suspect anything and I am afraid to tell him. My brother - in - law once grabbed me and kissed me and I slapped him. Since then he hasn't tried that again but he is making a terrible nuisance of himself. What can I do, Martha? I'm afraid my husband will find out and will think I encouraged him.

DESPERATE.

Sometimes it's kinder to keep quiet, but whatever excuse you give your husband, I think it's imperative that you insist that your brother-in-law find another place to live. Frankly, I think you might be wise to tell your husband the whole story before he starts suspecting you and you find you have to defend yourself against a false accusation. But you know best what his reaction would be and must decide accordingly. I have an idea that if the brother-in-law knew your husband might find out how disloyal he has been, he would start acting like a decent and mature adult. In any event, he doesn't belong in your household.

Dear Martha:

● I AM A GIRL OF 15 and would like some advice. Every time I do something my parents yell at me. Why do they have to yell at me when I don't do anything wrong? I would never do anything to make my parents hate me. I love them too much to want to hurt them but Martha I hate being yelled at. Please give me some advice.

NEEDS ADVICE

I don't blame you. No one wants to be yelled at and anyone who does yell—whether it's an adult or a young person—is discourteous. That goes for parents as well as anyone else. However, parents have a lot of worries that their children never dream of. They're tired after a day's work and sometimes they just can't conjure up the patience they need. So take this into consideration. Maybe you don't think you're doing the wrong thing, but perhaps you are irritating them by something that wouldn't upset them at all if they weren't a little weary. So instead of worrying about how they treat you, why not start thinking right now about how you can make things easier for them? Ask your mother what you can do to help around the house. Smile at your dad when he comes home. Act like you're happy to be with them, not that you consider home just a mere stopping-off place between dates. If your home isn't a happy place, you can do a lot to change it.

Dear Martha:

● I HAVE BEEN GOING with a fellow for three years and he slumps his shoulders something terrible. I tried telling him but he just got mad. Then I tried embarrassing him in front of his friends and he got mad. I have asked my mother what to do but she said he will outgrow it. He is 21 now. He is quite thin and he looks like he is hump-shouldered. Please, tell me what to do. WORRIED.

I agree that it's getting a little late for him to "outgrow" such a bad habit. Unless he makes a special effort to stand up straight, he will be slumping the rest of his life—providing the Army or Navy doesn't get him. However, I don't agree that nagging or embarrassing him in front of his friends will help. You may have to take a more subtle approach, such as complimenting someone who has good posture or encouraging him to engage in some sport or recreational activity which will require good posture and discourage slumping. Of course, if he realizes that by making himself less attractive he will cause you to lose some interest in him, he may take your criticism seriously and straighten up.

Dear Martha:

● I WAS MARRIED for 32 years. Now since I have lost my husband some people keep asking me over and over again why I don't get married again. This upsets me. I think I am old enough to know my own mind. There's an old man who lives upstairs and they want to know why I don't date him. Look, Martha, I am doing just fine and I wish some people would get wise and leave me alone.

A. READER.

Why don't you tell them that? For heaven's sake, don't get married just to please a bunch of busy-body so-called friends. If you find someone you could care for, there's no reason, I suppose, not to think about marrying again, but there are far too many people in this world who seem to think that marriage itself is a panacea for all ills. Nothing could be further from the truth. A good marriage is beautiful and right. But how many marriages are sick and ill-nourished, starved by lack of affection and concern? Stand your ground. Tell your friends you'll run your own life, thank you, and when you want to think about marriage, you'll do your own deciding.

Dear Martha:

● I AM 16 YEARS OLD. I have been going steady with a boy for five months and we are very happy. But now I find that a girl friend is trying to take him away from me. He has noticed this, of course, and has wondered if he should tell her right off that he is sick of her actions. I don't want to interfere because he said it's between him and this girl and that he would straighten it out. Should I stay out of it and should he tell her off? GOING STEADY.

Yes, I think you should stay out of it and, no, I don't think he should "tell her off." What good would that do, other than to hurt and embarrass her? No, he can let her realize that he doesn't welcome her attempts to break you up without actually having a fight with her. And I certainly don't think it would be right for you to battle over a boy friend.

Martha Carr is glad to answer your questions. If you wish a personal reply, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. She cannot answer problems of a medical or legal nature.

Accessories for Easter Suits and Dresses

Accents of a Costume This Spring Assume Unusual Significance—Svelte Emphasis to Entire Figure

COMPLEMENTING A NAVY BLUE SUIT, A SHIP 'N SHORE POLKA DOTTED BLOUSE IS DESIGNED TO CREATE THE EFFECT OF A COSTUME. PATENT LEATHER BAG IS IN SPRING FASHION NEWS.

A DEEP ATTACHE TYPE OF HANDBAG IS A POPULAR SPRING STYLE. MADE OF CALFSKIN THIS JOSEF MODEL IS SHOWN WITH A TWEED SUIT AND WIDE-BRIMMED TWO-TONED HAT.

LIGHT IN SHADE BUT LARGE IN SIZE, THIS OYSTER WHITE LLAMA CALF BAG IS SHAPED WITH PELLON. LONG WHITE GLOVES, BIGGER HAT, AND SHORT, FITTED JACKET ARE IMPORTANT FASHIONS.

AN ARMLOAD OF BRACELETS IN GOLD AND WHITE BY CORO ILLUSTRATES THE HEAVY JEWELRY VOGUE TO ACCOMPANY THE "MORE HAT" FASHION, AN IMPORTANT NOTE FOR SPRING.

By Sylvia Stiles

EQUALLY as important as an Easter suit or dress are the accessories that go with it. This spring the accents of a costume assume unusual significance because silhouettes are basically slim, fabrics are lightweight and there is a svelte emphasis to the entire figure.

Starting with the hat and continuing downward to the toes, designers are concentrating upon arresting themes involving impressive colors, novel decorations, and very feminine costume features. Hats have been created to look bigger and dominate the ensemble, but they are receiving plenty of competition from chunky jewelry, over-size handbags and flashy footwear. White millinery, a perennial favorite for the Easter season, seems even whiter than usual because of the enormous size of crowns and the thickness of brims. There is a frothy appearance, too, to many of the hats because of the generous use of draped maline and the airy effect of loosely-woven straw braid.

Contributing to the vogue of white accessories is the increased interest in glaze kid gloves, large white collars, and white handbags. The white scarf in oblong shape also is attractive to bring freshness to a dark ensemble or to give a tailored suit a dressier look. Chiffon scarfs are plentiful while the organza ones are especially crisp and springlike. A bias fold of white linen also is being suggested to tuck into the neckline of a jacket. Linen is used extensively, too, for the large collars that are added to suit jackets. The cape collar extending to the shoulders may be finished with lace for a frilly accent. Another addition to dainty neckwear is the pleated jabot made of organza and trimmed with lace. Paris revived the fashion for jabots, so many dresses as well as suits now have starched frills at the neckline.

Regardless of how tailored a suit may be, the blouse worn with it is certain to be dainty and feminine. Handwork is generously applied to many blouses. One handsome Yolande blouse that is typical of the trend is made of pure silk Georgette. It has imported lace medallion inserts and lace edging on the collar, cuffs and finely tucked front panel. Another attractive blouse of imported cotton batiste introduces a touch of color in the dainty yellow flowers embroidered on inserts of white organdy. Ship 'n Shore blouses, usually quite tailored, have a dressmaker emphasis noted in the embroidered fabrics, plunging V necklines and brief sleeves. Classic styles, including those designed in a mother and daughter size series, add lace trimming and appear in a rainbow of spring colors including pink, yellow, pale blue, and aqua.

Shorter sleeves of most coats and suit jackets give gloves special attention so there is a trend toward the longer gloves and toward more decorative types. Glace kid and doeskin models are impressive but for those who are looking for less expensive gloves, fabrics are available in great variety. Fagotting, lace insertion, and embroidered designs are among the trimming notes. There is a fashion, also, for colored gloves to match the flowers of a hat or the shade of footwear.

Chunky jewelry has returned for wear with the shorter sleeves and low necklines. The bulkier hat also calls for larger earrings to give dramatic emphasis to a simple costume. While drop earrings and circles continue popular, the large button earring has preference for spring. Effective, too, are the petal earrings set in a background of gold foliage. White and gold predominate in costume jewelry ensembles, and those wide bracelets combining white enamel with gold-toned metal are prominently displayed at the jewelry counters. The "pile-up" choker, a follow-up of last year's rope fashion, is introduced in several collections. Because many necklines not only are low cut but rather wide this type of choker with three or four strands of beads is particularly flattering.

Slim silhouettes have brought elongated handbags into the fashion limelight. While width continues to be a fashionable feature of many bags, the long and slender model looks newest and smartest. Patent leather bags repeat the popularity of patent leather pumps. Pale toned leathers match fragile looking footwear. For use with late-day ensembles, the handbag dsigners suggest pouchy types made of faille. Some of these bags have wide sash handles and imported French hand-beaded frames for greater elegance.

Van Heflin Loses Money on New York Stage Hit

HOLLYWOOD, March 24 (UP). SO you get richer in a hit Broadway play? Van Heflin confessed today he came home wiser—but poorer—from his.

Heflin sunk part of the family fortune into his appearance on the New York stage last fall in "A View From the Bridge." Most of the critics gave an approving nod to the work, which ran for seven months on Broadway.

"But from a financial standpoint I came out a little in the hole," Heflin admitted today as he settled down in a new home after nine months away from the cinema city.

"It was a success from a critical standpoint, however. And eventually it will make a movie—so we backers won't lose everything.

"I've paid for an education on the stage—and it was worth it. It was very valuable experience—and very gratifying."

While in New York, Heflin made up for his financial loss on the stage by starring in a movie. These days the trend is toward film versions of television plays. Heflin appeared in "Patterns" which may do for him what "Marty" did for Ernest Borgnine.

The film was made entirely in New York with an Eastern crew and producers. Not one day's work was done on the picture in Hollywood.

"Patterns" tells of a battle among business men, as in the manner of MGM's "Executive Suite" of two years ago. Heflin has faith that film fans will be attracted by the unusual story "because the American people are always underestimated.

"There's a cliche that a movie has to have a great love story. You can find yourself in the middle of the Sahara Desert with the Foreign Legion and they'll drag in a dame," he said.

"This is a terrific story. Black-and-white, ordinary-sized screen. Color and wide screens have helped certain stories such as musicals. But they aren't necessary for all. Can you imagine 'On the Waterfront' in color?

"'Patterns' having been on TV won't hurt the movie box office," he added. "TV only scratches the surface."

Rayon Crepe

Rayon crepe has been revived for spring dresses. Ceil Chapman uses this fabric for an intricately draped dinner dress in her popular shade of "Ceil blue." The dress has a low, round neckline with crossed drapery around the shoulders. Skirt features a spiral drapery with wrapped hemline suggesting the hobble.

Answers to Housewives' Questions

By Dorothy Brainerd

"WOULD you please tell me how to remove ink spots from a white cotton chintz coverlet?" asks Mrs. K.

"The coverlet cannot be washed; I had an unfortunate experience trying it with another one."

I assume that this is writing ink (different methods are required for India or drawing ink and printing ink). Glycerine rubbed into the stain often is effective, but it must be rinsed with clear water.

Or sponge the stain well with cold water, then stretch the spot over a bowl of hot water and apply crystals of oxalic acid directly to the stain. Rinse by dipping in the hot water and finally in water to which a few drops of ammonia water have been added.

Another method is to sponge the spot with a hydrosulfite solution and rinse quickly.

Sorry, but I know of no method which does not involve the use of some water.

MRS. M.L.M. wants to know how much flour, salt, lard and water to use to make pie crust in quantity, explaining that she wants to make several pies at one time, wants a rich crust, and wants to use lard.

Also, she inquires whether it is possible to buy a book containing recipes for two persons.

Here is the National Live Stock and Meat Board's Homemade Pastry Mix recipe, which I believe will give you what you want, Mrs. M. The mixture may be stored in the refrigerator until ready to use, but please note that water is added to the mix at the time the pies are prepared.

Homemade Pastry Mix: Seven cups sifted enriched flour; four teaspoons salt; one and three-fourths cups lard for soft wheat flour or two cups for hard wheat flour.

Add salt to flour. Cut lard into flour and salt with a fork or pastry blender until the crumbs are about the size of small peas. Cover, store in refrigerator until ready to use. Mixture will keep at least a month in refrigerator. Yield: Eight single pie crusts.

For single pie crust, add two to four tablespoons cold water to one and one-half cups Homemade Pastry Mix; for double pie crust add four to six tablespoons cold water to two cups Homemade Pastry Mix.

When making the pies, add water to Pastry Mix a small amount at a time, mixing quickly and evenly until dough just holds in a ball.

Yes, there are a number of cook books on the subject of preparing meals for two persons. Here are three which you may borrow from the Public Library and look them over to see if you wish to buy them. They are "Cooking for Two," by Janet Hill; "Quick and Easy Means for Two," by Louella Shouer, and "Working Girl's Own Cookbook" by Hazel Young. If you will inquire at the Information Desk of the downtown Public Library they can give you further help on this."

MRS. E. J. has a problem which plagues many a homemaker.

"Somehow brown roaches have gotten into my house and I am having a hard time getting rid of them," she writes. "Know of a method? Your answer is important to me, and probably to anyone else in this terrible predicament."

We will do our best to help, Mrs. J., but as previously explained the methods of coping with insects have been given previously in this column and space does not permit constant repetition. But if you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will mail you a leaflet containing excerpts from the insect control leaflet compiled by Stirling Kyd, Extension Entomologist for the Missouri College of Agriculture.

Incidentally, a product just being introduced in St. Louis stores offers an ingenious approach to the problem of household pests. It is an insecticide treated shelf and drawer lining paper which is claimed to kill insects which walk upon it.

The paper is attractive in appearance, with a white-on-white pattern and has no odor (we gave it a critical "sniff test.) The product has been registered with both Federal and State Departments of Agriculture, and the manufactures claim that the paper will not endanger children or pets when used as directed.

In addition to its obvious uses on shelves and in drawers, it might be used under the picnic basket on outings, to line book shelves, clothes lockers, etc.

WRITES M.E.C.: "We have an asphalt tile kitchen floor. I use liquid wax on it, as I have been told that paste wax is harmful on this type of floor. But the floor is very light in color and shows dark streaks very easily. I simply can't wash and wax it every few days. On the linoleum floor we had before this, these streaks wiped up very easily with paste wax. Would it be harmful to wipe up these streaks with paste wax, if I wipe it off immediately?"

Don't try it, or you will be sorry. Paste wax should never, but never, be used on asphalt tile. A self-polishing wax is right for this type of flooring. But those dark streaks should wipe up easily with a liquid cleaner made especially for use on asphalt tile floors. Some of the leading manufacturers of resilient floorings make such cleaners. You may use some No. 1 steel wool in conjunction with such a cleaner, using straight back-and-forth (not circular) strokes. If you wish, I will send you a reprint of an article I did some time ago on the proper care of asphalt tile flooring.

Any homemaking problems bothering you? If so, write to Dorothy Brainerd in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. She will answer your questions or publish them and see if other readers have the answers for you.

Fred Waring Show Here Tomorrow for Navy

Fred Waring will bring his band and glee club, The Pennsylvanians, in his show, "Hear! Hear!" back to Kiel Auditorium Opera House at 8 p.m. tomorrow for a special performance in behalf of the St. Louis Council Navy League and the Navy Recruiting Service. He appeared at the Opera House with the show March 3. All the tickets have been allotted free of charge to the high schools of the area. A group of Navy recruits from Missouri and Illinois, known as the "Fred Waring Division," will be sworn in at ceremonies during the show.

Hat Decorations

White and pale silk organza in plain and flowered patterns is used for entire hats or for drapery around the crowns of straw models. Many hats also are trimmed with giant sized silk flowers of the organza. The natural colored straw hat is draped with white organza dotted with sequins, or garlanded with bright red organza poppies.

Gallery Notes

THE MISSOURIANS, one of the St. Louis area's smallest but most active art groups, will be this community's exhibiting organization next month at City Art Museum. It is the 11-member body's tenth anniversary exhibition.

For the occasion, members have compiled an impressive tabulation of their prizes and other achievements since uniting. Counting only awards won in the city, members have scored a total of 34 times at the museum and Artists' Guild.

Nine out of 17 museum awards were purchases, and nine of the 17 guild prizes were firsts. Other activities of the Missourians include revival of St. Louis's participation in National Art Week in 1947 and 1948 and members' rotating displays of a single work of art each month at Central Public Library art room, Barnes Hospital and John Burroughs School.

Charter members still in the group include Fred Dreher, Mabel Meeker Edsall, Ada Hanvey, Jim Harmon and Jessie Beard Rickly. Those who have become members since the organization was founded are Eda Lincoln Cushing, Margery Dodson, Katherine Haven, Arthur Kanak, Elizabeth Phelan and John Wallace. Their show will open April 6 and close April 30.

Albert Aloe, Clayton business man and artist who recently returned from teaching an art class in Sarasota, Fla., will soon be offering one here, he announces.

His "Fifty Fathoms," a casein painting shown at the Artists' Guild in 1953, was chosen for the second annual exhibition of the National Society of Painters in Casein, a show open to nonmembers as well as to members. The display was held at the National Arts Club, New York.

'Teahouse' Closes At 1028 Mark

NEW YORK, March 24—After a run of 1028 performances, the great Broadway smash hit "The Teahouse of the August Moon" departed on a road tour last Saturday.

The comedy racked up one of the most fabulous records on the great white way and is becoming a classic as well on the international stage.

It is the twelfth play in Broadway history to exceed the thousand - performance mark, and facsimiles are playing in 33 foreign countries.

As footnotes to its global career, Belgium probably has provided the oddest title translation, and Iceland has given playwright John Patrick the oddest benefits.

"Teahouse" is known as "Lotus and the Bulldozer" in Brussels. And if Patrick ever visits Reykjavik, he can check his hat, coat and earmuffs free of charge—it says so in his contract with the theater.

Doris Day to Star In 'The Pajama Game'

HOLLYWOOD — Doris Day will star in the film version of "The Pajama Game," taking over the role performed on the stage in the hit musical by Janis Page. The picture, set to face the camera in the fall, will return Miss Day to Warner Bros. where she began her climb to screen fame. She now is free lancing and also has her own company, Arwin Productions. "Pajama Game" will be produced for Warners by the men who put it on the stage, George Abbott, Frederick Brisson, Robert E. Griffith and Harold S. Prince.

PROF. KAMEN GOING ABROAD SIX MONTHS

Washington U. Scientist's Passport Once Withdrawn by U.S.

Martin Kamen, associate professor of radiochemistry at the Mallinkrodt Institute of Radiology, Washington University School of Medicine, will leave Wednesday to study and lecture abroad for six months.

Kamen said his trip, which will take him to Sweden, England, and possibly India and Australia, would be to exchange ideas with his colleagues in those countries on the role played by iron proteins in photosynthesis. That is his special field of research here.

In 1947, when Kamen was invited to lecture in Europe and in Israel, his passport was withdrawn by the Department of State on security grounds. He brought suit against the department in United States District Court in Washington, D.C., to compel issuance of the passport.

Last July the Government announced a change of position and agreed to give Kamen the passport. Under the terms of a stipulation agreed on by the department, the allegations as to the purposes of Kamen's travels which formed the basis of the original refusal to issue a passport were withdrawn.

Kamen, his wife and their 5-year-old son will fly to Stockholf, Sweden, from Los Angeles on April 4 over the transpolar route. He will work in the laboratory of Swedish Nobel prize-winner Prof. Axel Huge Theorell until July 1.

Kamen will then spend at least six weeks in Cambridge, England, where he will work with Robin Hill of Cambridge University, a scientists who has been conducting research in the field of photosynthesis. He will give lectures and seminars there. Then, if time permits, he will visit Bombay, India, and the National University of Australia at Canberra. He is due back in St. Louis Oct. 1.

Kamen's trip will be supported in part by grants from the Kettering Foundation and by a senior postdoctoral fellowship from the National Science Foundation.

FRENCH ARE WARNED BY ABD EL KRIM

Exiled Leader of Riff Rebellion Opposed to Sultan Also.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 24 (AP)—If the French do not behave themselves, says aged warrior Abd El Krim, he personally will fight them all over again.

The man who led the Riff rebellion more than 30 years ago against French and Spanish armies is doing a slow burn about state affairs in Morocco, his native country.

He is angry at the French, at the Sultan and at the leaders of the Istiqlal (Independence) party. At 73, after 30 years in exile, the old Emir is itching to get back into the thick of things and set matters straight.

"If the French continue their stubborn resistance to Moroccan independence," Krim said in an interview, "I will go back personally and take over command of the people. I am giving the French notice of that now."

The Emir—he is a prince of the Khettabi family—has a military plan for getting the French out of North Africa but he says he is not getting sufficient audience from the present, Moroccan leaders.

"If I had been in command of the war in Morocco, things would have been otherwise. If I had been there, the French would have been banished long ago," he said.

The present Sultan, Mohammed Ben Youssef, recently restored to the Moroccan throne by France, in Krim's opinion is a man who is in the hands of the French and "perhaps he should be banished along with them."

Moreover, Krim went on, the Istiqlal party is being used by the French to divide Moroccans and further French aims. Krim wants no compromising whatever with full independence.

Krim lives in Kubbeh Gardens, a Cairo suburb, as the guest of the Egyptian Government. With him are his six sons and five daughters, all but one born in exile.

White House Egg Roll.

WASHINGTON, March 24 (UP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower will open the White House gates for the traditional Easter Monday egg roll April 2.

CLAYTON, BERKELEY HOME-RULE VOTE

Elections April 3 on Whether Freeholders Should Be Named.

The question whether boards of freeholders should be named to draft home-rule charters for Clayton and Berkeley will be before the voters of those cities in connection with the municipal primary elections April 3.

In both cities, special elections have been scheduled to coincide with the primaries. Voters will first decide whether the freeholders should be named and then choose 13 of them for the purpose of drafting a charter. In the event the voters disapprove this first step toward a charter, the freeholders concurrently named would not serve.

A home-rule charter for Clayton was proposed by a subcommittee of the Clayton Citizens Advisory Committee which noted the rapid growth of the city and suggested it ought to have a government compatible with its size.

The report specifically recommended that the police chief, police judge and collector, all elected officials at present, should be appointed by the mayor. It also suggested the creation of an administrative assistant to the mayor to handle office detail. The report has been indorsed by the Clayton League of Women Voters.

There will be 18 names on the ballot for the 13 positions on the board.

In Berkeley, where the voters will ballot on a similar question, there are 26 candidates for the board. The proposal was ordered submitted to the people after the Board of Aldermen received a favorable report from a committee appointed by retiring Mayor Thomas C. Boyle. Boyle is a candidate for the board of freeholders.

NEW MICROSCOPE AT WASHINGTON U.

$25,000 Electron Device Is Third of Kind in Use There.

The Washington University School of Medicine has acquired a new, $25,000 electron microscope, it was announced yesterday. The device will be the third of its kind at the university.

Dr. Edward W. Dempsey, professor of anatomy at the university, who pioneered in the use of the electron microscope here, said new research projects employing the device made necessary the acquisition of a third instrument.

The electron microscope is capable of 100,000 times magnification, as compared with magnification of 1000 to 1 in a conventional microscope.

Dr. Dempsey said scientists can now detect hitherto invisible viruses in human cells with the electron microscope. This technique offers great possibilities in developing means of combating virus disease, he said, just as disease caused by bacteria have been brought under control in past decades.

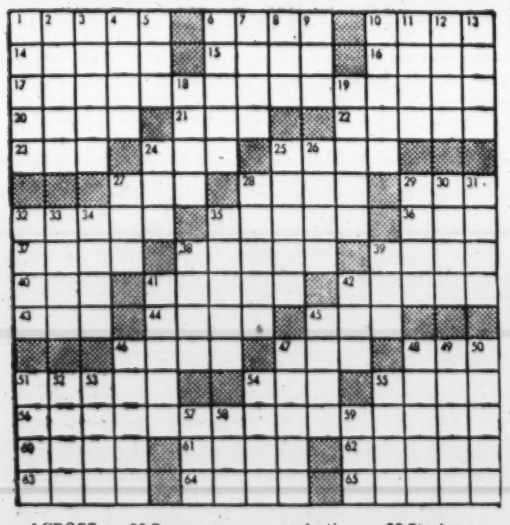

In the device, a stream of electrons is guided toward the specimen to be examined. The electrons pass through the specimen and trace an image on a fluorescent scope, which can be both observed and photographed.

Beside Dr. Dempsey and his associates, members of the faculty of the Washington University School of Medicine who have made extensive use of the electron microscope technique have been Dr. Carl G. Harford, associate professor of medicine; Dr. Charles B. Mueller, assistant professor of surgery, and Dr. William B. Seaman, professor of radiology.

Among the principal users of the new eletcron microscope will be Dr. Walter Stanley Hartroft, professor of pathology, and his wife, a research assistant in that department.

DESERTED HOUSE IS REMINDER OF BOMBING DEATHS

Abandoned, It Serves to Recall Unsolved Killing of Negro Leader and Wife.

By MARY LOU CULBERTSON
Daytona Beach News-Journal

MIMS, Fla., March 24 (AP)—Spiders sprang from their hiding places among the piles of books, papers, pamphlets and letters which littered the floors of the deserted cottage.

Chameleons and roaches scuttled along the baseboards and across the faded walls, and a leather Bible clung with mildewed strength to a copy of a book entitled "Cheating the Devil."

Rotting curtains hung like gray ghosts over paneless windows in the cottage where the household furnishings, clothing, dishes and other personal possessions, owned by the last tenants, lay covered with heavy dust, because no one goes to that place of death.

On Christmas night in 1951, Harry T. Moore and his wife, Negro school teachers, lay sleeping in the northeast bedroom of the six-room cottage in an isolated area near Mims. The yellow and green trimmed cottage, surrounded by an orange grove and bushy shrubbery, sets back on a narrow dirt road some distance from the main highway, where few travelers are seen.

Home Is Bombed.

At exactly 10:20 p.m. on that Christmas night, a bomb or bombs exploded to make one of the most sensational unsolved murder cases ever recorded in Florida.

Moore was a former teacher in Negro schools in Titusville, Mims and Cocoa, and at the time of his death was executive secretary of the Florida unit of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. His wife was a public school teacher.

The Moores occupied the bedroom in the corner of the cottage directly beneath which the bomb was placed. The corner of the house with the porch in front was splintered. The rest of the house was practically undamaged. Elsewhere in the house, Moore's mother, Rose Moore, 71 at that time, and their daughter, Anna, were sleeping. They were unhurt.

The bombing at Mims followed several other bombings in the Miami area which were attributed to racial disturbances.

The mystery of the Mims bombing may remain a secret forever. Brevard County Sheriff H. T. Williams reported recently that nothing new in the way of leads had been uncovered, although every clue had been run down.

House Unwanted.

The cottage has remained unoccupied, unrepaired and unwanted since the crime. The deteriorating effects of time and weather have taken their toll.

Few residents in Mims care to discuss the bombing. Mention of the subject brings on a quick freeze and nine times out of 10 the subject is changed immediately. Those few who are willing to discuss the case automatically lower their voices to a whisper.

"We heard the explosion that night," a white resident reported. "It shook our house, although we live a good ways from the Moore cottage.

"Right after the explosion there came a thin, high, crying noise, like a sickened baby, from the general direction of the cottage. We learned later it was the woman calling for help."

Because of its racial implications the Federal Bureau of Investigation sent investigators to Mims, where they remained, sifting the evidence for days, working in co-operation with Sheriff Williams. Reporters and photographers from widely scattered points arrived by planes to cover the case.

Thousands of letters in boxes, trunks and scattered about the cottage contain evidence of Moore's activities in behalf of his race. Many of these missives contain pleas for help from Negroes all over Florida. They speak of unfair charges of rape, murder and robbery which have been placed against them. Many contain newspaper clippings.

Unschooled Prose.

Some of the letters addressed to Moore are examples of unschooled but graphic prose, such as the one from southeastern Florida as follows:

"Dear sir: I addres these few remarks to you to aquaint you of my conditions of living, which, from all points, just ain't good. This is the way it was. I was working for a doc. He lost a pistol. I don't see no pistol anywhere. But just the same I am put in jail. One hour later they find the pistol. I want you to do what you think can be did for recovering my good name on this pistol business. More better than writing is explaining with talk, but walking to see you would wear out my feet."

Many of the mildewing books in the Moore cottage paint a comprehensive picture of the couple's life. There are Bibles, hymnals and copies of the "Outlines of Sociology" and "National Government of the United States." There are scrapbooks of school work, carefully written diaries of their daily lives and ledgers full of notes and meeting reports.

A small desk and other easily lifted articles of furniture, remain untouched, along with glass jars full of home canned fruit. It is surprising that vandals have left these usable articles in the deserted house.

LITTLE PITCHERS OVERFLOW WITH LEFTOUT WORDS

STONEHAM, Mass., March 24 (UP) — A furniture concern thought it would be a good idea to have some pitchers like the ones put out advertising a macaroni firm.

"Enjoy your wine with Prince Macaroni," was written across the side of the Prince Macaroni Co.'s pitchers, and "Salute" on the spout.

Charles Barbo, head of the furniture company, ordered 750 of the pitchers from an Italian company. He cabled instructions: "Leave out the word 'Salute;' and leave out words 'enjoy your wine with Prince Macaroni.'"

This week, 16 crates of pitchers, valued at about $2000, arrived.

Across the spout of each was the inscription, "Leave out the word Salute;" and on the side of each pitcher appears "Leave out the words Enjoy your wine with Prince Macaroni."

PLAN DISCUSSED FOR HOLDING U.N. ASSEMBLY ABROAD

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 24 (AP)—United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold is discussing with delegates a plan for the General Assembly to meet outside U.N. headquarters every third or fifth year. Diplomatic sources said the idea probably will be considered at the eleventh Assembly next fall.

There was considerable talk last winter about holding this year's Assembly in Rome in order to be away from the United States during the campaign and elections. But Italy was not prepared and no one wanted to pay the extra $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 it would cost.

Since then, Ambassador Mohammad Mir Khan of Pakistan has proposed U.N. organizations meet in various capitals so the world can see the U.N. at work.

The first Assembly session was held in London in 1946. The U.N. then chose New York for its permanent home. Since then the Assembly has met abroad twice—in 1948 and 1951 in Paris.

Cape Girardeau Home Being Extensively Remodeled for Owners

This is a sketch from St. Louis Architect Erwin Carl Schmidt of big Cape Girardeau home which is being altered and improved extensively according to Schmidt's designing for Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Groves, the owners. C. A. Hood of Cape Girardeau is general contractor.

Aluminum Processor Buys One-Floor Building in Kirkwood

This one-story concrete block industrial building with 12,000 square feet of floor space and loading docks, on about two and one-half acres of land adjoining the Frisco Railroad right-of-way, has been sold by the Kirkwood Machine and Manufacturing Co. to Leo Doeblin and E. F. Hennessey, president and vice president of Mississippi Valley Storm Sash, Inc., of Manchester,, manufacturers of aluminum storm sash, doors and awnings, who are rapidly expanding. The industrial department of the Dolan Co. was agent.

Home in Pasadena Park is Acquired

This property, at 7429 Warwick drive, Pasadena Park, in St. Louis county, has been sold for Mr. and Mrs. Clifford J. Hervey to Mr. and Mrs. John B. Woodward. Hervey is vice-president of J. Livingston Co., electric contractors, and Woodward is an engineer with W. R. Bendy, consulting engineers. The deal was handled by Esther W. Dierkes agency. The home has a living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms, breakfast or card room and bath on one floor with a knotty pine rathskeller and lavette.

Chestnut Offices Face Lift

An extensive remodeling of the 17-story International Building at 722 Chestnut street is about to be undertaken by the owners, Architect Arthur M. Fishman reports. Fishman has been commissioned to do the designing for the extensive face lifting and refurbishing.

Fishman said all public places in the building are to be done over. Five new, high speed elevators with special safety devices, are to be installed. Elevator lobbies on each floor are to be inclosed and corridor areas will be redecorated. Elevator inclosures will get indirect lighting by cove arrangements, and new direct lights.

The first floor lobby is to be remodeled and to be air-conditioned.

Additional electrical power has already been provided for the installation of cooling units.

The exterior of the building is to be redesigned and modernized as a follow-up to the work inside.

Mrs. Henri Chouteau, principal owner of the building, Fishman said, has expressed her faith in the continuing prosperity of Downtown St. Louis and believes "our great opportunity for a revitalized and prosperous downtown lies in the confidence, faith and loyalty of the occupants of the various office buildings throughout the district." To this end has the reconditioning of the International building been undertaken.

A. H. Stiel will be general contractor on the work to be undertaken.

Home Job Prospects Improved

By WILLIAM KERWIN

WASHINGTON (INS) — Home building prospects have improved so much in recent weeks that the industry is beginning to worry about possible shortages of cement, construction's prime ingredient.

Concern over cement supplies was voiced at a just concluded executive board meeting of the National Association of Home Builders during which NAHB leaders took a new reading on the housing situation.

While there was agreement that home building is on the upswing, NAHB says builders are "a little concerned about supplies of cement and glass for picture windows." Other materials are expected to be in adequate supply during the year.

Despite estimated output of 300,000,000 barrels of Portland cement this year, the Government has warned that "local shortage will still occur" because construction outlays may reach a record-breaking total of 44 billion dollars in 1956.

Highway Work Up.

The construction rise includes a 12 per cent jump in spending for highway construction, one of the prime consumers of cement. Enactment of President Eisenhower's multi-billion dollar highway program by Congress also may intensify the problem unless cement output rises further.

Aside from the cement situation, NAHB's findings, based on reports from 16 areas across the country, indicated improvement in the housing outlook from the gloomy forecasts last winter of sharp cutbacks in 1956 home building.

NAHB found a reduction in the backlog of unsold homes, a perk-up in customer demand for new houses and an easing in the scarcity of mortgage money. The feeling was that 1,200,000 new dwellings would be built this year.

Reaches Annual Rate.

The meeting ended as the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported another mild upsurge in home building in February —the second straight month of rising output.

BLS said builders started 78,000 new homes last month, a 5 per cent increase over January. Output was still down about 14 per cent from the record 1955 levels, but for the first time since November home building was running at an annual rate of 1.2 million units.

In all sections of the country last month, home building was on the increase and a general bulge in the number of building permits issued portended brisk spring housing output.

NAHB says builders will concentrate on better design and bigger homes this year with efforts intensified to supply housing for the middle income bracket.

Although construction costs are expected to rise further during the year, NAHB says that "it is still a buyer's market."

Richmond Heights Home Sold

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Richman, whose home at 1304 Woodland, Richmond Heights, is in the path of the new Daniel Boone Highway extension, have purchased this single flat at 7703 Lile avenue, Richmond Heights, from Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Johnson. The Branch Realty Co. was the agent.

In Sale and Trade Deal

Nine-story building at 1701 Washington avenue sold by the Thomas J. O'Reilly Real Estate Co. to Melvin and Harold Dubinsky.

Equity in the building at the southwest corner of Cherokee and Ohio, under 20-year lease to Neisner Bros., Inc. was taken in trade on the Washington avenue property by the Guaranty Trust Co. of Clayton, one of three institutions in control of the stock of the Thomas J. O'Reilly Real Estate Co. All negotiations for the buyers and sellers in the sale and trade of the properties were handled by the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Co.

Nine-Story Building Sold on Washington Ave.--Property On Cherokee in Trade Deal

One of the more important realty transactions of the week was the sale of a nine-story building at 1701 Washington avenue by the Thomas J. O'Reilly Real Estate Co. to Melvin and Harold Dubinsky, who then made a cash offer to purchase all of the stock of the corporation, which had other assets in addition to the building in the Washington avenue deal.

Stock of the Thomas J. O'Reilly Real Estate Co. was controlled by three institutions, the Guaranty Trust Co. of Clayton, the Mercantile Trust Co. of St. Louis and the Security First National Bank of Los Angeles.

The Security First National Bank of Los Angeles and the Mercantile Trust Co. accepted the offer to purchase the stock but the Guaranty Trust Co. elected to take in trade the equity in a building at the southwest corner of Cherokee and Ohio, under 20-year net lease to Neisner Bros., Inc.

The Dubinskys also purchased a 55-foot parking lot which adjoins the Washington avenue property on the west. The purchasers intend to modernize the first and second floors for lease.

Buyer and seller in the sale and trade were represented by the real estate department of the Mercantile Commerce Trust Co.

Commercial Sale

A commercial property numbered 4601-03 Pope avenue has been sold by Mr. and Mrs. William L. Shaw to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cohn, the B. F. Voss Realty Co. reports. Voss and the Dolan Co. handled the deal. The property has two stores and two apartments, one with four rooms, one with five rooms, all individually heated by gas units.

St. Louisans Sign Contract to Plan Hotel in Teheran

Signing of a contract with the Iranian Crown Lands Administration to plan construction of a $7,000,000, 400-room hotel in Teheran, capital of Iran, is reported by Douglas W. Stone, vice president of Design Incorporated, St. Louis. Hotels Corporation of America will operate the hotel.

His Imperial Majesty, the Shah of Iran, instrumental in the negotiations, envisions the largest and finest facilities in the Near East. The ultra-modern building, to occupy a square block in the heart of the city will include 35 royal suites, 60 rooms permanently reserved for United States embassy personnel and guests, swimming pool, roof garden, night club and an attractive wide-screen theater with royal box.

It will also house the first American-style restaurant in Iran, will contain its own electric power plant, and will be completely air-conditioned summer and winter.

Cape Home Remodeling Undertaken

Under direction of St. Louis Architect Erwin Carl Schmidt, Contractor C. A. Hood of Cape Girardeau in extensively remodeling the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Groves on a hilltop site at Cape Girardeau.

Extensive reworking of partitions and removal of some exterior walls were required in the new planning, Schmidt said. Broad areas of plaster and stone with fine lines of steel sash and narrow wood trim set up a theme to dominate the exterior.

Well shaded, generous glazed areas in steel casement sash and doors will allow the owners to enjoy the beauties of the site. Flagstone walks and terraces outside are carried through into the interior to further develop the relation of the property with its surroundings.

Except for tile of bath and kitchen, the remainder of the nouse is to be carpeted.

Red birch rubbed to a fruitwood tone will provide finish of the interior wood trim, and cabinet work of the book room, the baths and the kitchen. Pale yellow monotone mosaic tile of the baths and kitchen is to be used to harmonize with the wood tones.

In the plan, an entrance gallery combines spacially with the dining area and adjoins the living room and book room. Two extra bedrooms are being provided in addition to the master bedroom, which has a balcony terrace to extend its space.

Two full baths, several dressing areas, storage and closet areas complete the plan of the main level.

The existing basement has been retained for a general utility laundry area and a mechanical area for year-round air-conditioning equipment. A covered walk will join the entrance gallery with a three-car port.

Bransons Buy Freeburg Farm Of 713 Acres

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Branson of St. Louis county have purchased from Ashly L. Veasman of Dixon, Mo., a 713-acre farm on the Gasconade river about four miles east of Freeburg, Mo., Norris Fridley of Gerald, Mo., agent in the deal, reports.

Branson formerly operated the Meramec Airport on U.S. Highway 66 in southwest St. Louis county, and operated the Branson Flying Service there for 25 years.

Fridley said Branson, who flies his own plane, plans to prepare a sodded landing strip on the farm and to commute between the farm and his St. Louis county home. The flight will take about 35 to 40 minutes, Fridley said Branson estimated.

Extensive cattle and grain operations are planned for the farm, Fridley said, because the property has extensive bottom land with many acres of good pasture and nearly two miles of river frontage.

The farm has been an historical site in the fertile valley where it lies, having been used as a community shipping point when much goods was dispatched from the area by boat on the Gasconade into the Missouri at Gasconade City, west of Hermann, Fridley said.

Pike Farm Sold

A 350-acre farm eight miles northwest of Elsberry, called Buffalo Knob Ranch, has been purchased by Leo Hardy of St. Louis from Commander Frederick W. Russe of Fairfax, Va., the Harry E. Callison Real Estate Agency at Clarence, Mo., reports.

Hardy, who heads his own commission firm at Mississippi Valley Stockyards, intends to use the property acquired for cattle grazing, Callison, who handled the deal, reports.

Hampton Lease

A corner store at 3500 Hampton avenue, adjoining its present quarters, has been leased by the Flanagan Paint & Wallpaper Co. The additional quarters double the amount of floor space occupied by the concern. Store fronts in the building, built by John Colao, are faced with colored ceramic tiles.

Lease negotiations were handled by the Dolan Co.

Bungalows in City Sold Before Completion

Four brick bungalows at Magnolia and Lawrence, opposite Tower Grove Park, built by David A. Hess, have been sold by the Hargraves Realty Co. Respective purchasers of the properties shown from left to right, are Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Rue, Dr. and Mrs. Julius F. Holke, Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Frerker and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Tripp.

Spring Comes, Though Calendar and Seasons Don't Always Just Jibe

By ELEANOR B. McCLURE
Post-Dispatch Garden Writer.

Henry van Dyke may not have been talking about St. Louis, but he could have been, when he said that the first day of spring is one thing and the first spring day is another. Spring has officially arrived, but where are the spring days and where are the spring flowers?

Nodding bells of snowdrops were seen in a few sheltered spots in late February. Encouraged by March sunshine, crocuses opened cups of white and gold, and a few brave daffodils appeared. Red blooms decked the bare branches of the maples, and the Cornelian cherry was draped in yellow mist. Beneath the brown soil and on branches of trees and shrubs are embryonic flowers and fat leaf buds, awaiting the signal to unfold.

This magic change from bare earth to gay bloom, from stark branches to fresh minted leaves ushers in the happiest of the seasons. Each spring brings a fresh beginning. It is truly a season of hope and promise.

Gardener Gets Urge.

For the gardener spring is irresistible. Warm, sunny days never fail to bring the urge to plant in fresh-turned soil. Home owners flock into seed stores and nurseries, seeking flowers, shrubs and trees that will convert dream gardens into reality. A booming seller's market develops in seeds, fertilizers, and insecticides, not to mention the newest tools, power equipment, and novelty gadgets.

This year, happily, the gardener has better reasons for hoping to make his dreams come true. The season is off to a better start, at least. Cool weather has restrained the more ambitious plants, like magnolias, that so often are nipped by frost. Instead of a spring drouth, we have had March snows and showers. We're almost sure to have fine April flowers!

Indeed, the outlook is for a very fine gardening year, if interested and enthusiasm are any criterion. Some of the interest may be due to the phenomenal growth of hobby gardening—by the rose fanciers, the flower arrangers, the collectors and hybridizers of such flowers as iris, hems, mums, glads, dahlias, peonies and even begonias and geraniums. In the St. Louis area alone the members of garden clubs and plant societies now are numbered in the thousands.

Where's The Line?

Even more far-reaching is the current trend toward garden-living, a trend that has been accelerated by the shorter work week, the migration to the suburbs, and perhaps most of all by contemporary styles of architecture. Each year it becomes harder to draw a line of demarcation between house and garden. Living areas spill over into suburban "yards," and at the same time plants and garden areas are creeping into nooks and corners of the house.

In keeping with this gardening-for-enjoyment trend, we are now offered an almost infinite variety of aids designed to take the drudgery out of almost every garden task. The family car must now share garage space with all manner of gadgets, tools and power equipment.

The owner of a small property may now buy a single "power handle," a compact, easily stored motor, which may have a variety of attachments for such things as cultivating "spad-

Sappington Dial Center Is Going In

Installation of major dial equipment has been started at the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s newly completed Sappington central office building, R. M. Noack, manager, reports.

The new dial office, which will serve Victor 3 telephone subscribers, is located on Gravois road west of Sappington road. Cost of the project, scheduled to begin operation early in the summer, is estimated at more than $1,000,000. When the new dial equipment begins operation, subscribers with VIctor 3 telephone numbers will no longer have to dial "9" to place calls outside the Sappington zone.

Noack said the new "Number 5 Crossbar" dial equipment being installed at Sappington works on an entirely different principle than the system now serving the area.

Reports Own Trouble.

"In addition to being faster and more efficient, the Number 5 Crossbar dial system has its own built-in automatic trouble center," Noack said. "It automatically keeps watch on all dialing equipment and, in the event anything goes wrong, makes a detailed report of the trouble—even if one part of the dialing machinery takes a second too long to do its job.

"At the same time the equipment is reporting the difficulty, it automatically brings in auxiliary equipment to substitute for parts that aren't working properly. It operates so swiftly that the customer will not be able to detect trouble should it possibly occur," he said.

The trouble center is equipped with a card-punching apparatus which prepares a detailed diagnosis of the exact trouble, all in one second's

More Warehouse Space, 7 New Stores Planned by Katz

With opening of the Katz Drug Company's 32,000 square foot Hall's Ferry Circle drug store here scheduled for late fall, and the opening of seven other new stores planned in 1956-57, the Katz chain reports plans to double the space in its 70,000 square foot warehouse in North Kansas City.

The Halls Ferry Circle store will be Katz's seventh in the Greater St. Louis area, all large stores. Katz now has 33 stores, expects to have 41 before the end of 1957. With a steadily increasing gross business, the operation averaged $1,200,000 per store in 1955.

Stores proposed in a two-year $7,000,000 expansion program, in addition to the new one here, will include three in Kansas City this year, one in Memphis, one in Des Moines, and others for which leases have not been concluded.

The Katz chain is nearing its forty-second anniversary and M. H. Katz, chairman of the board, said the company feels confident in the future of business and in the loyalty of some 3000 employes as it announces the continued expansion.

Realty Concern Puts Salesmen Into Auto Fleet

The Ed. Shaughnessy Real Estate Co., Inc., 8572-74 St. Charles road, Overland, has put its salesmen into a company-owned fleet of new station wagons. The names of individual salesmen have been printed in door panels of the wagons and each man will have complete use of the vehicle, the company reported.

Use of a companyo-wned fleet for real estate sales work is believed to be an innovation here, a spokesman for the firm said. If it proves successful, the plan is to change cars every year, provide such transportation to all salesmen who may be added to the staff, when they prove to be competent.

Leases Offices

Miss Edith Murch, landscape architect, has leased office space on the top floor of the Mutual Bank Building, 718 Locust street. Miss Murch, designer of the Family Garden at the Arena Bildor's Show, is experienced in landscaping problems pertaining to the St. Louis area, and has done considerable residential planning as well as large scale landscaping for institutions and industrial buildings.

Heads Up Sales

Richard M. Sarnoff, 641 West Canterbury, St. Louis, has been named sales manager of the Alumaroll Division of Mid-West Alsco, Inc., Dan R. Jostedt, general sales manager of that firm, reports. Sarnoff has been with the firm two years.

Big Pan-Am Florida Fair To Be Built

By A. H. RASKIN
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

MIAMI, Fla. — A 25-year dream is scheduled to move into the action stage here early in April. Work will begin then on a huge Inter-American center built on the lines of a permanent world's fair.

A $70,000,000 bond issue to finance the project was put on the market March 6, by Lehman Brothers. Officials of the authority set up by the State of Florida to establish the center said dredging and drilling operations on the 1675-acre site would start within a month after the bond sale.

The exhibition will be known as the Interama, and its sponsors expect it will be ready to open in December, 1958. Its aim of promoting increased trade and better relations between the United States and Latin America has been endorsed through passage of an act of congress. Scores of countries in South and Central America already have indicated a desire to participate.

Laced With Canals.

The site originally was acquired by the City of Miami for use as an airport. It borders Biscayne Bay and is opposite the Miami Beach Gold Coast. A survey by an outside engineering firm indicated that the fair would attract 59,000,000 visitors in its first five years.

Present plans call for a wedding of land water on the exhibition grounds. The area will be laced with canals, along which gondola-like electric launches will carry sightseers.

An intramural surface transportation system also is being planned, but officials are not yet ready to say whether it will resemble the beeping little trackless trains that threaded through the New York World's Fair just before World War II.

The fair will have a marina for yachts and small craft, and a heliport for those who come from hotels or airports by helicopter. But 75 per cent of the visitors are expected to come by automobile. Parking lots will be located near most of the principal exhibition halls and pavilions to minimize walking.

Honky-Tonks Barred.

George Tayloe Ross, executive managing director of the Inter-American Center Authority, said the amusement area would seek to maintain the dignity of a Disneyland. Honky-tonk attractions will be barred, he declared. Concerts, sport events, pageants and diplomatic receptions will be conducted with such frequency that the average daily calendar is expected to call for at least three special events.

All the governments in this hemisphere will be invited to sponsor permanent exhibits as a means of stimulating commerce on a two-way basis. Similar invitations will be extended to all the principal manufacturing, merchandising and shipping corporations in the United States. For smaller enterprises at home and in Latin America a trade mart area will be provided for short-term or small exhibits.

A theme theater will be built as a symbol of the project. In place of the trylon and perisphere that become the trademark of the New York fair, present plans call for three semi-circular metal spandrels intertwined. They will tower high above the visitors, and their purpose will be to symbolize the anchoring together of the Americas.

Miami's position as the chief gateway for air travel between this country and Latin America prompted the decision to locate the Interama here. However, Miami will have no monopoly on stressing its advantages as a trade clearing house. Any other city interested in Latin American commerce will be able to lease space to sing its own praises.

The extent to which Miami has been moving up as a jumping-off and arrival point for Latin American travel is reflected in statistics compiled by the Date County Port Authority, operator of the International Air Port here. The figures showed that 783,351 passengers had gone through Miami last year on their way to or from Latin America. This compared with 669,529 in 1954 and 451,902 in 1949.

Air freight through Miami showed an even sharper gain. Cargo flights carried 106,415,000 pounds of freight. A year earlier the total was 99,127,000 pounds and in 1949 it was 39,561,000.

Pan-American World Airways, the biggest of the 32 air lines operating through here, reported that its passenger operations to Latin America were up 22 per cent in the last year and its cargo tonnage up 14 per cent.

Summer visitors from South America and the West Indies have done much to improve Miami's position as a year-round vacation resort. In July and August Spanish replaces English as the most frequently heard language in some sections of Miami.

New Home of Roofing Company

This is the new office and warehouse of the E. R. Lindberg Co., applicators of poured and tiled gypsum roof decks, at 6741 Manchester avenue. The firm moved in a short time ago. The building was designed by Frank McGuire & Associates, architects, and the Stocker Construction Co. was general contractor.

Roofing Firm Gets Into New Office On Manchester Ave.

The E.R. Lindberg Co., applicators of poured and tile gypsum roof decks, has moved into a new office and warehouse at 6741 Manchester avenue. The property was designed by Frank McGuire and Associates, architects, and the Stocker Construction Co. was general contractor.

The main building, which embraces the general office, sales rooms and shop area, is of reinforced concrete construction, masonry walls, wall bearing bar joists, tee rails, insulation and poured gypsum roof deck with tar and gravel roofing, packaged combination heating and air conditioning, fluorescent lighting, plastered walls and tile floors.

The warehouse is of reinforced concrete, truck height floor level, structural steel framing, gypsum roof deck, galvanized and masonry walls and siding.

The E. R. Lindberg Company first began operations in this area on Dec. 17, 1946. The location at that time was a small rented garage on Enright avenue. After several years at that location they moved to larger quarters at 2525 St. Louis avenue. Their continued growth forced them to still seek larger quarters and they moved their general office to 3926 Lindell blvd., and rented warehouse space in Wellston. They continued to grow and expand which required more space and they consolidated their office and warehouse in their present location at 6741 Manchester. Operation since 1946 has expanded to such an extent that they now operate in 14 different states and their roof decks have been applied on schools, churches, hospitals, industrial buildings, atomic energy plants, etc.

The company employs men throughout these various states, and completed approximately 1100 contracts since the charter was granted in 1946.

The company is successor to the Atkinson-Lindberg Company, the name having been changed after the death of Atkinson several years ago.

time. The card shows which piece of equipment is out of order, tells what's wrong with it, and gives the exact location of the trouble among the many rows of complicated dial machinery.

Cites Rapid Growth.

Noack said that without the automatic trouble center, it might take a skilled craftsman hours to spot a breakdown in the equipment because of the thousands of miles of wire and thousands of complicated circuits.

Sappington will continue to be served by the present telephone equipment until the new office begins operation. Noack said that the Sappington area's rapid residential growth made expansion of the company's facilities there necessary. In January, 1954, the Sappington dial office served slightly more than 2000 subscribers. At the end of 1955, nearly 3500 telephones were in service there. Initially the new dial office will be able to provide service for approximately 5500 subscribers, and expand its facilities to provide for the future growth of the Sappington area.

Moves to Brentwood

The office of the St. Louis Technical Field Section of the International Nickel Company's Development and Research Division is now located at 10 South Brentwood boulevard (Room 201), St. Louis 5, Missouri, reports by Donald J. Reese, assistant manager of the division. G. A. Fisher Jr. is in charge of the office.

Salesmanager

John Simpson has been named sales manager for Henry Weiss Jr., Inc., distributor of General Electric home and commercial equipment.

Syndicate Buys Block On DeKalb

It was reported last week that a St. Louis syndicate has acquired the full city block of industrial buildings located on DeKalb street and bounded by President, Barracks, and Potomac streets. This property was formerly owned by the Medart Company of St. Louis. There are eight buildings on this tract with total floor space in excess of 200,000 square feet.

The purchasers stated that the property has been leased to Midwest Consultants, Inc., a manufacturer and producer of diversified chemical products. Bernard Fischlowitz, president of Midwest Consultants, Inc., stated that the officers of his company had given intensive study to the proper location for the expansion of its activities, and, after weighing the various advantages between location in the city and county, determined to locate within the city because of their belief in the new spirit of growth and vitality of the city and their confidence in the growing importance of the industrial riverfront area.

Fischlowitz advised that the company plans an extensive development and improvement program over the next three years.

The purchasers were represented in this transaction by the law firm of Sidel & Sandweiss. The sellers, a Chicago syndicate, were represented by Max Weinberg and the law firm of Jones, Hocker, Gladney & Grand.

Named to Board

James L. Scott, president of the James L. Scott Corp., a real estate, building and insurance firm at 1608 Big Bend boulevard, Richmond Heights, has been elected a director on the board of the People's State Bank of Maplewood, 7170 Manchester avenue, William J. Westpale, bank president, reports.

Scott succeeds Henry Baalmann, who retired. Scott has served the board as real estate consultant since April 1955. He is a certified appraiser, member of the insurance board, the St. Louis County Real Estate Board, the Mortgage Bankers Association.

New Ferguson Pontiac Sales Agency Gets Into New Building

This is the new home of B.P.B. Pontiac, Inc., Ferguson agency at 1201 South Florissant road (at Hawksbury avenue). Formal opening is planned for April 6 and 7 although functioning in the property already has begun. The company is headed by Fred Behle, Frank J. Paisley and Robert J. Burns. Dan Mullin was architect for the building and the R. K. & A. Jones Construction Co. built it. The property is on a 200 by 207-foot lot, was started last October.

Stamps Firm Sets Up Two Offices Here

Top Value Enterprises, Inc., has opened two new redemption stores in the St. Louis area to provide gift merchandise headquarters for savers of Top Value stamps.

Located at 1009-13 Locust street and at 8101 Maryland avenue in suburban Clayton, these centers display upwards of 1000 items ranging from electrical appliances and furniture to personal accessories, toys and sports equipment. The Locust street outlet, 3465 square feet on the first floor plus a basement of comparable size and balcony of 1600 square feet, is one of the largest of Top Value's 100 redemption centers. Completely air-conditioned, it also houses the company's regional and zone offices.

The store front is of black carrara glass. Two large display windows, open at the rear, afford a clear view of the interior from the street.

A new one-story red brick building in pseudo Early American architecture, the Clayton store sets back about 10 feet from the sidewalk and has a terrace in front. A wrought iron fence adds to the decor. The store has 1960 square feet of floor space.

Wall cases and island tables in both stores are of modern design with a stained birch finish. General illumination is provided by fluorescent fixtures and concealed "slimline" fluorescent units light showcases, counters and cornices. Decorative schemes are in modern pastel. Peg-board wall panels throughout the stores facilitate convenient display of merchandise.

Robert H. Baehler Construction Co., St. Louis, was the general contractor for both centers.

Top Value operations in the St. Louis area now employ 53 persons. Practically all of this personnel has been hired locally.

Robert L. Thorpe is regional manager of an area embracing Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas, southwestern Illinois., western Tennessee and northern and central Mississippi. The St. Louis zone is headed by William J. Desmond.

Mrs. Henrietta Tanenbaum is manager of the Locust street redemption store and Mrs. Wilma C. Smith is in charge at Clayton. Joseph Lannan is manager of the Top Value warehouse opened recently at 400 South Fourth street.

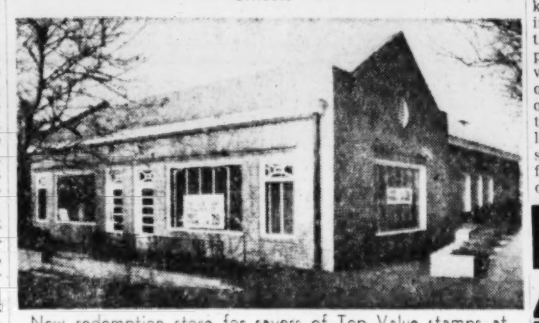

Organized in April of last year, Top Value Enterprises, already the nation's second largest trading stamp company, now has 1350 employes throughout the country. Its main office is in Dayton, O.

The company has seven regional and 30 zone offices and eight warehouses.

Stamp Savers' Headquarters

New redemption store for savers of Top Value stamps opened at 1009-13 Locust st. by Top Value Enterprises, Inc. The building also houses the company's regional and zone offices.

New redemption store for savers of Top Value stamps at 8101 Maryland av., Clayton. Pseudo-Early American front is in harmony with other architecture in the community.

Elected Assistant

Arthur Trenn has been elected assistant secretary of the Community Federal Savings & Loan Association of Overland, John H. Armbruster, president, reports. At the annual election all previous officers of the concern were re-elected.

Work Begun On Lutheran Church Unit

Work is under way on a new addition to the Lutheran Church of the Atonement in Florissant, following ground breaking on Jan. 15. An educational building, 60x100, will provide five classrooms, pastor's office, secretary's office, mimeograph and mailing room, nursery, cribroom, first aid, toilet facilities and storage space. It is being done in limestone, redwood and glass.

Designed by Harris Armstrong, who also designed the award-winning church which was dedicated in June, 1953, the new building will provide space for church activities and a Christian Day School, which is planned for next September.

Joseph Schiermeier of Florissant is the general contractor. Total cost of the building and equipment is estimated at $75,000. Completion is set for next August.

The Lutheran Church of the Atonement was started in Florissant in September 1951. The Rev. Justus P. Kretzmann was installed as pastor in March, 1952. At present the congregation numbers 495 communicants and 892 baptized persons. The Sunday School has an enrollment of 309.

J. A. Jutzi is president of the congregation. A. J. Vedder, vice president; Ed Swiney, chairman of the building committee.

In New Offices

The East St. Louis Branch of the Universal C.I.T. Credit Corporation, whose office was wrecked by fire in February, is now re-established at 408 Missouri avenue. The old office had been at 415A Missouri avenue.

Since original finance papers are not kept in such a branch office as the one in East St. Louis, duplicate records were obtained shortly after the fire from the home office and business has proceeded as usual.

Make Tile Gleam.

A regular scrubbing, in addition to a daily mop-up, will keep tile bathroom floors gleaming. Home economists suggest the use of two galvanized steel pails, one filled with soapy water for scrubbing and the other with clear water for thorough rinsing. This will assure that there is no soapy film left to dull the tile. Stubborn stains can be removed readily from the tile by using cleanser or fine steel wool.

Iris Merits Attention of Many Tastes

By MARVIN G. OLSON
President, Greater St. Louis Iris Society.

The Iris, dating back to Biblical times, much written about in poem and poetry through these many years, has, through the efforts of hybridizers, chiefly in the last two decades, been transformed into what is now known as the "Modern Iris." More progress has been made to improve the Iris than any other flower.

Let me define the Modern Iris: Large bloom; standards domed and slightly overlapping; falls wide and semi-flaring; clear, clean colors; blooms with good texture and heavy substance to withstand hot sun, wind and rain; sturdy bloomstalks with many flowers well-shaped thereon for maximum display of their gorgeous blooms; foliage that is pleasing even when not in bloom.

You can also have your choice of bloom to suit your tastes: Formal and tailored, or standards and falls that are ruffled, or if you prefer, so crinkled the whole flower seems trimmed in lace. This laciness is one of the newer innovations bred into the iris. Visualize this beautiful flower in practically every color imaginable, with the exception of green, black, and a true red. Much progress is being made by hybridizers even in these colors. All these foregoing attributes comprises today's "Modern Iris."

Never-Ending Task.

I have experimented with many species of plants in the St. Louis area with only a moderate degree of success. Many species of plants have been a complete failure, especially in the last few years of extremely hot summers and deficient rainfall. Getting the clay soil in this area in proper condition for a large variety of plant requirements is a never-ending task.

We would all like our gardens to be lavish with bloom from early spring to late fall, but let's face it, this dream is becoming more difficult each year in this area.

Spring gardens, especially, can be very lovely in this area. It is, of course, necessary to choose the correct planting material to achieve best results. These include spring-blooming bulbs of all kinds and a generous assortment of early perennials. I have found that the Modern Iris produces a bigger show in this area for less effort and expenditure than any other flower I know.

The Modern Iris can be bought for as little as 50 cents a rhizome. This single rhizome will increase to four or five the following year, making a nice size clump very soon. The iris does not deteriorate, as do so many plants. The plant renews itself each year and will live many years with a minimum of care. The increases produced in late summer will produce next season's bloom.

Iris Comes Through.

The iris is a "toughy" and seems to thrive on our hot summers. It is very drouth-resistant, requiring water only after prolonged periods without rainfall. They are very hardy, surviving our coldest winters. Even after the late freeze we experienced in March of 1955, when many plants were killed or were deprived of their bloom, the iris came through with very little damage and bloomed almost normally.

The iris will do well in most types of soil, including the clay soils which is so abundant in this area. A good garden loam is preferable, of course. A yearly feeding of bone meal and super-phosphate (two-thirds bonemeal, one-third superphosphate), about a handful sprinkled around each clump and gently worked into the soil, soon after the blooming season or at the time you plant them will produce good healthy plants and maximum bloom. Good drainage and some sun (the more the better) are a must for good healthy growth and bountiful bloom.

Most of the tall bearded iris are prodigious growers and should be dug and divided every three or four years, as soon as the clumps become crowded. If left in a crowded condition the blooms eventually become smaller and the plant loses much of its vigor and attractiveness. In this area iris should be planted or divided immediately after the blooming season, between July 15 and Oct. 1. Later planting ordinarily does not give the plant time to become established before winter, thereby getting sparse bloom the following spring.

One to a Foot.

Iris may be planted almost anywhere in the garden with excellent effect. Do not plant too close to the edge of the lawn or under plants or trees that may tend to shade them and rob them of nourishment. A good rule to follow is to allow at least one square foot of garden space for each rhizome, with no encroachment into this area by roots or overhanging foliage of nearby plants. For best results, the base of the iris plant should be exposed to the sun at least part of the day.

Iris make wonderful accent plants in your landscape scene. A clump each of pale blue, clear pink and light yellow beside the garden gate or at the edge of the pool would be breath-taking. Plant clumps of three of a kind in various color combinations among your perennial border for striking color accents. Choose early, mid-season and late varieties for a continuation of bloom from early May to early June.

The dwarf (8-inch), medium (32-inch) and others with bloomstalks to 55 inches or more, together with their varying season of bloom, make the iris ideal companion plants for the perennial border. These aristocrats are at their best in front of a background of some kind, be it a privacy fence around a patio, a shrub border or a planting of evergreens along your property line. Here is where the proper selection of color combinations makes a real show.

If your landscape is large use a good many of the brilliant new iris colors such as deep yellows, medium blues, whites, deep pink and raspberry shades, creams, light browns, and various blends. These colors have remarkable "carrying" qualities, thereby making a colorful display even at considerable distances. The more delicate pastel colors should generally be used in small gardens or in areas viewed at closer range, such as patio plantings and the like. There is an iris height and color to suit your every whim.

Good for Arrangements.

Iris are excellent subjects for arrangements, as they are available in an almost unlimited color range, from the brightest orange-yellow to the pastel pinks, as well as bloom size and form. Even the foliage is used as line, fill, or background material.

Picture in your mind the unique coloring of the iris variety, "Lady Mohr" (oyster-white standards with falls of pale chartreuse, heavily veined brown), combined with weather-bleached driftwood. Another favorite combines "Helen McGregor" (clear light blue), "Golden Fleece" (lemon yellow) and a few sprigs of graceful pink Kolkwitzia or Beauty Bush, with iris leaves as a background.

Iris are much the same as many other perennials in that some varieties perform better in this area than others. A few varieties that originated in Southern California, for instance, are not fully winter-hardy in this area. The few iris that were damaged or failed to bloom after the late freeze of March 1955 were mostly of such origin.

Those interested in planting Modern Iris would do well to visit plantings in this area during the month of May to see and learn of varieties best suited to their particular needs. There are quite a few specialists in this area who would be happy to have visitors see their gardens. Here you can see some of the latest varieties as well as many of the favorites of the past few years.

Following are a few moderately priced (50 cents to $1.50) iris I would recommend for this area: New Snow, Katherine Fay, and Snow Flurry (white); the Admiral, Danube Wave (dark blue); Blue Rhythm, Great Lakes (medium blue); Cahokia, Helen McGregor (light blue); Blue Shimmer (blue plicata); Bellerive (cream); Golden Fleece (lemon yellow) Zantha (bright yellow); Ola Kala, Cloth of Gold (Deep orange-yellow).

Pink Cameo, Hit Parade, Courtier (pink); Chantilly (lacy orchid pink); Melodist, Brown Thrasher, Russet Wings (brown); Ordlio, Ranger, Solid Mahogany, Vice Regal, Dreamland (red shades); Sable, Vatican Purple (deep purple); Elmohr (mulberry purple); Three Oaks, Mulberry Rose, Inspiration (rose blends).

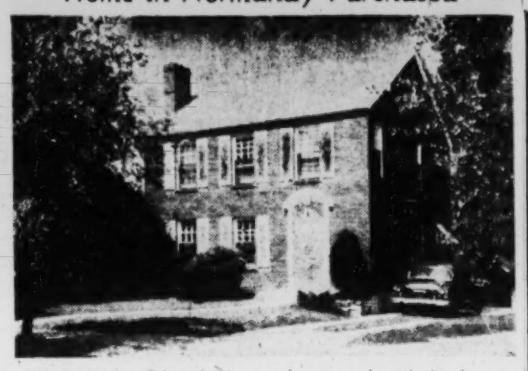

There are many, many others in various blends and two-tone color combinations too numerous to mention.

This investment property at the northeast corner of Grand and Wyoming street, consisting of six stores, with five apartments above, has been sold by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Lerner, their daughter Rita Sue Friedman, and son Perry Lee Lerner to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rudin and their daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Sherwood. Home in Normandy Purchased

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Monaco have purchased this home from Mr. and Mrs. William Kampmeinert at 8453 Roanoke Drive through the John J. Cummings Agency. Monaco is an engineer with the Mallinkrodt Chemical Co., the agent said.

He Explains Heat Pump to Builders

Paul O'Neill, Bloomfield, N. J., manager of the utility contact department of the heat pump division of the General Electric Corporation explained to about 150 members of the Home Builders' Association of Greater St. Louis at their March meeting last week just what a heat pump is.

He described the unit as "an overgrown refrigerator or room cooler which not only provides cooling, but also provides heating by the same refrigerant circuit.

Elimination of the need for fuel burning equipment with its associated flame, chimney, flue pipes and possible overheating," is a safety factor in homes, he said, "and there is the added value of cleanliness."

Builders Select Technical Group

John B. Herdlein, a builder, has been named chairman of a Technical Committee of the Home Builders' Association of Greater St. Louis, President Gene Y. Vescovo reports.

Other members of the committee are Frank B. J. Darr Jr. of Frank B. J. Darr & Son; Russell Schwarz of the Arrow Construction Co.

The committee is working on plans for a short course in concrete mix design, to be presented by Washington University on Monday and Tuesday nights over a six-week period.

Roses Solve City Garden Spot Problem

The delight of having roses blooming in the garden is heightened by the knowledge that in addition to the color and beauty on display, roses can be used to solve many garden problems. Whether it be a small plot of land or an extensive garden, roses are an ideal solution to many landscaping problems.

Gardeners have great freedom of choice in their use of roses. Many arrange their rose plantings by color, and effective plantings may be made by gradually blending colors or creating dramatic contrasts. Level uninteresting places can be beautified with formal or informal plantings of hybrid teas, while other garden areas will be transformed into a thing of beauty by a group of floribundas. Climbers and pillar roses will mask unsightly areas or soften the harsh lines of building corners.

First Multi-Color.

No matter what effect gardeners wish to achieve, they should choose quality pre-tested roses. Varieties that have won the A.A.R.S. Award have been pre-tested for two years in test gardens located across the nation, and have proved themselves under the widest variation of soil and climatic conditions.

The 1956 All-America winner, Circus, is the first multi-color rose to win A.A.R.S. honors. The ever-changing colors of this floribunda make it a delight to have in the garden, no matter how it is used. In the bud, Circus displays rich yellow and red, changing as it opens to orange buff flushed with pink and finally offering cherry red when the flower is fully opened.

The three All-America winners for 1955 are ideal additions to any garden. Jiminy Cricket, a clear orange floribunda, will lend its exciting color to driveway and property borders, low plantings in front of evergreens, and is a wonderful choice for color massing.

Use for Accent.

Queen Elizabeth, a grandiflora of clear pink, combines the blooming characteristics of a floribunda with the growth pattern of a hybrid tea. It is especially interesting when used as an accent in height, and offers an abundance of blooms for cut flowers.

Tiffany, an exceptional orchid pink hybrid tea, is an almost never ending source of magnificent cut flowers. It is ideally suited for formal plantings. The single perfect blooms borne on long stems make it wonderful for cut flowers.

Gardeners in the middle and northern states should plan their gardens now and select the varieties best suited for their own requirements. Quality roses such as the A.A.R.S. varieties, are always greatly in demand, and should be ordered early in order to avoid disappointment due to being sold out. Every All-America rose plant carries the A.A.R.S. tag. It is the hallmark of quality in roses.

Co-Operation Of Home Owner On Lines Urged

Co-operation of home owners and municipal officials with public utility companies on line clearance problems in relation to trees growing on home properties, or along streets, is urged by the National Arborist Association.

Public utility companies in recent years have taken an increasing interest in trees and are, in many cases, in a position to advise on species that will eliminate many past problems in this connection. A considerable number of companies have published illustrated landscaping booklets for guidance of home owners.

By co-operation with the utilities; home owners having line clearance problems in most cases will obtain sound advice on both existing and newly planted trees. Line clearance is a big problem in some localities, but by proper pruning of trees their beauty can be preserved without interfering with public service. Utilities usually employ tree experts to do the pruning job, making everybody happy. Practically all good tree experts are experienced in line clearance work.

Proper care of trees can do much to prevent them from blowing over in severe storms. During the recent hurricanes on the East Coast, it was found that many of the trees toppling over had "girdling" roots, split crotches, or improperly applied guy wires.

Does Double Duty

A "double-duty" peach, called Saturn, is actually a beautiful flowering peach that bears edible fruits. The fully double, pink flowers of early spring are followed by yellow-fleshed, juicy fruits in July. An "everbearing" peach, Summerlong, begins to ripen yellow-fleshed freestone fruits in July, and continues to bear through September.

GLORION

The 3-in-1 Balanced Soil-Conditioner, Soil-Builder, Soil-Fertilizer That Prepares the Soil for Beautiful Garden-Show Flowers . . . Prize Vegetables...Bigger, Healthier Plants, Shrubs, Trees, Hedges, Luscious Fruits . . .

GORGEOUS GREEN LAWNS

Even In Sandy, Clayey Problem Soils!

Are you one of the countless thousands of folks who every year throw up their hands and say, "I'd love to have a decent garden but just look at that barren soil — it won't even grow weeds!"

Are you forever disappointed in the appearance of your lawn even though you've used the finest seeds? Do you believe that the only thing left is to spend a lot of money on new top soil? Do you still try to improve your soil by the slow process of digging in some ordinary fertilizer, year after year? If your answer to any one of these questions is "YES", read every word of this important message about a development in gardening science that truly belongs in the "NEW AGRICULTURE".

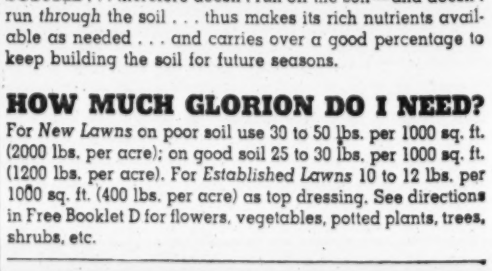

Imagine being able to turn hard-packed, growth-resistant clayey soil or loose sandy soil into rich, porous, loam-like growing soil starting with the first application. Imagine being able to supply your dead, lifeless soil with vital, life-giving elements that flowers, grass, trees, shrubs, hedges and plants need for luxurious growth! Yes, imagine changing the hard, brittle, sun-baked barren soil on your entire place . . . even if it's sand, where nothing ever grew before . . . into rich, fertile, friable growing soil! Best of all, imagine actually changing the soil structure so that from season to season minimum treatments with GLORION will retain the soil-health and leave an extra reserve deposit of precious nutrients that won't drain away!

It took years to develop the complete, balanced, organic-based formula that is guaranteed to do all this! It is called GLORION, an amazing, long-lasting product that actually fertilizes as it conditions as it builds soil! Yes, GLORION gives your undernourished problem soil a "full course meal," made available to your flowers, plants, and grasses!

Most important of all, GLORION is supercharged with carbon, the element missing in so many others! It is carbonaceous matter in the soil that provides an excellent diet for the earthworm population and that is both a food and a source of energy for the beneficial micro-organisms that are essential components of fertile soils!

Yes, this time try GLORION . . . be delighted with the dramatic results it gives . . . or your money back!

"Marries" Particles of Sand. . . . Glorion "Divorces" Particles of Clay!
BY COLLOIDAL ACTION IN THE SOIL!
Fertilizes, Conditions, Builds Soil

Odorless, Never Cakes, Always Free Flowing CALCIUM NITROGEN • PHOSPHORUS • POTASSIUM
ORGANIC-ORIGIN CARBON HUMUS • MICRO-NUTRIENT TRACE ELEMENTS:
Manganese, Zinc, Boron, Molybdenum, Copper, Cobalt

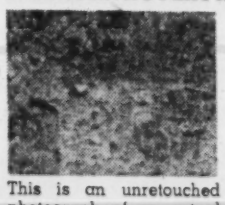

WHAT IS GLORION? Glorion is an exceptionally efficient combination of NATURAL (Non-synthetic) Organic Soil Conditioner and complete Soil Fertilizer balanced with anti-acid Calcium and all the Micro-nutrient trace elements so essential as agents and catalysts in making soil elements available as plant and grass food.

WHY IS GLORION BETTER? Because for most soils nothing else is needed if you use GLORION! . . . no other fertilizer, no other soil conditioner or soil builder! . . . GLORION is an all-in-one product . . . its Carbon-Humus providing a source of food and energy for the acceleration of soil bacteria; its anti-acid Calcium aiding in sweetening the soil; its conditioning properties helping to insure soil structure that permits proper water penetration and air circulation!

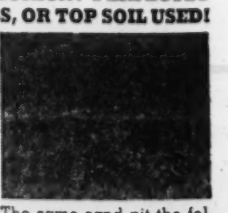

WHAT DOES GLORION DO? Approximately 95% of the soil in North America is depleted of humus, devoid of plant-available minerals and trace elements, lacking in productive top soil. GLORION stimulates soil fertility . . . and replenishes depleted soils because the carbon humus in GLORION is SOIL-SOLUBLE, NOT WATER-SOLUBLE . . . therefore doesn't run off the soil—and doesn't run through the soil . . . thus makes its rich nutrients available as needed . . . and carries over a good percentage to keep building the soil for future seasons.

HOW MUCH GLORION DO I NEED? For New Lawns on poor soil use 30 to 50 lbs. per 1000 sq. ft. (2000 lbs. per acre); on good soil 25 to 30 lbs. per 1000 sq. ft. (1200 lbs. per acre). For Established Lawns 10 to 12 lbs. per 1000 sq. ft. (400 lbs. per acre) as top dressing. See directions in Free Booklet D for flowers, vegetables, potted plants, trees, shrubs, etc.

HERE'S VERIFIED PROOF YOU CAN TURN EVEN SANDY, CLAYEY, UNPRODUCTIVE SOIL INTO GROWING SOIL WITH GLORION! PERFECTLY BALANCED! NO PEAT MOSS, OR TOP SOIL USED!

This is an unretouched photograph of an actual sand pit of The Metropolitan Sand and Gravel Co. at Northport, N. Y., before it was treated with GLORION, 50 pounds per 1000 square feet.

The same sand pit the following spring after using GLORION and seeding. A fine, thick carpet of sturdy grass is growing in what was barren sand with all top soil removed.

... After this experiment, GLORION was selected for use in reclaiming the remainder of the 1250 acres in this sand pit! Many products were tested — only GLORION succeeded!

GLORION is inexpensive despite its many extra features because it contains no inert "make-weight" fillers!

New Campus-Type Home for Aged Is Proposed

This is a perspective by Architects Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum, in association with Architect W. P. Manske, of campus type home for aged proposed to be built by the Evangelical & Reformed Church at 5200 South Broadway. It would be called Good Samaritan Home for the Aged, the same as one now located at 4500 Washington avenue.

expensive than other types of chemical fertilizers.

Check Grass Trouble.

Insecticides like Malathion have proved their worth in previous seasons, but this year there is special interest in new fungicides. All sorts of diseases that attack lawn grasses can be controlled by a complicated chemical compound developed at the Rhode Island agricultural experiment station.

This new spray will even check curvularia, the disease that has damaged stands of Merion blue grass in this area. Another chemical, which has been tested extensively in St. Louis greenhouses, will control damping off in the soil and will also keep cuttings from rotting. A small quantity, added to water in a sprinkler can and poured over the soil in a flower pot or flat, will effectively sterilize the soil.

Well, gardeners, so much for the weather, the season, and the tools. I'll not warn you about blisters, backaches and sunburn. It wouldn't do any good, if I did, for they are hardy perennials, too. They're simply the price we pay for enthusiasm, and it's not a bad bargain at that.

Architects Open Office Downtown

Burks & Landberg, architects, report opening of offices at 705 Chestnut street, in the Missouri Insurance, formerly Wainwright Building. Both partners, Verner I. Burks and Kurt Landberg, formerly were associated with other St. Louis architectural firms and are graduates of Washington University. Landberg, a graduate of the University of Minnesota, received his master's degree at Washington University and is presently an instructor in the School of Architecture here. Burks previously attended the University of Arkansas.

The Wainwright Building was cited in "Art News" last month and is perhaps St. Louis's most significant architectural landmark. Designed by Louis Sullivan, whose "form follows function" statement has become a guiding principal of contemporary architecture, the building was one of the first architects for the newly opened "skyscrapers" erected in the United States.

Burks & Landberg were the offices of the Portland Cement Association and the new Dupo State Savings Bank nearing completion in Dupo, Illinois.

Samaritan Home Plan Is Prepared

Architects Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum in association with W. P. Manske have brought to final design stage plans for the first unit of new campus-type development for the Good Samaritan Home for the Aged on a six-acre tract at 5200 South Broadway on a bluff overlooking the Mississippi river. Present location of the home, which is affiliated with the Evangelical and Reformed Church, is at 4500 Washington avenue.

The first new building is intended to provide accommodation for 150 residents and will represent a 50 per cent increase over present capacity. When the campus plan is complete, it is expected capacity may be increased to 400.

The move to new and larger facilities is in response to "a desperate need," it was stated by the Rev. Hermann Koenig, director of the Good Samaritan Home, which will observe its 100th anniversary next fall.

An investment of approximately $1,000,000 will be required for the first stage of the campus plan, according to Herman Gieselmann, president of the Good Samaritan board of trustees, who stated that a campaign would soon be launched to supplement funds presently available.

The large wooded campus site rises from Broadway and then slopes toward the river, so that the main building entrance will be on the second of four stories. A small one-story wing at the entrance will house administrative offices, and the rest of the entrance floor will be occupied by a lobby, living room, dining room, kitchen facilities, a large recreation and hobby area, and a small chapel.

The lower floor and the two upper stories will contain private residence accommodations. Most of these will be single rooms of approximately 10 by 15 feet. There will be 10 double rooms measuring 15 by 15 feet. The rooms will each have a private lavatory and two rooms will share a toilet. Each floor will have its own lounge area, sun room, sewing room and small "snack" kitchen.

One end of the upper floor will be equipped as a hospital wing, with complete medical and dental facilities for 25 bed-patients.

Construction will be fire-proof throughout.

Spring Comes, But Who Knows Exactly When?

ing," mowing, cutting weeds, aerating, and mulching.

For example, a two and one-quarter horsepower unit may be used with a cultivator, 21-inch reel mower, 20-inch rotary mower, 16-inch tiller, lawn edger, snow plow, spreader, or even a tractor. A somewhat larger two and three-quarter-horsepower engine has a reverse gear and a dozen different tools "which may be attached in 30 seconds without even a wrench," including various cultivators, a large rotary mower, sulky seat, and a "dump barrow" that holds three and one-half cubic feet and dumps automatically.

Several Speeded.

For larger gardens there are powerful little riding tractors that operate a complete line of equipment, including automatic sprayers, power saws, post-hole diggers, and even snow blowers. Some of these sturdy machines have several speeds forward and at least two reverse. They may even have a power hoist.

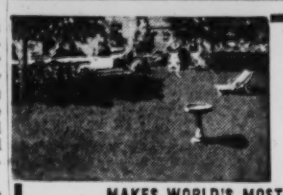

The trend toward "chemaids" also increases in importance. Indeed, new fertilizers, sprays, soil conditioners, herbicides and plastics have brought more changes to gardening practices in the single postwar decade than were achieved in several preceding centuries.

Each year we are offered more all-organic fertilizers that supply substantial quantities of humus. Special formulated "plant foods" contain essential "micronutrients," and may be used as supplementary feedings for flowers, shrubs, and grass, too, for that matter.

"Double action" liquid fertilizers may be applied in solutions that feed both leaves and roots. These liquid feedings, which give plants a quick lift, may be easily applied through the garden hose with a mixer placed between the faucet and the hose nozzle.

In contrast with liquid fertilizers, which are effective for only a short time, we may now get a new type of long-lasting fertilizer that will continue to feed plants over a period of at least four months. This high nitrate will not burn plants, but continues to feed them through the season. Especially recommended for lawns, it is also very effective with flowers and ornamentals. At present it is more

Grows best and stays a rich green in hottest, driest weather when other grasses wither and burn out. Planted as plugs, spreads to cover completely, driving out crabgrass, weeds and old lawn grass. Spreads rapidly in bare ground, more slowly in an old lawn. Loses color after heavy frost, regains it in the Spring. A genuine Meyer Z-52 Zoysia lawn is permanent, it will never require renewal, will need much less mowing and upkeep. Requires sunlight, will not grow in dense shade.

Air-Conditioned Colonial Home Purchased

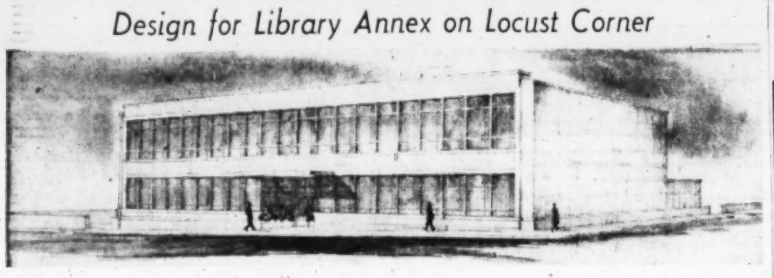

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Gardner Jr. (he's secretary of the Gardner Advertising Co.) have purchased from Mr. and Mrs. W. Earl Manning Jr. this air-conditioned colonial styled home at 28 Oakleigh Lane, Ladue, in a transaction negotiated by Ralph F. Piper, Inc. The property consists of one and one-half acres of landscaped grounds, with the house that has usual living quarters, a library, powder room, maid's room and bath on first floor; four bedrooms and two baths on second floor.

Chemical Company Buys Vandeventer Property

This property, fronting 138 feet on the east side of Vandeventer avenue opposite the east-bound exit of the Red Feather Highway, has been purchased by the Hudson Chemical Co. for expansion of its power spray and agricultural divisions here. The property has a one-story brick building that has been used by a printing firm the last 15 years. Vacant ground at the corner in the tract is leased by the Manchester Bank for a large sign. The transaction was negotiated by the Albright Realty Co. and the Dolan Co.

Design for Library Annex on Locust Corner

This is a sketch from Architect Joseph H. Senne of annex to the public library to be built this year at the southeast corner of Seventeenth and Locust streets.

Named Chairman

Joseph A. Hall, St. Louis district sales manager for Mercury Division of Ford Motor Co., has been elected chairman of the company's local Community relations committee. He succeeds Harry M. Lidgard, district sales manager for Ford Division, who has served as chairman last year.

The committee is composed of management from the two district sales offices and Mercury division's St. Louis assembly plant in Hazelwood. Its work involves the consideration of requests for company contributions, planning of company activities involving public attendance, and participation in various civic projects. It also serves as a liaison between the St. Louis offices and company headquarters in Dearborn, Mich.

Builders Off To a Better Start--Dodge

BOSTON — New contract award information overing the first two months of 1956 indicates that the construction industry got off to a much better start this year than most analysts expected, and official of F. W. Dodge Corporation reports.

Addressing the Boston chapter of the Producers' Council, Inc., at the Engineers' Club here, Dr. George Cline Smith, vice president and economist of the Dodge organization, said that the most striking feature of the current upsurge in construction was the strength of industrial, utility and public works contracts. But he also called attention to an upturn in residential contracts, "which because of its generally unexpected nature, is probably the most significant aspect."

House Awards Up.

"Almost everyone," Dr. Smith said, "expected the housing downturn which began late in 1955 to continue for several more months at least. But residential contract awards in the first two months of this year, as compiled from Dodge reports in the 37 eastern states, actually ran six per cent ahead of the same period last year. The total of 1.5 billion dollars of residential awards was a new record for any January-February period.

"It is true that the number of housing units involved was slightly below the same period a year ago. However, the difference, especially in February, was so slight as to indicate that the decline had leveled off. And it is important to remember that houses are increasing in size, in equipment and in cost, so that the dollar volume of residential awards has been increasing substantially in spite of the small drop in number of units.

Public Works Up.

"Non-residential building contracts for the two months ran 17 per cent ahead of the same period last year. However, there were some widely divergent trends within the category. Sharpest increase was recorded in contracts for industrial buildings, up 66 per cent above last year. Contracts for schools overcame the relative lethargy which prevailed last year, and rose by 26 per cent. And commercial building contracts continued their long-term rise by going up another 15 per cent. All other classes of non-residential building fell below last year's levels, but these classes together make up a relatively small part of the total.

"In the heavy engineering category, public works contracts were 64 per cent ahead of last year, and public utility contracts rose by a phenomenal 84 per cent.

"One theme that runs through the figures is the strength of business investment, which shows up in the industrial, commercial and utility figures. This, it seems to me, indicates a high degree of confidence that today's record levels of production and sales are not a peak, but merely a step toward higher levels ahead."

Hellmich Opening Brinwood

Brinwood, a 60-acre subdivision in the new residential section of Florissant, being developed by Walter F. Hellmich, Inc., is to be opened formally today.

Brinwood was named after a guest ranch in Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado. Many of the streets are named after towns in the vicinity of the ranch such as Aspen, Boulder, Estes, Greely, and Loveland Drives.

Brinwood has sanitary sewers, storm sewers, concrete streets, sidewalks and gas. Lots have a a minimum width of 65 feet and a minimum area of 7500 square feet. All lots are landscaped and have concrete drives.

A new public school is being erected two blocks from the subdivision and a new parochial school is under construction within two blocks. A large shopping center is being planned nearby, with several leases already signed. Transportation is one block away and arrangements are being made to have transportation into the subdivision.

The first group of houses is nearing completion. They have full basements, three bedrooms, living room, dining room and tiled kitchen and bath. Some have attached garages and breezeways. The total livable area of this house is 960 square feet of floor space.

The next group of houses to be started will include a larger house, containing 1040 square feet of floor space, a bath and a half, and a built-in kitchen with the latest built-in stove and oven.

The display house is at 1060 Mullanphy road and can be reached by taking Highway 140 off Highway 66 (Lindbergh) at the Mercury plant. Go North almost two miles to Patterson Road, left on Patterson road three blocks to Mullanphy road, left on Mullanphy road one-half mile to Brinwood.

Shaw, Brichler & Coleman, Inc., are sales agents.

Packard's Predictor Model Here

St. Louis is one of the few cities in the country where the Studebaker-Packard Corporation is displaying its new Predictor, which was a feature of the Chicago Automobile Show. One of the unusual features of this model is a sliding roof panel which silently and automatically rolls back for easy exit and entrance when the doors are opened. The panel also can be opened for ventilation when the doors are closed. The display opened yesterday and will continue through tomorrow.

Packard Telecast

Eighty-seven Packard dealers and representatives in the St. Louis, Illinois and parts of Indiana, witnessed a general sales meeting on a closed circuit telecast at the Chase Hotel last Tuesday.

Highlight of the meeting was a review of the corporation's progress toward the integration of Packard and Studebaker and the economies that have resulted. The meeting was one of the most successful factory-dealer meeting ever held in the St. Louis zone, according to N. E. Maehler, local zone manager.

Gas-Turbine Car To Stop Here on National Cruise

SCOUTS TO USHER AT SUNRISE SERVICE

'Good Turn' Will Repay Church Federation for Supplying Chaplains.

A large group of Scouts and leaders of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council will serve as ushers next Sunday for the Easter Sunrise Service at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park.

The ushering will be done as a "good turn" for the Metropolitan Church Federation which provides chaplains for summer camps operated by the council.

FLOWERS FOR THE JEWEL BOX

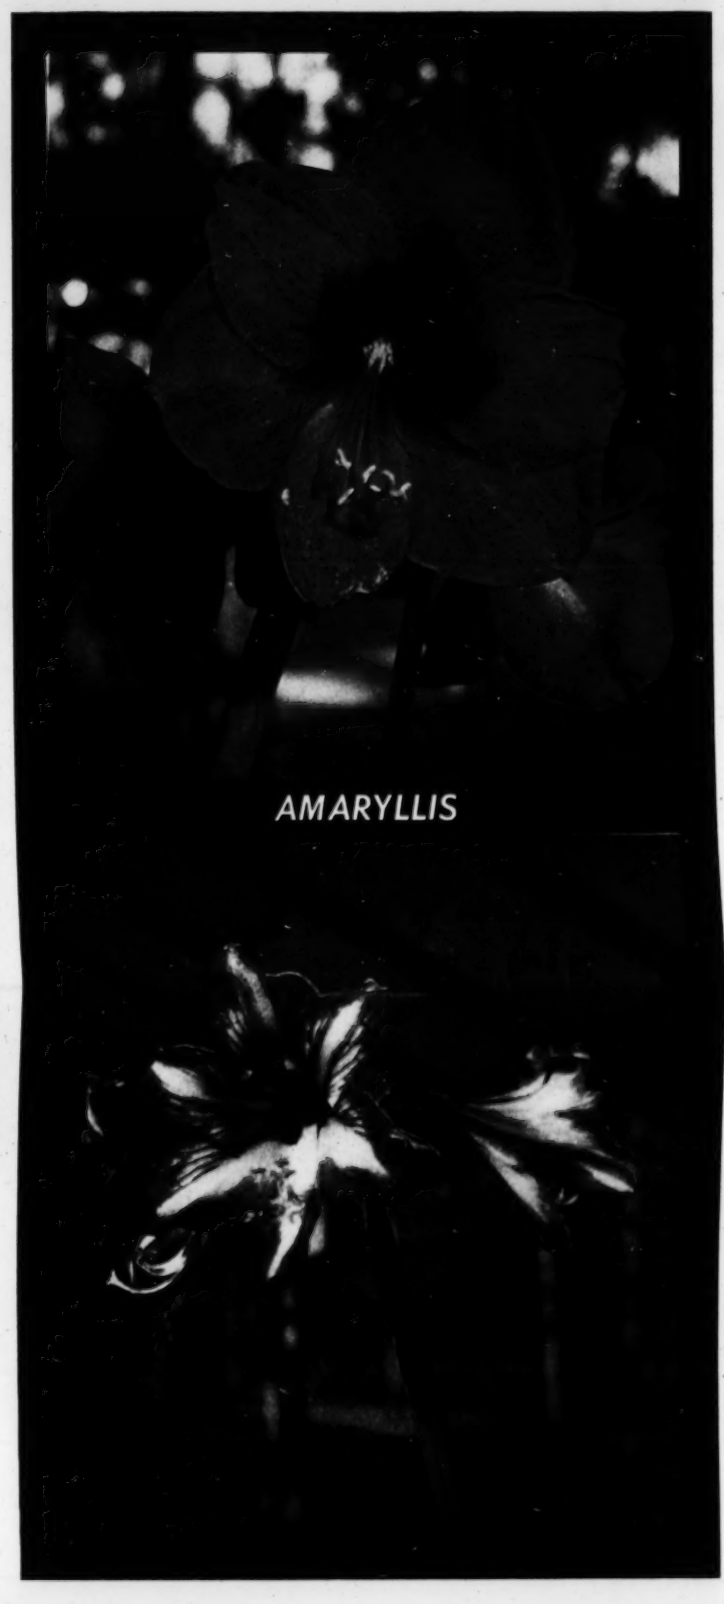

Grown in the City's Greenhouses, They Will Play a Part in the Annual Easter Display Which Opens Today at the Conservatory in Forest Park

AZALEA

CALLA LILY

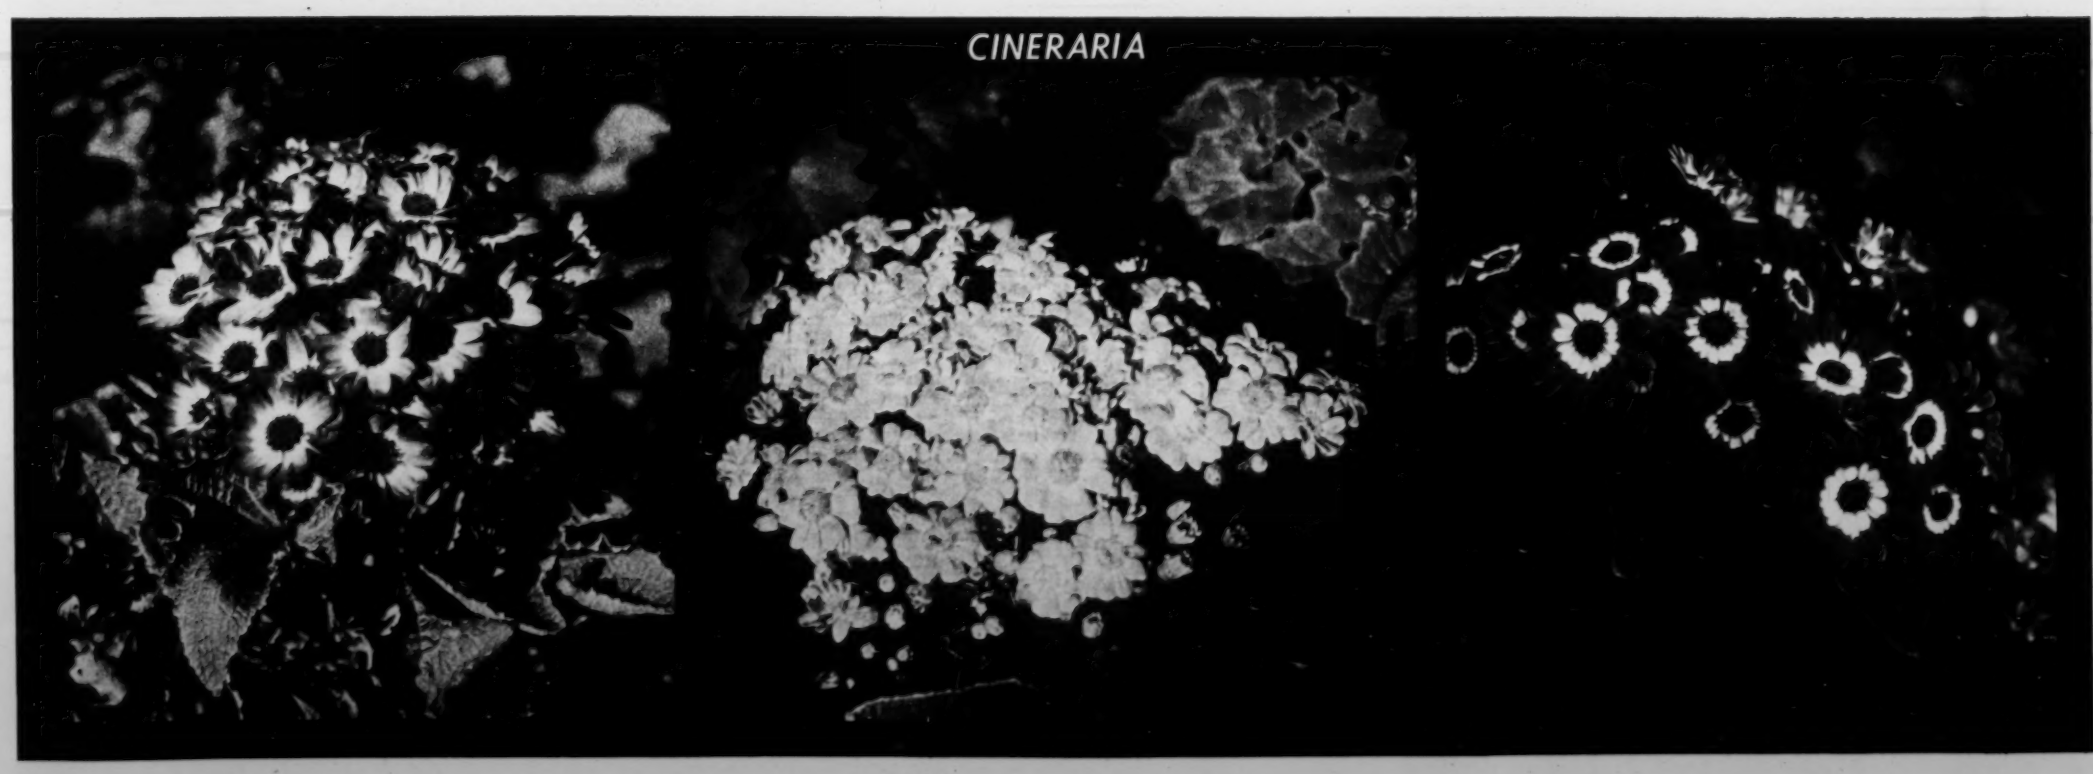

AMARYLLIS

THESE FLOWERS ARE AMONG the many varieties included in the annual Easter display which opens today at the Jewel Box in Forest Park. More than 15,000 individual plants—1000 of them Easter lilies—make up the superb exhibit in the city's unique glass conservatory, where new shows are presented each month from November to May. The flowers are grown in the municipal greenhouses in the park, and the displays are arranged by gardeners under the direction of City Floriculturist Henry Ochs.

A cross of massed climbing roses set in a field of white hydrangeas and blue ageratum is the focal point of this year's Easter show. Soft strains of recorded Easter music and the scent of Easter lilies and cinerarias will fill the big glass building. The fragrant cinerarias are better known as calico plants because, like the material designs, no two are exactly alike. The display will continue for two weeks, open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

Ed Wilkinson's bass horn supplied big, round foundation tones, was used for solo once. He teaches music in schools at House Springs, Missouri. String bass and horn are both acceptable in Dixieland.

It's the Dixieland anthem "When the Saints Go Marching In" and the trumpet, left, with its carrying power, "leads" on the melody while the clarinet mixes sustained notes and dancing arpeggios in high register. Pianist plays underlying chords.

The trumpeter, Bill Mason, explained he also plays modern jazz. Clarinetist Norman Mason reminisced of days on riverboats when he played here with such transplanted New Orleans jazzmen as Drummer Baby Dodds, Bassist Pops Foster.

JAZZ IN THE CLASSROOM

Washington U. Night Session Savors Subtleties of Dixieland, New Orleans Styles

Pete Patterson dusted off his banjo for the engagement. It came in handy percussively, especially after the drummer failed to show up. Patterson once played guitar with Dewey Jackson Band and others on riverboats.

Clark Mitze, standing, member of the Washington University music faculty who is conducting the jazz course, talks to class while musicians rest. Mitze encourages class members to express views, ask questions, bring favorite phonograph records from home. Not all members of class are shown in this view. The band had never played together as a unit before, huddled occasionally to decide what key to play in.

The pianist, Gus Perryman, reviews highlights of his 38 years in jazz. As "boy piano wonder" in his native Hattiesburg, Mississippi, he sat in with the Kid Ory and Sam Morgan bands when they came up from New Orleans.

Bill Haislip's trombone solos always drew applause. "Tailgate" trombone is Dixieland jargon dating back to New Orleans when trombonists, for the safety of horn and other players, pointed their slides off the back ends of parade wagons. In ensemble playing trombone unfolds bass harmonic under trumpet lead. Haislip has expressive burr tone, style that reflects influence of Jack Teagarden and Turk Murphy.

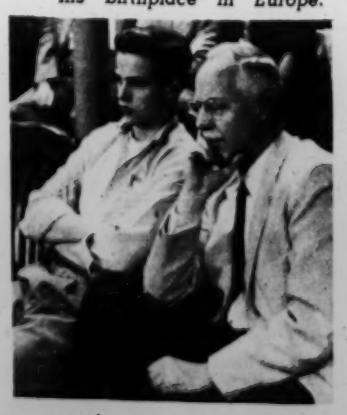

Dixieland has them in its grip (photos above, below). People from various walks of life are taking the course, all with interest in jazz as a common denominator. One man first developed his keen interest in American jazz in his birthplace in Europe.

By CHARLES MENEES of the PICTURES Staff

STRUTTING BRASS BANDS played funeral and picnic parades by day and dances at night when jazz spawned in New Orleans 50 years or so ago. These Negro bands had a traditional instrumentation—one or two cornets, clarinet, trombone, guitar, bass and drums—which set a polyphonic sound pattern for the jazz of years to come. The contagion of their music was caught by white bands and one of them, the Original Dixieland Jazz Band, made the first jazz recordings—in New York in 1917. Dixieland eventually became the public's pet name for this type of ensemble jazz. But serious students of jazz, meanwhile, have kept busy boning up on the subtle differences between the original New Orleans jazz and its hybrid, Dixieland.

These differences—and similarities—came up for analysis at the most recent class of a course in jazz being offered at Washington University. An expert in the class was quick to point out that both are characterized by improvised counterpoint interspersed with solos; that Dixieland has a stronger level of tension, while the New Orleans style has a more relaxed and easy rock about it. On the latter point there was agreement from the clarinetist of a band of St. Louis musicians gathered together for purposes of demonstration. Old enough to have bridged both styles, he played "Careless Love" first relaxed, then taut. The pianist testified he had played jazz for a long time without knowing there was a difference.

The course began with a session devoted to ragtime piano, recalling the pre-World War I era when St. Louis was known as the ragtime piano capital of the world. Charley Thompson, who won the Missouri ragtime championship in 1916, explained the ragtime style and played his own well-known composition "Lily Rag." When Negro blues was the subject, another veteran jazz musician living here, Rufus Perryman, who recorded under the name Speckled Red, came before an audience once more to play piano and sing.

Subjects to be taken up at future classes include swing music, the jazz of Duke Ellington and contemporary jazz. The noncredit course is open to the public. Classes will be held at 8 p.m. each Wednesday for five more weeks in the annex of Blewett Hall, 6500 Forsyth boulevard.

FINAL OLYMPIC SOCCER TRYOUT

Four St. Louisans Picked on Squad for International Games at Melbourne

Wecke (3), West team's right fullback, blocks shot by Al Zerhusen (10), East's center forward. Partly hidden by ball is St. Louis' John Traina, who played outstanding game at right halfback and who was chosen an alternate. At right are Keough (white shirt) and Siegbert Wirth of Syracuse. Zerhusen and Wirth will join Wecke and Keough on the Olympic squad.

West's Goalie Svend Engedal (in cap) deflects ball headed by Buchanan Waid, East's inside left. Ball sailed over goal. Behind goalie is Wecke, a unanimous choice for the Olympic squad. Waid, a Dartmouth College student, was named an alternate; Engedal, from Los Angeles, was picked as the Olympic team goal tender over four other candidates.

East defenders in dark jerseys break up play by white-shirted West forward in front of goal. Players are, from left: Goalie Ronald Coder of Conshohocken, Pennsylvania; John Carden, San Francisco; Bill Conterio, Chicago; Ed Murphy, Chicago, and Al Marina, New York. The last three were picked for squad; other two were chosen alternates. Some players from western cities played on the East squad because they were on the Armed Forces' All-Star team that engaged in preliminary trials which were held in the East.

THIRTY-FOUR OF THIS COUNTRY'S top amateur soccer players battled for places on the United States Olympic soccer squad in a hard-fought game here last Sunday. With the participants divided into teams from the East and West, the game ended in a 1-1 deadlock, but this outcome was unimportant. Individual performances were what counted, for the contest actually was the final tryout for the Olympic squad.

Having survived a long series of eliminations that started last November, the players represented the cream of the nation's amateur soccer crop—some 3000 in all. Keenness of competition for the coveted Olympic berths was apparent in their rugged yet polished play. Most interested spectators at the exhibition, held at Public Schools Stadium, were the 10 members of the Olympic soccer committee. Theirs was the difficult job of choosing the 15 men to go to Melbourne, Australia, in November. They also selected nine alternates who will replace squad members unable to make the trip.

St. Louis and New York maintained their reputations as the country's leading soccer centers by placing four men each on the squad. Chicago placed three, and the other four spots were filled by players from Los Angeles, Syracuse, Cincinnati and Penn State University. The four St. Louisans—Backs Harry Keough and Herman Wecke, and Forwards Bill Looby and Ruben Mendoza, all teammates on the local Kutis team—are veterans of international competition. Keough and Mendoza were on the 1952 Olympic team; Wecke and Looby have been in world cup play.

The soccer committee feels that this squad will be one of the strongest ever to represent the United States in the Olympic Games. Some of the reasons for the committee's optimism are evident in these photos made during the final tryout game. Eleven of the 15 Olympic squad members are shown in action. Not included are Mendoza, Lloyd Monsen of New York, Dick Packer of Penn State, and Zenon Snylyk of Chicago.

Looby, West center forward, gets away shot after slipping past Marina, East left back. Shot was blocked by goalie. Best known to St. Louis fans as an inside right, Looby shifted to center during second half.

Marina and Hommo Zylker collide as Marina kicks away pass intended for the West player. Chasing loose ball are East's George Dorian (center) and Rolf Decker, both of New York; both were put on the Olympic team. Zylker, from San Francisco, is an alternate.

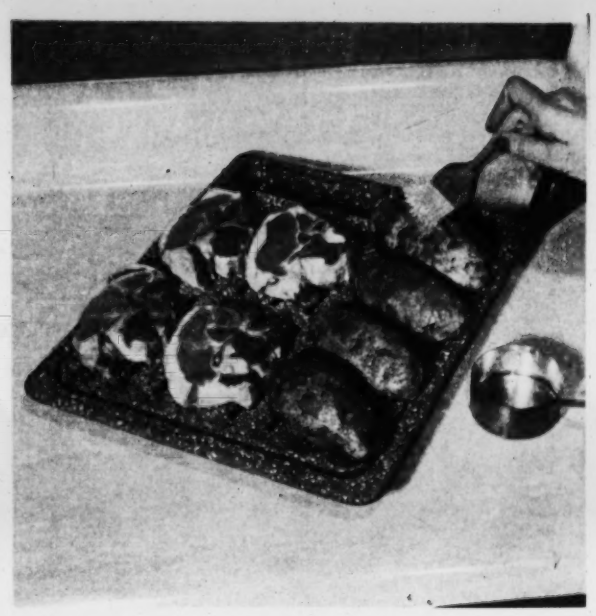

Zerhusen (left) and Keough jockey for position as they race for ball near West goal. Following them is Tom Lillie of Los Angeles, West left fullback, who was chosen as an alternate.

By MERNA LAZIER

A COMPLETE DINNER that can be cooked in the oven all at once is a boon to the housewife on unusually busy days, and to the career woman. Mrs. Mary Louise Bohn, home economics director of Laclede Gas Company, prepares the full menu for this oven dinner in just a few minutes, then has an hour and a half for other things while it bakes.

Pork chops are arranged on a rack in shallow baking pan (the broiler rack is perfect), then seasoned with salt and pepper. Well-scrubbed potatoes are pricked lightly to release steam, then are brushed with melted butter and placed on same rack. Pan is slid into lowest part of oven. Each apple is cored and a small strip of peel removed from around the cavity, which is filled with sugar, cinnamon and bits of butter. Apples are placed in baking dish, which contains one-fourth inch of water. Beans with water added are seasoned with salt, sugar, pepper and butter, then dish is covered and placed in oven along with apples on rack above chops. After one hour of baking at 325 degrees, the chops are covered with the bread dressing, apples are filled with mincemeat and all are cooked one-half hour longer. Chops garnished with parsley are arranged on platter, but vegetables and apples may be served from baking dishes if desired. Celery, radishes and carrot strips may be served with this meal.

INGREDIENTS

Four pork chops (center cut preferred) cut two to the pound
One cup prepared (packaged) dressing
Four medium baking potatoes
Four medium-large apples
Sugar, cinnamon and butter as needed to fill cavities
One-fourth cup mincemeat
One 12-ounce package frozen string beans
One-half teaspoon sugar
One teaspoon salt or to taste
Sprinkling of pepper
Two tablespoons butter or bacon drippings
One-fourth cup water

4. Dressing is placed on chops after one hour of baking, and mincemeat is spooned into apple centers. Baking is continued a half-hour longer.

5. Chops are arranged in long dish with vegetables and apples served on the side. A sour cream dressing provides a garnish for the beans. Relishes and coffee are good accompaniments.

CHIMP AT LARGE

New York Night Club Fugitive in Rooftop Chase

At height of what might be described as a Mack Sennett version of a "King Kong" movie, a chimpanzee named Mike scampers along the roof of an eight-story building on Manhattan's lower East Side. For four hours the runaway chimp led police and volunteers on a chase across rooftops and in and out of buildings of the Tompkins Square area. Previously, Mike had been let out of its cage in the apartment of a night club entertainer who had imported the animal from a Detroit zoo to use in his act. Jumping from a window of the third-floor apartment, Mike grabbed a clothesline which snapped under his weight of 90 pounds. He fell to the ground, unhurt, and the chase was on.

Mike jabs at a net-bearing park department employe, who was trying to get to the chimp by stepladder. Another poke knocked the man to roof below. The night club entertainer had decided to ship the five-foot chimp back to Detroit because the animal was larger than he expected.
International News Photo

The chimp climbs one of several television lead-in antenna wires he found useful for his Tarzan-like escapades. One of Mike's unannounced visits was to a tavern. As he ran in the front door and out the back, some patrons at the bar blinked in disbelief.
Associated Press Photos except as noted

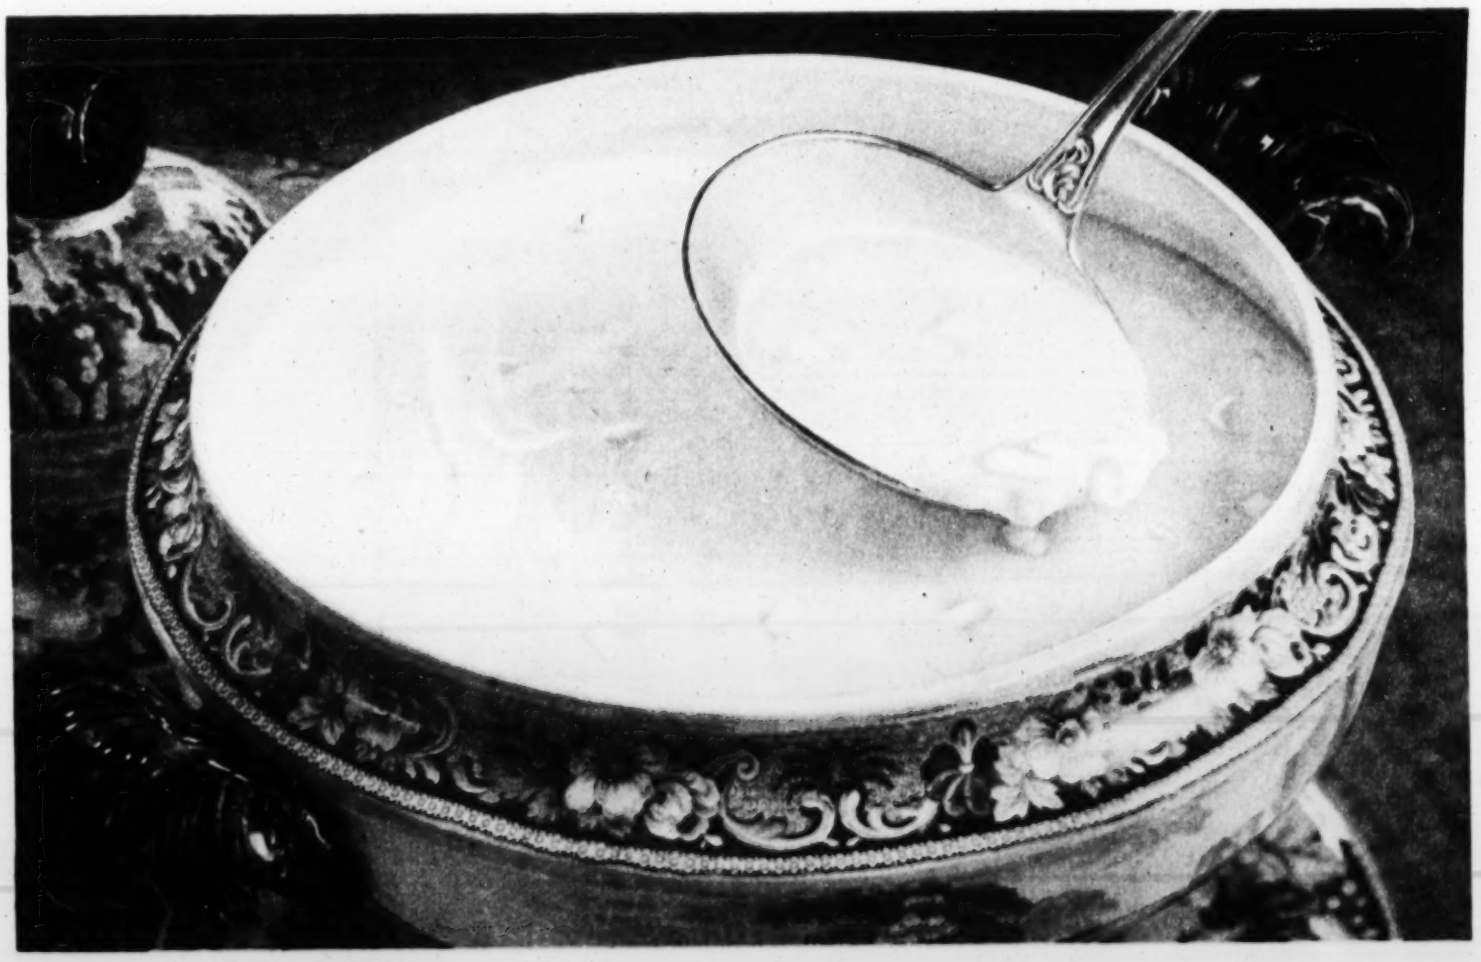

A photographer is getting too close, so Mike poises for a leap from a roof corner to a fire escape. In the ever-growing entourage that pursued the chimp were 10 photographers and six reporters.

His monkeyshines over, Mike gazes sadly through the bars of a cage. His freedom ended when he was cornered on the top-floor stairway of a seven-story loft building.

YOU WOULDN'T EXPECT finer Cream of Potato Soup anywhere in Paris, yet it's yours, anytime, right at home. It's Campbell's... IT'S FROZEN!

WHY IT'S FROZEN:

Maybe you're asking, as lots of people have, why Campbell's chefs are only now able to bring you a soup as elegant as this Cream of Potato.

And you're probably wondering why you find this superb soup experience in your grocer's freezer instead of on the shelf.

The reasons, of course, are one and the same. Campbell's chefs have long been able to blend such a superb soup as this. But to bring it to you was something else again.

The problem was to keep all the flavor and goodness until you are ready to use it. Only by the quick-frozen method was this possible. It took freezing to bring you this soup with all that fabulous flavor intact.

Now, for the first time, famous French chefs can take a back seat to you! You can put on your table (with such convenience, too) a Cream of Potato Soup into which is crammed generations of European cooking lore.

In your grocer's freezer today, along with three other soups of a kind and flavor so special you never expected to taste their like in prepared form.

MOP-UP IN TOMB OF THE HAPSBURGS

Amid ornate caskets containing the remains of long dead Hapsburg royalty, Capuchin monks in their black peaked cowls mop up water that has seeped into the underground crypt in Vienna. The family tomb is beneath the Church of the Capuchins, built in 1619 by Emperor Matthias, the first Hapsburg buried there. Almost all that is left of the family that once ruled much of Europe lies in the crypt. Among the 141 caskets of copper, pewter and lead are those of 12 emperors and 15 empresses, including Maria Teresa, who died in 1780; Marie Louise, Napoleon's second wife; and Maximilian of Mexico. Last emperor entombed there was Franz Joseph, who died in 1916.

NAVY'S NEW, POWERFUL WEAPONS

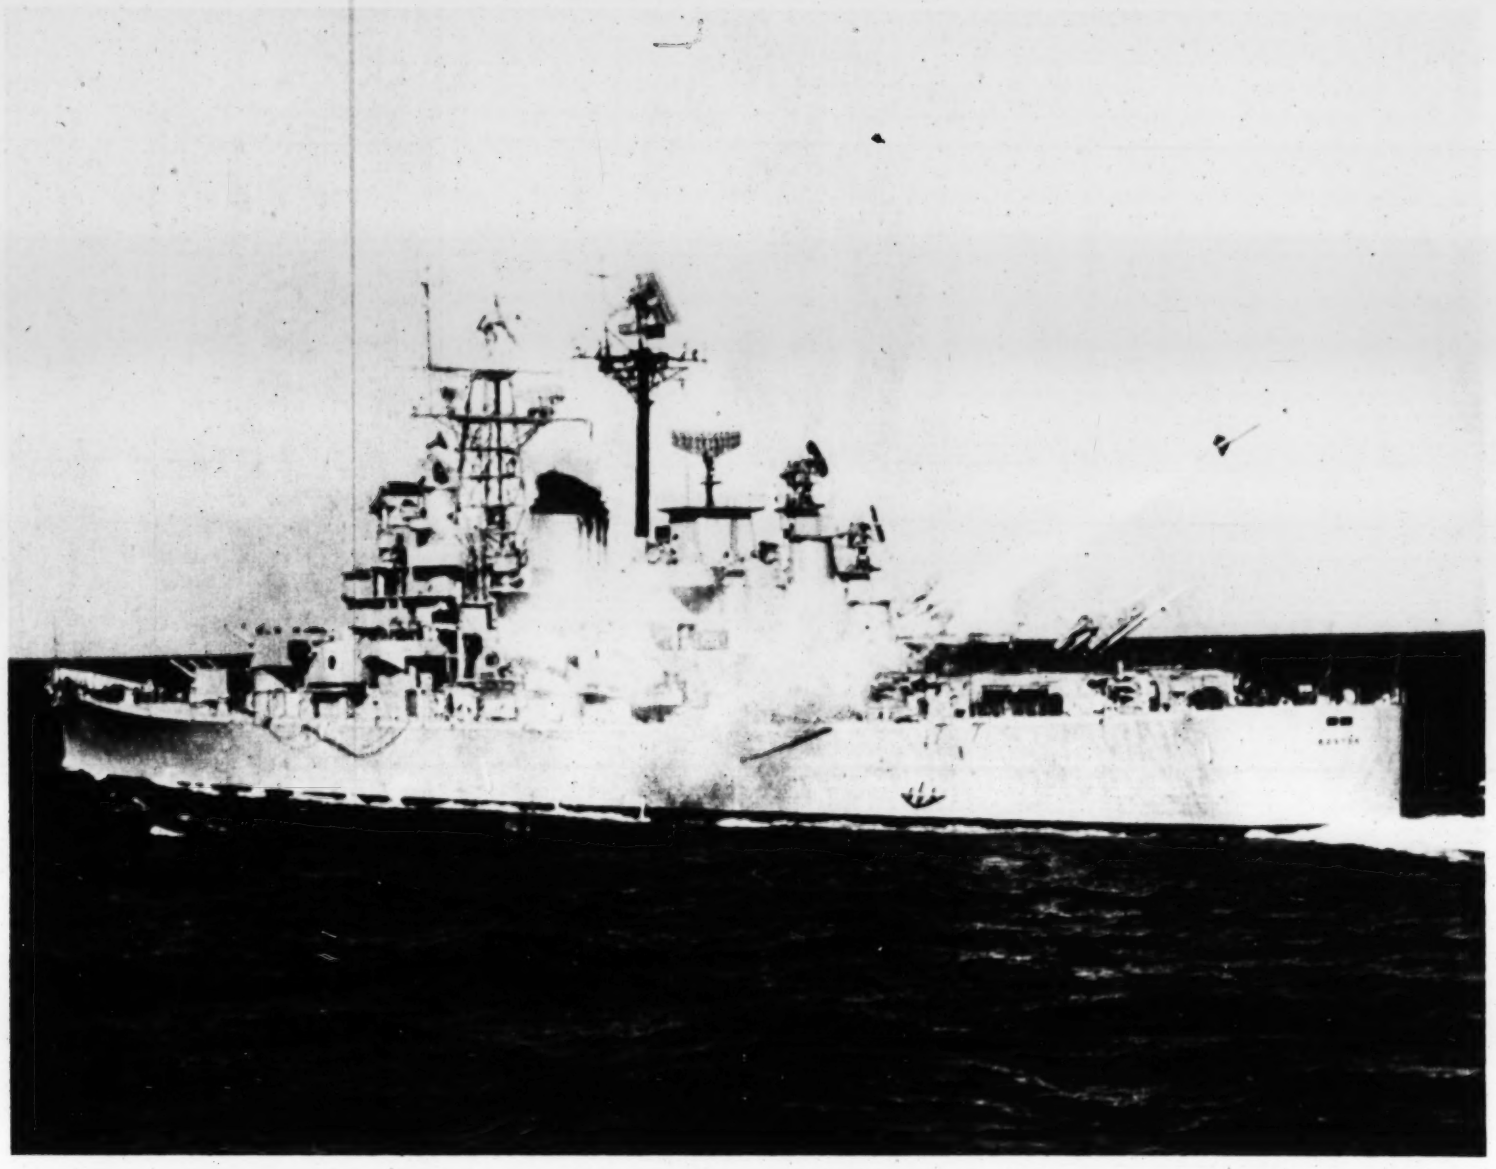

Guided-Missile Cruiser Boston, Carrier Forrestal Seen at Work

Two guided missiles, called Terriers, rise from ammunition locker and are automatically loaded on launching rack on the U.S.S. Boston, the Navy's first guided-missile cruiser. Demonstration of the rocket missiles, the Navy's newest antiaircraft weapons, took place off Guantanamo, Cuba.

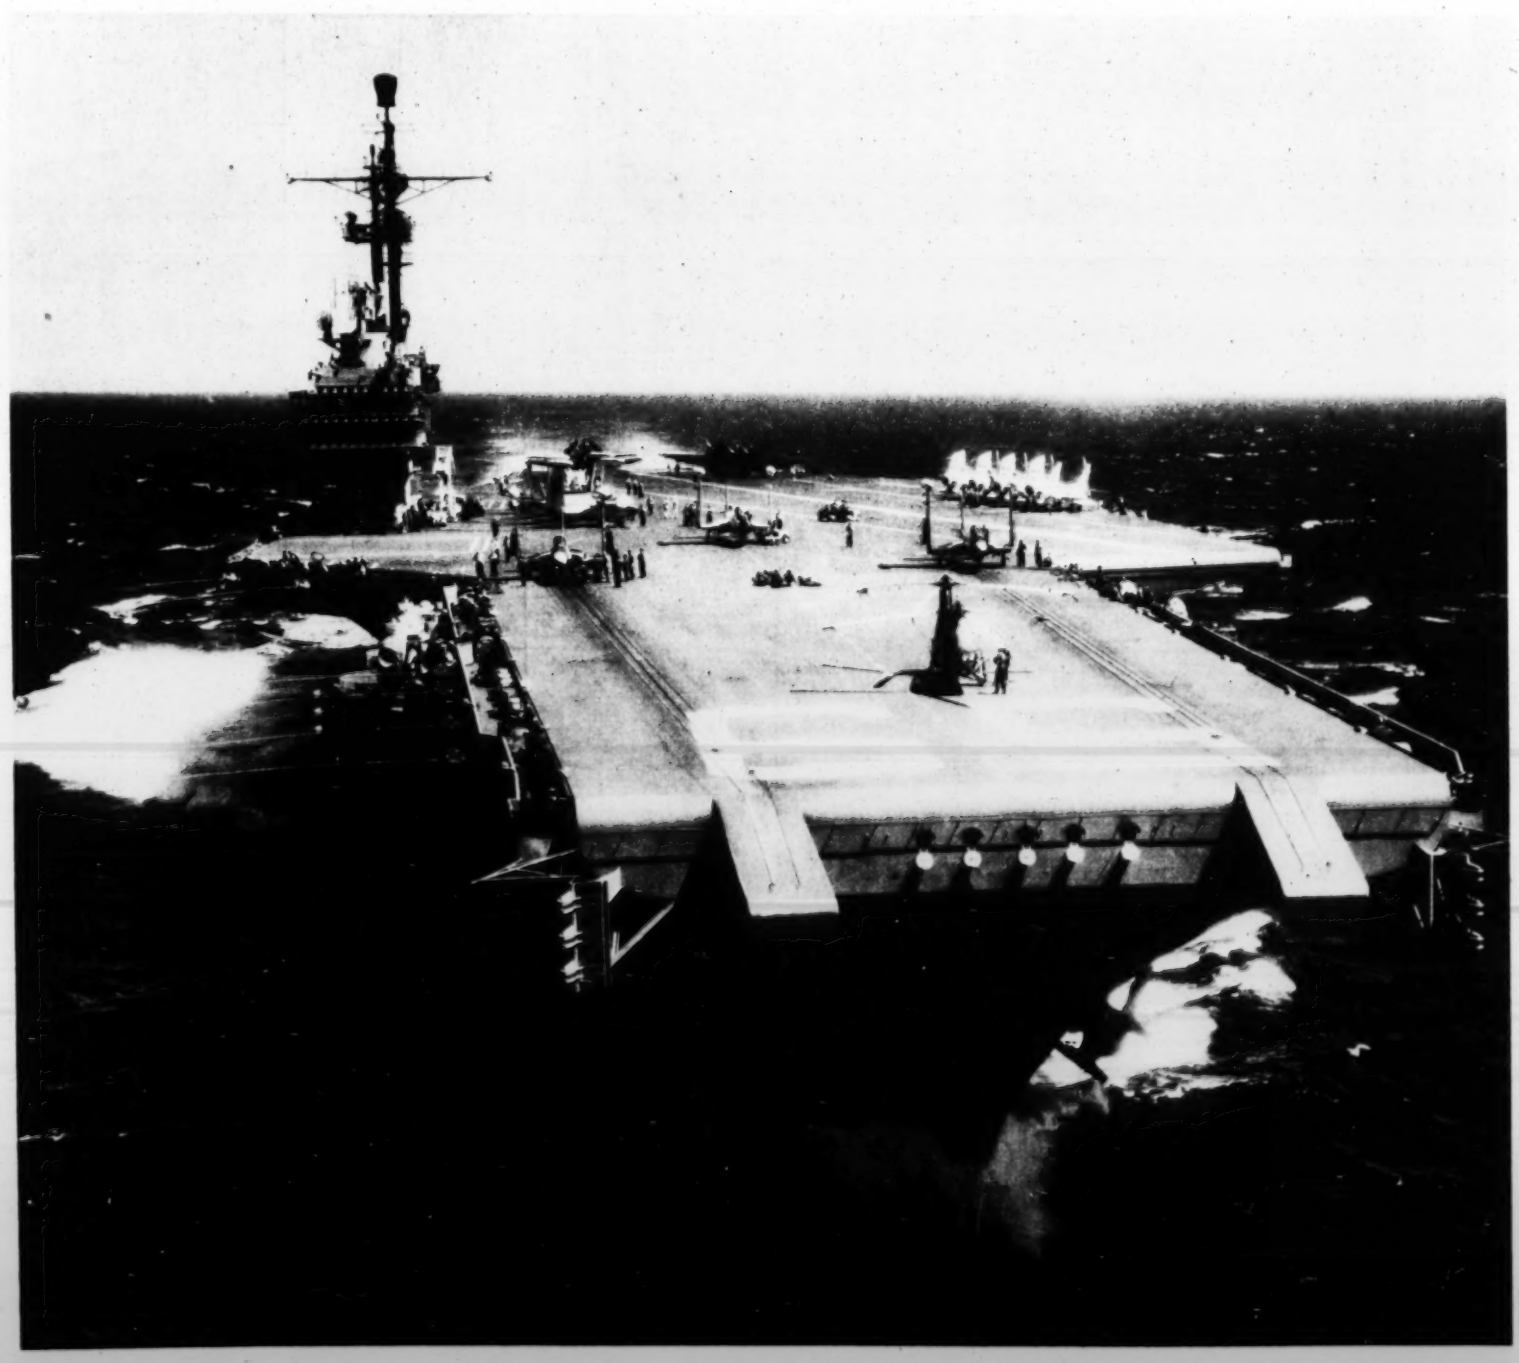

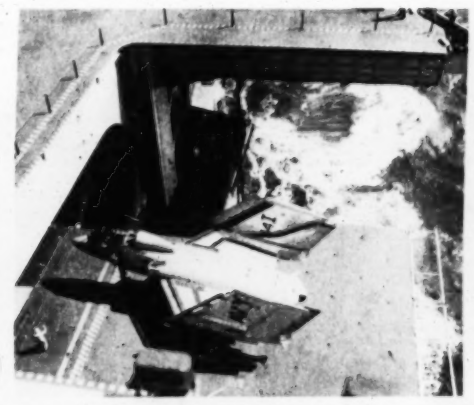

The twin two-section rockets are in position for firing. The launcher, dubbed the "coke machine" because it is completely automatic, can be trained in any direction. Rear section of rocket is booster that drops off after pushing the missile to a speed of 1500 miles an hour in two seconds.

Trailing smoke and flame, Terrier heads toward a drone target plane flying 300 miles an hour at an altitude of 15,000 feet some six miles away. The missile, maintaining its supersonic speed, rides a ship-to-target radar beam and automatically explodes when it comes within destroying distance. The plane was downed in seconds. The U.S.S. Boston carries two launchers, each of which can fire two rockets singly or simultaneously. Navy already is working on more advanced guided missiles than the Terrier—the Tartar, which carries its own radar, and the Talos, a long-range rocket that would replace interceptor aircraft in some tasks.

An F7U Cutlass fighter-bomber, the tips of its delta wings folded to conserve space, is rolled from massive hangar deck onto elevator to be raised to flight deck for take-off. The elevator becomes part of flight deck's aft section when raised; foam-covered sea is visible far below.

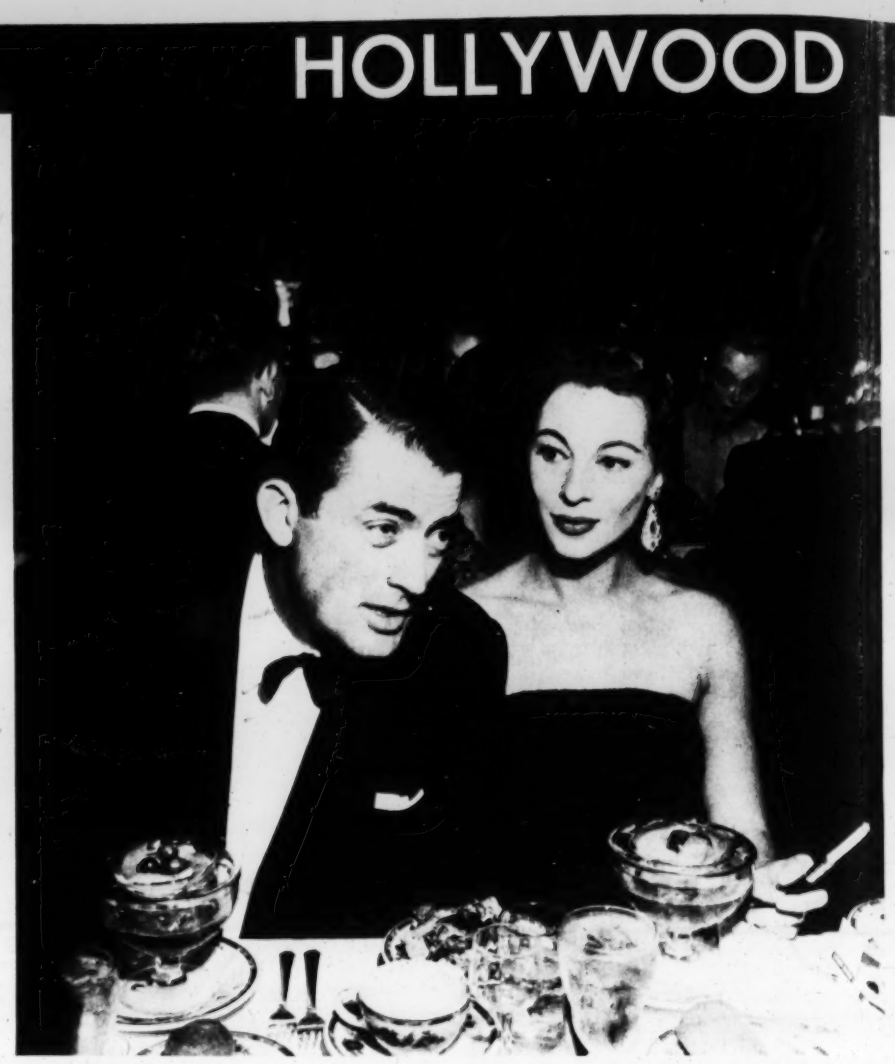

Its vast flight deck laden with several types of planes, the supercarrier Forrestal, largest warship in the world, knifes through the Caribbean Sea off Cuba on a shakedown cruise. The 60,000-ton carrier is 1036 feet long, 252 feet wide at its widest point, and its "island" superstructure (left) towers to the height of a 10-story building above the waterline. The four-acre angled flight deck contains four steam-powered launching catapults, is larger than the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary side by side. The vessel carries a crew of 3500 and 80 planes, including jet-powered Cougars, Cutlasses, Furies and St. Louis-made Banshees, helicopters and some propeller-driven planes. Started in 1951, the $200,000,000 carrier was launched in December, 1954, after being christened by the widow of James V. Forrestal, first Secretary of Defense, for whom the ship was named.

AIR ACADEMY DESIGNS

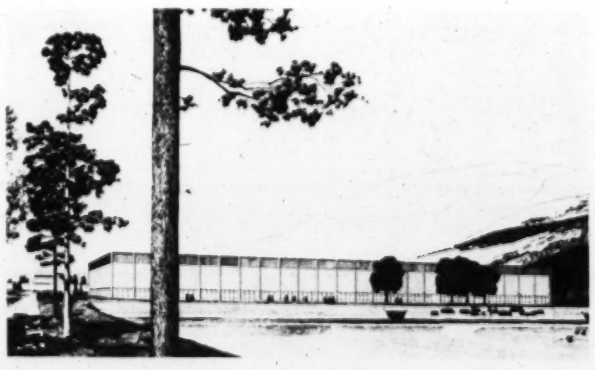

Plans for Main Buildings on Rocky Mountain Site Are Completed

Like all of the Air Force Academy buildings, cadet living quarters will be a modern, square-cut structure of glass, aluminum, steel and stone. Built on concrete stilts, it will consist of three quadrangles inclosing landscaped courtyards. General layout provides for main buildings to be arranged around campus on a pine-clad slope near center of the four-by-seven-mile site.

Air Force Photos

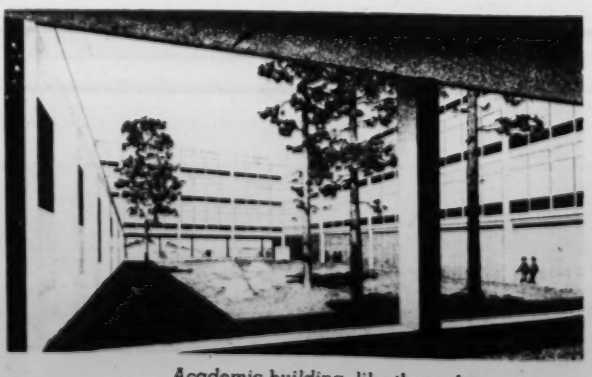

WITH SITE DEVELOPMENT work on the new Air Force Academy near Colorado Springs well advanced, final approval has been given to designs of the principal academy buildings. These include the headquarters building, cadet social center, cadet quarters, dining hall, academic building and gymnasium. With some refinements, all generally follow the preliminary designs originally shown in color in PICTURES in May, 1955, when plans were first disclosed. Design of the chapel, which provoked a controversy in its original concept, has not yet been determined, nor has a date been set for start of construction on the buildings. The $126,000,000 academy will be located on a 17,500-acre tract seven miles north of Colorado Springs.

Expansive, flat-roofed gymnasium with glass facades sits on terrace below level of campus but above athletic fields on broad area at slightly lower level. Seven-thousand-foot peaks of Rampart range form majestic background.

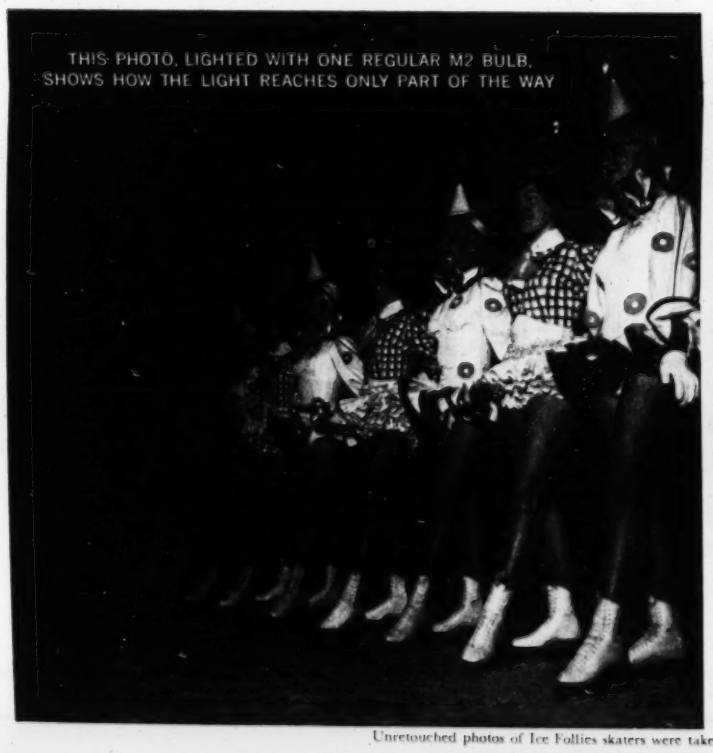

Academic building with library wing (left) forms one side of campus area, overlooks parade ground on other side. It will house classrooms, laboratories.

Academic building, like the cadet quarters, consists of three quadrangles inclosing landscaped courts. Rock outcroppings and trees are retained to preserve natural atmosphere.

BLIZZARD TRAPS A FREIGHTER

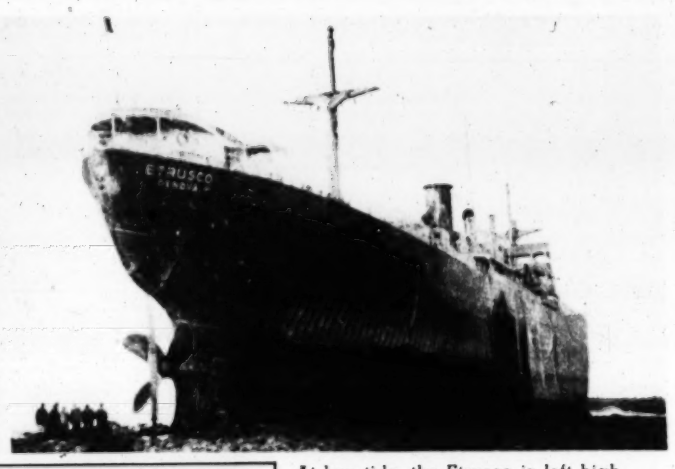

30 Crewmen Rescued From Italian Ship Blown Aground Off Massachusetts

A Coast Guardsman takes line to help ease a crewman of the Etrusco to the ground as he reaches shore in the breeches buoy.
International News Photo

Waves still pound the 441-foot freighter as sightseers gather on the beach to view the grounded ship. The lighthouse, center, is no longer used.
United Press Photo

At low tide, the Etrusco is left high upon a dry beach. Men grouped at stern are dwarfed by the huge screw and stern of the vessel. The Etrusco's last port of call before her accident was Emden, Germany.
United Press Photo

IN A LATE WINTER BLIZZARD that hit the Northeast with 83-mile-per-hour winds, the Italian freighter Etrusco ran hard aground on the coast of Massachusetts near Scituate. The 7000-ton ship, with a crew of 30 aboard, began breaking up in the pounding seas. As Coast Guardsmen fought wind, snow and sleet to get a line to the stricken ship, only 50 yards from shore, the crew lining the rail was barely discernible. The high sea made it impossible to launch a boat from the beach or from the ship. The first attempt at firing a line aboard failed. Whipped by the wind, the line fell far to the side of the disabled ship. Finally, as the wind abated, a line was successfully shot to the ship, a breeches buoy rigged. One by one, with legs dangling over a still angry sea, the men were all safely hauled ashore.

At least eight other ocean-going vessels were crippled by storms of the Atlantic coast. Four of them were naval vessels—three destroyers and a frigate. In the Newport, Rhode Island, area, an open Navy launch washed ashore. The bodies of three Navy men were lying in it.

Coast Guardsmen work in snowstorm to remove crewman from breeches buoy after his ship-to-shore trip. The Etrusco, out of Genoa, was en route to Boston for a load of grain.

Captain of ship, Gaetano Traini, changes to dry socks after his rescue. Wet feet were the skipper's only mishap. He is from Rome.

INGREDIENTS:
2 fair size eggplants
1 quart basic tomato sauce
4 eggs, well beaten
1 cup of bread crumbs
1 pound of mozzarella, Swiss or other mild soft cheese, sliced thin (the rule is, generally, 1 slice of cheese for each slice of eggplant.
2 cups of oil or butter for deep frying

Meantime, bring oil or butter to boiling point in deep kettle. Drop slices of eggplant into oil and brown. Remove and place on absorbent paper. Have the sauce or puree hot by this time. Also, have handy your grated cheese and your other cheese, as thinly sliced as possible. Line large baking dish with sauce. Place in this a layer of eggplant, cover with sauce, sprinkle with grated cheese, and cover with a layer of cheese slices. Follow this procedure until all ingredients have been placed in baking dish. American Marines, Mediterranean Bound

To the troubled Mediterranean a reinforced battalion of 1800 United States Marines sailed last week. Here some of the troops, in battle dress, march to the Monrovia, an attack transport, at Morehead City, North Carolina, the embarkation point. In all, six ships were used. The Marines will operate with the United States Sixth Fleet. Although the Defense Department announcements termed the troop assignment a routine training move, Washington officials said it was intended as a show of force in the face of mounting Middle East tensions. Last spring, when conditions were calmer, a Marine battalion had been withdrawn from the Mediterranean, reportedly for reasons of economy.

MAPLE SAP PIPELINE

Vermont Farmer Collects Spring Yield Through Plastic Tubing

Plastic tubing is being used by a Vermont farmer to replace the bucket-toting method of maple sap collecting in use since colonial times. Preparatory to rigging his plastic pipeline to connect stand of sugar maple trees, George Breen stands beside the toboggan-load of tubing he will use. Some of the 150 buckets displaced by the tubing are stored under shed. Breen's land, the Forrest Farms, is near Winhall.

Breen connects tubes from tree which has been tapped in several places. A helper, at right, holds tube leading to one of the tappings. The network of tubes sometimes freezes, but the tubing expands under pressure. Relatively rapid thawing occurs when warm sap from the trees forces its way between tubing walls and frozen sap. Metal tubing was first tried but discarded because of freezing problem.

Vigoro—complete, balanced plant food. Provides all nutrients flowers, trees, shrubs and vegetables need from soils.

Instant Vigoro—complete, water soluble plant food. Just mix with water and apply. Ideal for supplemental feeding of lawns. Double-acting—feeds through leaves and roots.

Linking lines from several trees are fitted into a junction point of main line. Rate of flow depends upon pressure of sap from the trees.

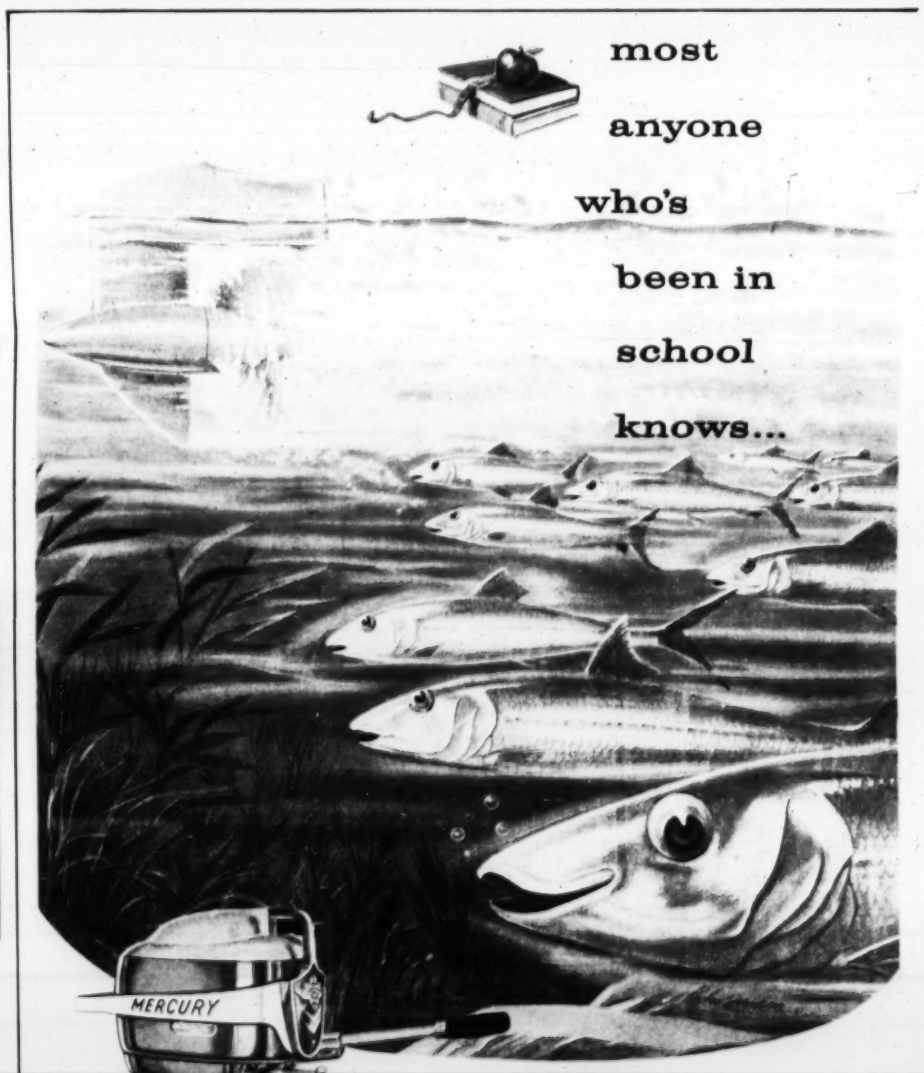

Holding end of a tube in his mouth, Breen drives plastic connector into spout where tree has been tapped. In experimental trials, the new method of sap collecting has produced twice as much sap as the amount taken with buckets.

Eventually all lines lead to the storage tanks. Here two main lines are supported by sawhorses. Others in the network lie on the ground or snow. From storage house, the sap runs to the sugar house, downhill from this point. There it is boiled down into maple syrup, and further evaporation produces maple sugar.

The ex-King plays the saxophone and composes popular music. As King he had a personal troupe of 30 dancing girls, a garage full of sports cars. Since stepping down from the throne, Sihanouk has quit his job of Premier but this month retook the Premier's post, will head the Cambodian delegation to the next United Nations General Assembly.

It Happened on Altair-4

Robby the Robot Makes Film Debut in "Forbidden Planet"

1. In the year 2200, a saucer-shaped space ship from Earth lands on the bleak planet Altair-4 to search for possible survivors of a flight wreck that had occurred there 20 years previously. The saucer crew had heard a radio warning not to touch down on the planet. When they are greeted by a robot, their leader, Commander Adams (Leslie Nielsen), draws an atomic gun. But the friendly robot, which can talk and otherwise behave like a human, invites the strangers to follow it.

2. The robot leads the party to Professor Morbius (Walter Pidgeon), the planet's only male inhabitant and the only survivor of the lost scientific expedition. Morbius explains that the amazing robot is his creation and he orders Robby, as he calls his invention, to prepare and serve refreshments to the visitors. The professor explains that all other survivors of the early expedition had died horribly and mysteriously soon after landing on Altair-4.

3. The space ship crew is surprised when Morbius introduces them to his daughter Alta (Anne Francis), the only other living person on the planet. Alta is fascinated with the visitors, who are, except for her father, the only men she has ever seen. Morbius, who had radioed the original warning not to land, again advises the space men to return to Earth before they become victims of the mysterious and invisible killing force which he is certain is still at large on the planet.

4. The invisible force comes calling and the crew puts in a night of terror as they stand guard with their most deadly nuclear weapons over their space ship. Adams, on a visit to Morbius' laboratory, finds one of his crewmen dead there. The only clue is that the space man had apparently gone to the laboratory to try to increase his brain power with some of the professor's fantastic equipment.

5. Then Morbius himself is found fatally injured. Before he dies the professor confesses to Adams and Alta that he has been a victim of his own subconscious knowledge. He admits that the strange power has struck him down because he has discovered a secret of the planet's ancient Krell race that could be used to destroy the world.

6. By now Alta is in love for the first time in her life—with Commander Adams. She agrees to go to Earth with him and become his wife. It is decided to utilize Robby's remarkable talents to relieve the crew, so when the space ship takes off, the mechanical man is at the controls.

Smash Finale to a Road Race

As the pack trailed the leaders near the finish line of the Milan-Turin bicycle road race in Italy, a sudden skid downed a rider. Other riders, pumping hard, rammed into their fallen opponent, added themselves and their bicycles to a pile-up. Swerving sharply, trailing cyclists were able to avoid the tangle of riders. In this photo, some are taking to the grassy flat of the infield, others ride high on the banked track. Having just passed the pile-up point, Ferdy Kubler of Switzerland crosses the Turin finish line to win with second-placer Jan Derijcke, left, of Holland close on his wheels. The world amateur bicycle road championship is held by an Italian, Sante Ranucci, who pedaled 117.8 miles in five hours, 36 minutes and 19 seconds.

A Soldier's Prayer

Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning . . . Luke 24:1

The young man kneeling at the foot of the cross is thousands of years and thousands of miles away from the events of which Luke tells us; yet it is still the first day of the week and, indeed, very early — sunrise — in the morning.

The young man is a soldier of the 24th Infantry Division and it is an April sunrise in 1954. The cross was erected in honor of the season at the top of Taro Leaf Field on the rugged and bloody ground of Korea, about 14 miles north of the 38th parallel. But neither the slow passage of time nor the violence of war has corrupted the purity of the morning or the concentration of the soldier's devotion.

Things move quickly in these troubled times. The cross has been dismantled. It is doubtful that the tree still stands. The soldier has moved on with his companions and the countryside itself lies mainly in the ragged tear that separates two halves of an unhappy country. But the scene has been captured to remind the free and troubled world not only of its enduring symbol of loneliness and suffering but also of promise and peace.

FAILURE to attach a W-2 form to his income tax return was blamed by one taxpayer on his son's appetite.

Collector's Items

When a clerk at the Knoxville, Tenn., Internal Revenue office told a woman she couldn't deduct the cost of stoker coal from her income tax, she replied indignantly, "Well, if that's not a loss by fire, I'd like to know what is!"

Newark, N.J., police finally caught up with a man who'd been helping people to file fraudulent tax returns, then signing his name as tax adviser in disappearing ink.

"I remember exactly because it was the day of the week I put Drāno in all the drains!"

The "evidence" proves it! Drāno puts the finger on the dangerous sewer germs that lurk in every drain. These nasty germs breed in muck that liquid disinfectants can't budge. But Drāno's churning, boiling action dissolves the muck, keeps drains germ-free and free-running.

Make one day a week Drāno day. Put Drāno in every drain for about a penny a drain. Makes septic tanks work even better. Get Drāno at your grocery, drug or hardware store. Also available in Canada.

There's nothing like Drāno . . . to keep drains free-running and sanitary.

ABOARD a hand truck, models glamorize new grade names for lumber — grade 4 is now Economy; 3 is Utility; 2 is Standard; 1 is Construction.

LUMBERJILLS

make the grade

PORTLAND, ORE.

Local do-it-yourself artisans buying material for their pet projects have been getting a pleasant re-education lately in how to choose the right grade of lumber.

Buying your boards according to the old numbering system — Grade 1, 2, 3, 4, etc. — is out. Too prosaic. Popular grades now have names: Construction, Standard, Utility and Economy — in that order. For the first time, says the West Coast Lumbermen's Association, the nation's 4½ million do-it-yourself enthusiasts will know what they are buying.

To glamorize the change-over idea hatched in the region that produces more than half the nation's lumber — the Association recently hired four leggy models to tour Portland lumber yards. As shown above, they gave more than academic meaning to the four top grades of timber — not to mention throwing an otherwise staid industry into a bit of a tizzy.

Happy press agents say Portland's do-it-yourselfers are rushing the lumber yards — to study grades. Gags, they report, have been flying like splinters, but as yet nobody has hollered, "Timber!" ■

An answer to the question millions of Americans ask . . .

What Good is a Physical Checkup?

by DR. HAROLD N. WILLARD
CORNELL UNIVERSITY MEDICAL SCHOOL

NEW YORK.

IN 1907, PRESIDENT Theodore Roosevelt, shocked that so many Army and Navy officers were fat or otherwise physically unfit, issued an unusual order — and set a precedent in this country for once-a-year physical examinations.

Under the order, each officer was to receive an annual checkup. In addition, he had to prove his fitness by walking 50 miles, riding a horse 90 miles and bicycling 100 miles. Each of these tasks had to be performed on three consecutive days — that is, walking 50 miles on each of three days, riding 90 miles on three separate days, etc. Strict time limits were imposed.

Little wonder that the officers involved felt "Teddy" was using a special kind of "big stick" policy on them.

Fortunately, the physical examination has become far less rigorous through the years. In 1922 the American Medical Association put its stamp of approval on physical checkups. Since then everyone — school children, parents, the aging — has been told repeatedly to get periodic examinations.

Yet, after all these years, doctors know that millions of Americans fail to heed that advice. A recent survey in the state of Washington revealed that only 3 per cent of all visits in a year to doctors' offices were for health checkups. If that figure can be projected across the U.S., it is indeed alarming.

After all these years of talking about health exams, perhaps the two big reasons for letting them slide are these: 1) the fear of many people that the doctor will actually find something wrong; 2) the naive but widespread notion that "what happens to Joe could never happen to me."

Take the case of a young woman I know. This woman visited her home town after many years and suddenly felt heart palpitations. Knowing that her father had died of heart disease, she began to worry. For weeks she fretted — but she did not go to a doctor. The palpitations, she thought, had sealed her doom.

Finally, fearing the worst, she did visit a doctor. A simple examination and discussion showed that nothing was wrong with her heart. The palpitations were caused by her meeting an old male acquaintance — for whom the flame apparently had not yet gone out.

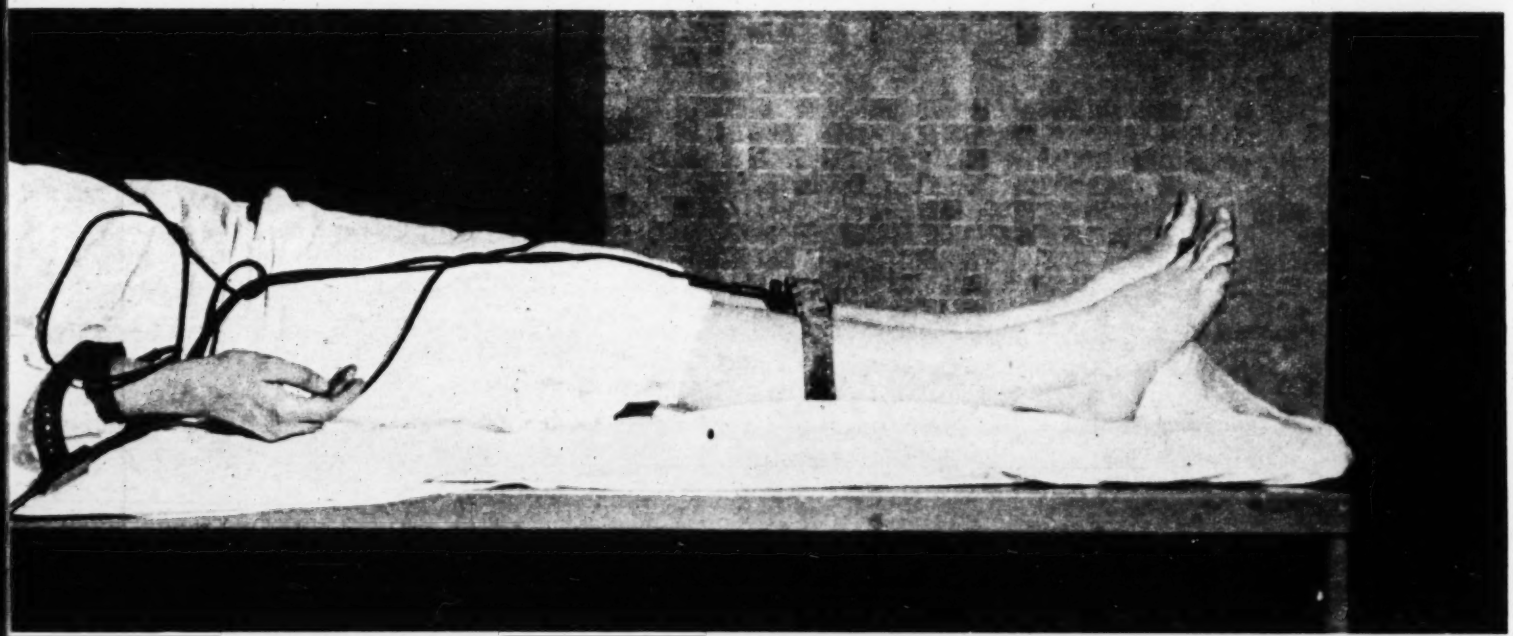

In itself, that case offers broad, general reasons why a physical exam is important to you. It may serve to stop, or cut down, needless worry concerning your physical and mental well-being. Conversely, if it shows that something is wrong, it also may open the way for you to receive the benefits of exciting, new medical research.

Specifically, I feel that there are six basic answers to the question: What good is a physical examination? Let's take them one by one.

1) Symptoms. It's comparatively easy to examine a person and find symptoms like headache, joint pains or fatigue. The important question, however, is: Do symptoms indicate any physical disorder? They didn't in the case of the young woman with heart palpitations — and they don't in about 70 per cent of all cases that enter the doctor's office.

Worries and tensions often produce symptoms — what doctors now are calling psychosomatic complaints. Thus a major reason for the physical exam is to weed out physical illness from emotional stress. Of is one of the many tests listed by Dr. Willard as essential to the ordinary physical checkup which you should get regularly from your doctor.

course, both can and should be treated. The anxious patient owes it to himself to find out the cause of the symptom. A symptom fully explained is very often transformed from a serious threat to an insignificant discomfort.

2) Early detection. Let's understand the nature of disease. Some illnesses can be detected even when there are no symptoms. Some cannot. Thus, disease can be grouped roughly in three classes: "spontaneous," those that cannot be detected in a physical checkup; those whose symptoms reveal their presence; those which can be detected even though there may be no symptoms. (Major examples of each type are shown in the chart on page 10.)

The latter two classes are most important in terms of physical exams. Ailments which show themselves with or without symptoms can best be treated in their earliest stages. To you, this means only one thing: better chance for quick recovery with the least physical discomfort and cost.

3) Habit changing. As part of the examination, your eating, sleeping, working and leisure habits should be discussed by you and your doctor. Where those habits are bad, they should be changed. Obviously an examination is a failure if the patient, advised to get more sleep, cut down on his smoking, etc., fails to do so. (Incidentally, the bird that most overweight patients claim they eat like is actually a vulture.)

Our tough competitive living produces people who are compulsive about work — to the detriment of their general health. For example, I know a man who considers it a requirement of his job to count the number of paper clips in each box received at his office. As part of the checkup, work habits should be discussed and changed if necessary.

4) Adaptation. This high-sounding word narrows down to a simple idea: Are you getting fun and satisfaction out of living? How you adapt to your family, job, church and community should be taken up as part of a physical exam. (Remember, seven out of 10 physical complaints have nothing to do with purely physical problems.) Do your in-laws irritate you? Is your wife putting undue pressure on you for a fur coat? Are you enjoying the part you play in your church's activities? The answers to any such questions could prove to be extremely important to your health.

Adaptation is a relatively new field of interest in the physical examination, but more and more doctors are becoming concerned with it. Poor adaptation in daily living can cause — or aggravate — anything from simple headache to high blood pressure. Can the patient who is unhappy with his environment be helped? Simply getting the problems off his chest is a big help. Sometimes the examining doctor can help further. In severe cases, the patient may need a psychiatrist.

5) A baseline for the future. To evaluate a patient's condition at, say, age 40, the doctor often needs information (X rays, medical "history," other data) from preceding examinations. Let me illustrate. A 20-year-old girl I know had pleurisy a few years ago. It left scars on her lung. Recently she has been exposed to people who have tuberculosis. X rays today show scarring, but do not tell whether it is from the old pleurisy attack or from the TB exposure. An X ray taken years ago of that woman would prove invaluable in setting up a course of treatment today.

CHEST X RAY: Another "must" for the health exam, it is used to spot lung (such as TB), heart ailments.

6) Health education. The final basic purpose of the health exam is aimed at helping the patient learn the meaning of "healthy living." That includes everything from personal hygiene (brushing of teeth, bathing, etc.) to marriage adjustment. Good health involves not merely the absence of disease, but rather the total state of physical and mental well-being. Prolonged unhappiness and good physical functioning do not go together for very long. Thus, educating patients is a "must" in any physical examination.

How often should you get a physical? Some authorities have said once a year is advisable. Others recommend twice a year — or, perhaps, only "when you're hurting."

Let's put it this way. From birth to puberty, a youngster's physical condition is watched closely by family doctor and pediatrician. From puberty to around age 35, he receives "institutional physical exams": he is examined in school, in the armed forces, in connection with his job, by voluntary health agencies. Young women, before, during and after childbearing, are supervised carefully by their doctors.

Thus, from birth to age 35, we are examined pretty thoroughly without actually seeking it on our own. But after 35 I feel that you should get an annual physical exam — or an exam whenever you have symptoms. Remember, an examination does not provide immunity from disease. If it does turn up symptoms, you should be glad they were spotted in time — and return willingly to your doctor for further consultation. If symptoms occur soon after an exam, you should not hesitate to go back.

Two groups are excepted from the above rule: those whose occupations are hazardous (miners, people who work around lead or other caustic materials, TB hospital staff members, etc.) and those who have long family histories of diabetes, cancer, TB, allergies or high blood pressure. Members of these two groups should consult their physicians concerning how often each year they should be examined.

3 basic types of illness

SO-CALLED "SPONTANEOUS"	WITH EARLY SYMPTOMS	OFTEN WITHOUT EARLY SYMPTOMS
In this class are ailments that can strike shortly after a checkup shows the patient to be well.	Here are disorders that show themselves early by posting warning signals — detectable symptoms.	These ailments are "hidden" (show no symptoms), but can be revealed by a physical exam.
Heart attacks	Some vision defects	Tuberculosis
Virus and bacterial diseases	Arthritis	Diabetes
Kidney stones	Underactive thyroid	Dental decay
Gall-bladder disease	Stomach ulcers	Anemia
Hepatitis	Hay fever	Glaucoma
Some strokes	Asthma	Some cancers (stomach, lung, breast, uterus)
Appendicitis	Many emotional disturbances	High blood pressure
	Some cancers (skin, mouth, lip)

What should a physical cover?

A good physical examination can't be carried out in the rush of a busy office schedule. Let the doctor have enough time to do it. The ability of patient and doctor to relax and talk things over is the basis of a good exam.

Such an exam will take a minimum of one hour, although many doctors set aside as much as three or more hours for the purpose. First the doctor gets a good "history" of the patient; that is, information concerning the patient's past illness, health and habits, etc. More and more physicians are using time-saving questionnaires such as the 200-question Cornell Medical Index to get this data. Such questionnaires take 15 to 20 minutes to fill out before the examination begins.

The ordinary physical exam will focus special attention on the following: skin, eyes, mouth, teeth, tongue, thyroid gland, lungs, heart, blood pressure, stomach, pelvis, rectum. In addition, it will cover the "neurological" side — reflexes, muscle tone, responses to heat, cold, pinprick.

Laboratory tests in this exam should be made on blood and urine. Stools should be examined for blood. Blood sedimentation rate, to detect infection and tissue destruction, should be included. There should be a chest X-ray, an electrocardiogram (EKG) of the heart, a vaginal "smear test" for women. Further tests should be indicated by the patient's symptoms.

Now a few final words of advice:

Don't become upset if you are called back to the doctor's office for a retest. This is necessary in a certain percentage of cases.

Don't let finances bar you from getting a physical. Your family doctor will listen to reason in this department. And somewhere in your community there's likely to be a clinic where exams are given at low cost — or free.

Don't allow a morbid fear to keep you from the doctor's office. Nor, conversely, should you let it send you to that office more often than necessary.

A mature attitude toward physical examinations is an important ingredient in maintaining good health. When we, the American people, devote as much healthy energy to our physical and emotional well-being as we now do to maintaining our automobiles, we'll all be a lot better off. ■

HELEN HAS A SAVING GRACE

Around the Emmons house, money is where you find it

by DICK EMMONS

I haven't heard anything from my bank lately — except an occasional throat-scraping when the washing-machine payment is due — but it should be plenty worried.

It should, that is, if housewives ever take up en masse the financial manipulations recently introduced by my wife, Helen. She has developed a cunning scheme to make our money go further (it used to go from here to Litscomb's Department Store, with a favorable tail wind) and eliminate formal banking entirely.

Under our old method of settling debts, which my creditors and I will concede wasn't working very well, I used to pay our bills by check, a system which gave me a tired, overdrawn look shortly after the first of each month.

That's all changed now. These days I cash the paycheck, fondle the stuff all the way home and surrender it in a stiff little ceremony to my wife. Helen falls on the bills with a hoarse cry and begins the ritual of distribution.

The vestibule ceiling-light fixture, removable by loosening two small screws, gets $20 for the mortgage payment; the grocery money is slid under the ironing-board cover; utilities funds are tucked behind a picture in the hallway; entertainment money goes into page 238 of a book on South American Birdlife in the bedroom; et cetera. For immediate emergencies, such as the milkman refusing to take his head out of the milk chute until last month's order is paid for, Helen keeps a small amount in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator. This, inevitably, is known as cold cash.

The theory behind the system — explained to me while I was lying flat on my back, with its inventor sitting on my chest — is that if you don't see money, you won't spend it. Actually, if you happen to be the type who doesn't mind getting out the stepladder and screwdriver each time the house payment is due, Helen's concealed-currency method is not a bad one.

I'm the type who minds, however. Besides, I find it embarrassing to ask the parakeet to move over while I probe for cigarette money in his feeding cup.

I was therefore delighted the other evening when I came home to find my female financier fluttering helplessly about the house. She was searching for $5.40 for the laundryman, who was pacing on the back porch, restively plucking off shirt buttons the plant had missed.

"I got $2.40 from the refrigerator but I'm $3 short," Helen wailed.

"What about the ironing board?" I suggested.

"Ironing board already owes hallway picture five dollars from last week."

"You've tried page 238?"

"All it has is a five-dollar IOU."

"Tough," I clucked.

Time for Some Change

"Wait a minute!" Helen said, her eyes narrowing. "That IOU was signed by Y-O-U!"

"Y-O-me?" I stuttered.

"What did you do with it?" she said in a hard voice.

"Well, I — er — I was going to get the old tennis racket restrung, but —"

"But you didn't. So you still have it!"

"So I still have three bucks of it. I — ah — stopped by Charley's Bar and Grill. Just to tell Charley I was sorry to hear about his aunt breaking her ankle, you understand, and —"

At that point Helen snapped the $3 out of my wallet and handed it to the laundryman, thus proving — in a way — that her whole theory is faulty. She can spend money even if she doesn't see it. ■

The Goddess of Liberty holds her torch (left) 305 feet above New York Harbor. Since 1886, it has been a beacon of freedom to some 27,000,000 new Americans from all over the world.

Today, immigrants and their descendants are backing a new project: a permanent record of how those who sought freedom helped to build the U.S. Their story will be told in a museum to be erected inside the old fort at the statue's base (above).

As the American Museum of Immigration, it will belong to the American people, who are asked to give $5 million to build it. You can send any sum to a special address assigned by the U.S. Post Office: "A.M.I., Statue of Liberty, U.S.A." For $10 you can be a "Builder," your name recorded permanently in the museum.

DISPLAYS based on immigration theme will be on view in museum's four exhibit halls, one of which is shown above in an artist's conception. In addition, museum will have an auditorium for staging patriotic ceremonies, plays, dance festivals; and museum staff will give educational talks.

SPRYCRUST

THE FIRST NEW IDEA IN THE HISTORY OF PIECRUST!

Simple but Sensational!

SPRYCRUST IS FLAVORED PIECRUST!

Now you can make as many different flavored piecrusts as there are flavors—chocolate, honey, mocha, coffee, pineapple, just to mention a few.

Based on the famous Spry "Water-Whip" pastry method, Sprycrust is an entirely new and original kind of pastry. And it's amazingly simple to prepare. You whip in a flavor—you roll in a texture. Use the easy-to-follow Sprycrust recipes. Important: Do not, under any circumstances, make substitutions for Spry.

Ask any good cook you know. The real test of a shortening is piecrust. So if you have failures with piecrust, don't blame yourself. Blame the shortening . . . and switch to Spry. Nothing can top Spry for pure shortening power. And this power is uniformly distributed through every pound. Thanks to homogenizing, plus a patented process of protecting its purity, Spry has the "built-in" safety to guarantee perfect piecrust every time you bake. So don't take chances. Take homogenized Spry and be sure! Try the Sprycrust recipes on opposite page.

BUSY EXECUTIVE Durocher is snapped in a natty sleeveless sweater in his modernistic, air-cooled Hollywood office.

A new look at ex-manager Durocher:

WHY LEO LOVES TV

by LLOYD SHEARER PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

HOLLYWOOD.

Next month, when the 1956 major-league baseball season opens, among the familiar faces missing will be that of Leo Ernest Durocher. After 31 years as a player (one of the greatest fielding shortstops ever) and manager (Brooklyn Dodgers, New York Giants), Durocher astonished the whole sports world last fall by signing a one-year contract with NBC-Television and "retiring" to California.

Inasmuch as the contract will gross him $81,000, a good many people have been wondering just what he does to earn it. What is a man who practically grew up in baseball doing in TV, anyway?

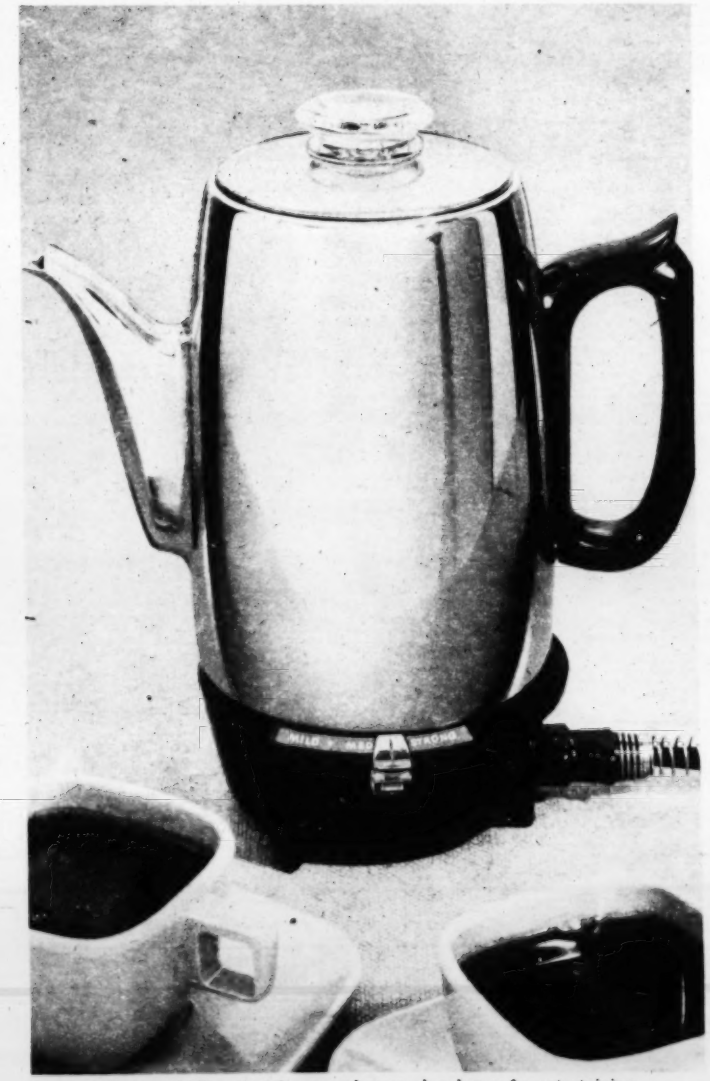

To begin with, Durocher has appeared on Wide Wide World, Matinee, The Comedy Hour and other shows. But he was not signed primarily as a performer. Says an NBC executive: "Durocher was hired as a jack-of-all-trades, a trouble-shooter."

Thus last October he was given a small office here, a secretary and a peck of troubles.

"The first one they handed me," he recalls, "was the Dean Martin case. Seems Martin isn't happy. Been fightin' with his wife or something. The guy takes an apartment and calls up NBC for a television set. When the set comes it's only a small job — 14-inch screen. Well, Martin blows his top. A big star like him and he only gets a 14-inch set!

"'Leo,' they say to me, 'go over to Dean Martin and make him happy.' The reason they wanna make him happy is he and Jerry Lewis are in the process of negotiating a new contract. So I call on Martin.

VICTORY SMILES adorn the Durochers as they head West after Leo's Giant team whitewashed the Cleveland Indians in the 1954 World Series.

Why Leo switched: Baseball was keeping him from his family

"'All I want,' he says, 'is a decent-sized television set.'

"I ask him what size, and so on. Then I call the office and tell them to send Martin a 21-inch set and that will keep him happy. They say, 'Who's gonna pay for it?' 'Look,' I explain, 'we're negotiating a new contract with these fellows. We're about to pay them $375,000 a program. Let's not worry about two hundred bucks. Let's be real big and give him the set for Christmas.'

"Finally they did, and the rhubarb was over."

Another Durocher executive duty is approaching hard-to-get talent for NBC programs. His first target: Danny Kaye.

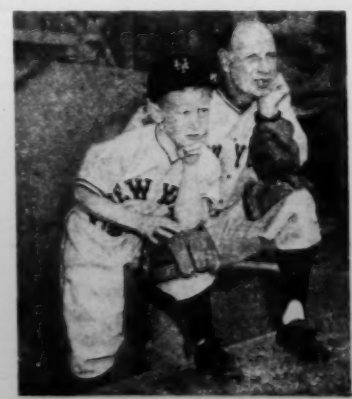

"Danny's an old buddy of mine," Durocher says, "but he won't have anything to do with TV. Not yet, anyway. I give him the real hard sell, but he won't budge. Finally he says to me, 'Leo, when and if I decide to go on television, you've got first crack. Good enough?' I agreed it was."

Next he tried Fred Astaire, with similar results. Then, says Leo, "they send me to Detroit to keep some of the automobile manufacturers happy. Then they use me as the emcee on the first two Comedy Hours."

This life of hobnobbing with show people and sponsors and occasionally appearing on video appeals greatly to Durocher. The pace is notably different from baseball's. "You don't have that pressure on you all the time to win," he declares. "You don't have to spend most of your time away from home. Actually that's why I retired from baseball. Couldn't spend enough time in California with my family. [Durocher was married in 1947 to actress Laraine Day. They have two adopted children: Michele, 12, and Christopher, 10.] I think I spent two months in 12 out West.

"When a man hits 50 he slows down, he gets tired, his sense of values changes. Let's face it: I'd had it in baseball. Besides, Laraine had practically given up her career for me; I had a guilt complex about that, too. So in 1954 I went to Horace Stoneham, owner of the Giants, and told him that when my contract expired in '55, that was it.'

"There's one thing I want to make clear, though. I'll always be rooting for the Giants. Because the Giants have meant a lot to me.

LEO'S BOY Chris apes his Dad in this training-camp shot from the 1955 season.

"As a matter of fact, that's how I got into TV in the first place. Dave Marx, the toy manufacturer, he's always been a Giant fan. Even tried to buy the club. He's a friend of Frank Folsom and Mannie Sacks, two RCA executives, and he's the guy who first suggested my going with NBC.

"Then one evening Mannie asked if I was serious about TV. I said I sure was and thought I could do a job for NBC. They brought my agent in, and we signed the deal.

"The thing I would like to do best is a sports show. No sportscasting. Nothing like that. But maybe a quiz program dealing with sports. A panel show in which I'm the moderator. I think I could handle that one real well."

Such a show may well be in the cards. Meanwhile, Durocher's day begins at 7:00 a.m., when he awakes in his 10-room Beverly Hills residence. At 9 he backs his white Cadillac out of the driveway and heads for the office. There he spends the next three hours answering his voluminous mail. Typical sample: "Dear Leo, I've been a fan of yours ever since you broke into the Eastern League in Hartford in 1925. I have a beautiful daughter who sings. Do you think she could get a break in Hollywood?"

The mail finished, executive Durocher dictates a few memoranda. Then, skipping lunch, he works on future travel schedules, public-relations speeches and other network interests. Usually he is home by 5. He never has cocktails before dinner ("A quart of whiskey lasts a whole year in our house"), occasionally plays a game of catch with Chris or Scrabble with Michele.

Is He a Changed Man?

No frequenters of night clubs, the Durochers entertain at home usually once a week. Leo rarely retires before 11:30, usually watches TV until midnight.

Currently Durocher bears little resemblance to the bellicose manager who once scourged umpires and players alike.

"That was never the real Durocher," his wife says. "That was part of Leo's act he grew into, something that provided the game with color and excitement. Leo's got a lot of ham in him; given a little incentive, it comes to the fore. But essentially he's a sensitive, self-made man who loves people."

His children, for example, consider him a gentle, even-tempered father. "I've never seen my Daddy really mad at us," says Michele. "Honestly!"

The basic ingredient of Durocher's personality remains an earthy, magnetic friendliness.

"Let him walk into any room," says his wife, "and immediately people address him by his first name. He has the kind of warmth that attracts them. Instinctively they feel that they'll be welcomed, that here's an open man who likes the society of human beings.

"Leo's a perennial optimist, a man who's been around, who's been through the school of hard knocks and who's paid all the expensive tuition fees. But still he's an optimist. In almost 10 years of marriage I've yet to see this man depressed. He simply refuses to recognize defeat. He has tremendous faith in Leo Durocher."

Says an associate of Durocher's: "This guy gets up at 7 every single morning, including Sunday. To Leo, life is simply one big ball game, and he's not going to miss a single inning. He's been doing a bang-up job for NBC, and if you promise not to quote me I can tell you he's worth every cent he's getting." ■

ON THE AIR, Durocher (r.) makes talk with violinist George Liberace and comedian Henny Youngman during a Comedy Hour program. Leo appeared on this show only twice, since has focused on his executive duties — and sports.

Teen-age Topics

The subject of blind dates comes up frequently in your letters to me. Such a date, arranged by a friend (boy or girl), is socially acceptable. It is better to go on a blind date along with another couple rather than to go alone — unless you are in your late teens, and then, of course, the introduction is made before the date is to take place. Today we start with two letters on this topic.

Q. We have been invited to spend a week end with a friend who has arranged blind dates for us. Since we have no idea where we're going, how should we dress? — R.M. and R.K., Roanoke, Va.

A. You should ask your hostess her plans for the week end so that you can select your clothes accordingly. If this is impossible for some reason, take a party dress and the usual seasonal sports clothes.

Q. At 18, I have had nothing but blind dates, and have never dated the same boy twice. An important dance is coming up and my friends refuse to fix me up with another blind date because none of the others has ever been attracted to me. Most people consider me personable and intelligent. How can I get a date? — P.Z., West Richfield, Ohio.

A. First, stop letting your friends decide your social life. You certainly have opportunities to extend invitations to boys on your own — to dances, or to dinner or parties in your own home. As you are intelligent, you might do well to choose a boy equally intelligent or more so. And, on a date, play down your intelligence and let the boy exhibit his. A girl must know how to make a boy feel important.

Q. I saw a boy I thought was cute at a school sport event. On a dare, I called him. Did I do wrong? — A.J., Vidor, Tex.

A. Yes, and I gather you were not successful or you wouldn't have asked me about it. Boys are rightly suspicious of girls who call them when they have not been introduced.

Q. I received a diary as a gift from my parents. What is proper for an 11-year-old to write? — M.F., National City, Calif.

A. If you can keep your diary under lock and key at home, write whatever thoughts you wish in it; they will be for your eyes alone. But if you are going to carry it with you and there is the chance that someone else might get hold of it, write only innocent things — or develop a code.

Q. My boy friend and I will be 18 in June and we want very much to get married. My parents say they won't let me. I am a junior and plan to finish school. My boy friend does not have a good job now but will have one waiting for him after he has an operation. Please tell me what you think about it. — P.L., Lakewood, Calif.

A. Finish school, let the boy have his operation and get going on his new job. Then, if you're both still interested, discuss marriage.

Q. Recently I was told something degrading about a girl I like. What should I do? Is 14 all right for movie dates? — E.N., Hampton Falls, N.H.

A. A gentleman never listens to gossip about a lady and never repeats any he inadvertently hears. If, in pursuing your friendship with this girl, you discover that the gossip is justified, that is another matter.

Yes, 14 is all right for movie dates.

SELF-PORTRAIT shows how Marceau sees himself as Bip, the clown (shown in action at r...

THE MAGNIFICENT MIME

Marcel Marceau captures American audiences without saying a word

by BOB JENNINGS

CHICAGO.

This week a flour-faced little Frenchman with a mop of unruly curls is wrapping up here the surprise-hit tour of the current U.S. entertainment season. He is Marcel Marceau, a slight, gentle man of 33 who pulls down $10,000 a week for clowning on a bare stage without ever speaking a word.

Probably the world's foremost practitioner of pantomime — that almost lost art of silent acting — Marceau was brought to New York last fall for a limited run at a small, off-Broadway theater. An overnight smash hit, he went on to two large New York playhouses (he broke all attendance records in the bigger one), three major TV shows, standing-room-only in Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, Canada, the West Coast — and a side trip to Japan. No other foreign artist in memory has whipped up such a storm in this country's tight theatrical circles, then gone on to capture the hearts of millions of Americans who never have been inside a Broadway playhouse.

In his 2½-hour, one-man show, Marceau mocks the whole human race and his audiences love it. He plays to them largely without props and scenery, a lone white figure against a black back-drop; his only assist comes from spotlights and occasional off-stage music, to which he laughs, cries, struts, glides, sprints, fumbles and stalks butterflies.

For half his program, Marceau is Bip (see cover), a helpless clown with sad eyes, fawn-gray jersey, baggy pants and a preposterous top hat with its long-stemmed flower. Bip plays hob with human frailties and conventions. In his misadventures with imaginary bumblebees, traffic cops, subways, bumpy train rides, odd-sized dance-hall partners, lions that refuse to be tamed, ice skates that won't support his ankles, a throbbing sore finger (see photos above), Bip is foredoomed to failure. He is a timeless and universal clown with whom his audiences can happily identify themselves.

The balance of Marceau's show is devoted to such simple but effective vignettes as a person walking against the wind, into the sea, up the stairs or over a tightrope — and his masterpiece, Youth, Maturity, Old Age and Death, which introduced Marceau to U.S. video audiences last fall. This bit lasts less than two minutes yet movingly depicts the whole life cycle with a few well-chosen moods and movements. It best bears out Marceau's own definition of pantomime: "The art of expressing feelings by attitudes and not a means of expressing words through gestures."

Due to the pace of his current tour, he was forced to leave his wife and two sons home in their modest Paris flat. "We live near all the great artists," boasts Marceau, who was born on a farm in a village near Strasbourg.

The wordless theater has fascinated him for as long as he can remember. "When I was a boy," he recalls, "my mother took me to see Charles Chaplin's silent moving pictures . . . He made us laugh and cry, purged us of our misfortune, showed us a thousand tricks . . . It was then I determined to become a mime."

To entertain himself and his friends, Marceau spent endless hours imitating birds or assuming the shapes of plants and trees. He created his first mime company by recruiting teenagers off the streets, now owns the only mime company in the world.

When he was 20, he became a pupil of Etienne Decroux, once France's master of mime. For Marceau, the apprenticeship was like starting all over again, "for though there is no art without inspiration, of course, there is just as surely no form without technique."

The total effect of Marceau's work is a hard-won illusion. As in any other art or athletic activity, the mechanics of the performance must be covered up. Balance, grace, muscular control, the right gesture at the right moment — all come from years of sweat.

But despite its rigorously exhausting demands on the human body, Marceau likes his work. "Mime is the language of the heart . . . One cannot exercise an art unless one has a love for it. I became a mime because of my love for an art as old as the world itself."

SERIOUS WORKER: Marceau rehearses act on bare stage — and without make-up.

In his enthusiasm, Marceau starts pantomime some centuries early. Actually it was introduced by the Greeks and Romans, was revived in the Middle Ages and again with the Italian Comedy. The white-faced Pierrot and the dancing mime-acrobats of the 19th century foreshadowed U.S. comedy films.

Today Marceau creates his acts in absolute privacy, then tries them out on his sons and his 24-year-old wife, Huguette, a former French actress. It takes him from eight months to a year to work up a new act. He surrounds himself with mirrors and keeps a cold, objective eye on his work. "In the mirror," he says, his face flashing fire, "you must be absolutely lucid and true. You go out of your body. If you love you, you are lost . . . Coming before the audience at last is like the bullfight — the moment of truth!"

U.S. audiences have left him little time to see this country. Between daily naps, however, he frequents the corner drugstore, on which he is working up an act.

Marceau likes to leave his audience in a gentle mood. "If they laugh or cry too much at the end, they forget it is an art. It is like eating too much. You must leave them a little hungry."

When Marcel Marceau heads for Paris next week, he will leave behind him a good many hungry Americans. Their pangs, however, need last only till next fall — when the silent, magnificent creator of Bip & Co. will be back for another tour. ■

The Early Christians NEVER SAW THE BIBLE!

For 60 years or more after the death of Christ, the New Testament was only in the process of being written.

It was obviously, therefore, not available for the instruction and conversion of those who wished to be Christians. Indeed, millions of them became members of Christ's Church . . . and thousands died martyrs to their faith . . . before the writings of the New Testament were completed.

There was, in fact, no determination until the fourth century as to which writings were to be accepted as inspired. This was done by the Catholic Church when Pope Damasus, in the year 382, caused the list of inspired Scriptures to be drawn up, and the Council of Carthage 15 years later proclaimed the canon of Sacred Scripture.

But even then there was no mass circulation of the Bible, for all copies had to be made by hand. A general distribution became possible only with the invention of printing in the fifteenth century.

If Christ had intended a book to be the sole authority for His teaching, would He have allowed centuries to pass . . . and hundreds of millions to die . . . before making it available? If the very souls of men depended upon this book, would He not have worked a miracle of multiplication as He did with the loaves and fishes?

Catholics, of course, share with other Christians a deep reverence for Holy Scripture. And it would be strange indeed if this were not so, for the Catholic Church is the custodian and preserver of the Bible and Christianity's official witness to its inspired authorship. But for Catholics, the rule of faith is as it was for St. Paul: ". . . the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth" (1 Timothy, 3:15).

Jesus, as all Christians know, wrote nothing. Nor did He instruct the Apostles to do so. But He did command them to teach, and He gave them divine authority to do so . . . "As the Father has sent me, I also send you" (John 20:21); and "He who hears you, hears me; and he who rejects you, rejects me" (Luke 10:16). And we know from the New Testament itself, that the Apostles ordained successors to carry on their teaching.

Some say that Holy Scripture is clear, complete and the only infallible source of God's truth. But John the Apostle reminds us that if all the things Christ did were to be written, "not even the world itself could hold the books that would have to be written."

If you love the Bible, and want to know more about its origin, history and authority, write today for a free pamphlet. It will be sent without cost or obligation . . . in a plain wrapper . . . and nobody will call on you. Just ask for Pamphlet No. PR-13.

HOW YOU SHOULD INVEST

SUDDEN MONEY

by SIDNEY MARGOLIUS
EXPERT IN FAMILY FINANCES

Any time a contestant walks off the TV screen with a $32,000 or $64,000 prize, the big issue that rages across the country is what he ought to do with the windfall. Investing the other fellow's money seems to be the great new national indoor pastime.

It's unlikely you'll ever have to worry about investing a really large windfall. But many times a family suddenly finds itself with a modest stake — from an inheritance, say, the sale of a house or a damage award.

What would you do with $5,000 in "found" money? You'd find you had a large number of self-appointed advisers, all very likely contradicting one another. In fact, even if you consulted professional financial men you'd get furiously opposed opinions. The major argument among the pros is whether to keep money in fixed-value investments like U.S. "E" bonds and savings institutions, or put it into stocks to offset inflation. (It is assumed you have adequate life insurance and cash for current needs.)

The Glamor of the Market

Undoubtedly fixed-value investment is the safest, but it also is the least glamorous. The postwar boom has attracted thousands of little investors to the stock market. You now can buy blue-chip stocks on installments, just like a refrigerator. Salesmen for mutual funds, which pool small stakes to buy stocks under skilled supervision, are knocking on almost every door. In Salt Lake City, you can buy uranium shares at real-estate offices for a few dimes a share.

The stories of nest eggs rolled up in the market are indeed glamorous. Take the first of the clubs that have grown into the National Assn. of Investment Clubs. Fifteen years ago, in Detroit, 10 friends met and agreed to put up $10 a month each. In 14 years they invested $18,434 in stocks, took out $16,582 and still had securities worth $56,000.

Who can resist such excitement? Savings bankers and other conservative financial men can. They say yes, it's true there are greater opportunities for increasing your stake in stocks — but there also are greater risks. The long-term trend may be inflationary, but there are dips. You may need your money just when things are tight.

Both sides have truth in their camps. They merely overlook each other's arguments. If you ever get your hands on money to invest, you can hedge both ways. A friend of mine had the problem of investing a small inheritance for his 4-year-old daughter. One advisor recommended a "defensive" (depression-resistant) stock such as a public utility, which would yield about 5 per cent. But the executor of the estate insisted on a bank or building-and-loan association. The father judiciously split the money between the two.

The unique chart below lists the most popular investments by yield, safety and hedge value. It shows at a glance that the higher the yield, the more risk and work.

For example, insured savings-and-loan associations generally pay 3 to 3½ per cent. But you can get up to 5 in associations that don't carry deposit insurance. Real estate is rated most worry, because rental property requires management — unless you participate in one of the syndicates that pool small investors' funds to buy large properties. Mutual funds generally yield less than buying stocks outright but involve less risk.

What about annuities? They yield 2-2¾ percent and are wholly safe. Must commonly, however, they are a goal of periodic saving, sometimes in combination with insurance.

For investing a $5,000 windfall, here is a nicely hedged formula (which would apply equally to smaller or larger sums by dividing them proportionately):

	Annual Yield
$1,500 in stocks at 6%	$90
$1,000 in mutual fund at 4½ %	$45
$2,500 in savings at 3%	$75
	$210

You would satisfy none of your self-appointed advisers. But you would get an average return of 4.2 per cent which would double your money in 16 years, and could face either more inflation or a spell of deflation with an easier mind. ■

POPULAR INVESTMENTS: THEIR YIELD, WORRY AND HEDGE VALUE

	Typical Earnings	Safety, Liquidity*	Worry Factor	Hedge Against
Savings Banks	2-3%	100	none	Deflation
U.S. "E" Bonds	3%	100	none	Deflation
Insured Building & Loan	2½-3½%	95-100	none	Deflation
Credit Unions	2½-5%	95-100	none	Deflation
Mutual Funds	3-5%	60-70	some	Inflation
Common Stocks	3½-6½%	50-60	more	Inflation
Real Estate	7-10%	50-70	most	Inflation

Try these bright, new ideas to ease your daily living

LAZY SHUTTERBUG: Your color slides are easy to find in this new Lazy Susan-type storage case (left) — and simple to look at with the automatic viewer (right). Case's 12 labeled bins hold 300 slides. Battery-lighted viewer has trigger to push slides into view, then out and into storage bin. $13.50 for both. ZADIX, 299 3rd Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

TOTE TABLE: Here's a collapsible, wrought-iron table-and-basket combination that's good for beach, picnic, patio and in-the-house use. Open, the table stands 19" high, 16" wide. Closed, table and basket measure 4" wide, 16" long, 19" high — easy to carry and store in home or car. $5.95. CONSUMER PRODUCTS CO., 17 E. 45th St., New York 17, N.Y.

RECLINING CHAIR: This living-room chair has extension head- and footrests. Opened all the way, as shown, the chair cradles your body for a comfortable nap. You also can set the rests for any angle you like. SIMMONS, 1 Park Ave., New York, N.Y.

STRETCH KNITTING: Now you can get skeins of stretch yarn for hand knitting. Made of 76% virgin wool and 24% nylon Helanca, the yarn comes in 14 colors. You can use it to make fit-all socks, bathing suits, tiny garments that keep "growing" right up to kindergarten age. COLUMBIA-MINERVA, 11 E. 26th St., New York 10, N.Y.

ENDS WINDOW RATTLING: To defy vibration caused by wind, trains, trucks, etc., there's an easy-to-install sash balance. Just drill a hole in the edge of the window sash. The gadget fits right in, has an adjustable screw to give just the right tension to avoid rattling -- and to hold the window open, even if the sash cord is broken or the sash weight is out of adjustment. 65c. AW-WELL MFG. CORP., 1424 La-Belle, Rockford, Ill.

PROTECTS YOUR CLOTHES: Place a new tablet in a plate on the floor of any closet, light it with a match and it gives off a white, clean, insecticidal cloud. There's no fire hazard and the vapor is said to rid the closet quickly of moth larvae as well as flying and crawling adult moths, moth worms and carpet beetles. It's non-staining, leaves no odor on clothes. 25 for $1. CONTINENTAL CHEMISTE, 2256 W. Ogden, Chicago 12, Ill.

SHADE CLIP: Tired of dangling, dirt-catching tassels or ring-pulls on your window shades? A new clip fits neatly over hem and slat in center of shade. It's made of shatter-resistant styrene and, maker claims, won't crack or break even with jaws spread wide. Protects shade from soiling and is washable itself. In white and pastel colors: 2 for 25c. BRENEMAN-HARTSHORN, INC., 2045 Reading Rd., Cincinnati 2, Ohio.

FLOWER JAR: To make your flower arranging easier, a new jar comes with a removable slotted top. You can use jar with top for hard-to-handle short-stemmed blooms like pansies, daisies, bachelor's buttons; without top for small plants or lilies; with candle in center hole of top and flowers arranged about, as a table centerpiece. $1.35. HERE'S HOW, 27 E. 22nd St., New York 10, N.Y.

TRAVEL AID: A lotion-moistened "towelette" unfolds from a tiny envelope to 8½"-x-6" size. It removes grime, old make-up. Lotion dries quickly, leaves skin refreshed. 21 for $1. WILLIAMS, 54 W. 21st St., New York 10, N.Y.

ESCONDIDO, CALIF.

When you have been flying gliders for 25 years, when you can do 118 consecutive loops in 22 minutes, when you can perform the tricks shown on these pages — then you can qualify as a glider ace.

Don C. Stevens has done all these things and more, which is why he holds the unofficial title of "Glider Trick Champion of the World." One of his greatest feats was carrying 15 airborne infantrymen into the famous Battle of the Bulge in World War II.

Stevens started the hard way. At 17 he built his first glider and taught himself to fly; on his first soaring flight he hit a cliff head-on. But he lived to pile up more than 3,000 hours of gliding — and hit a new high in motorless accuracy.

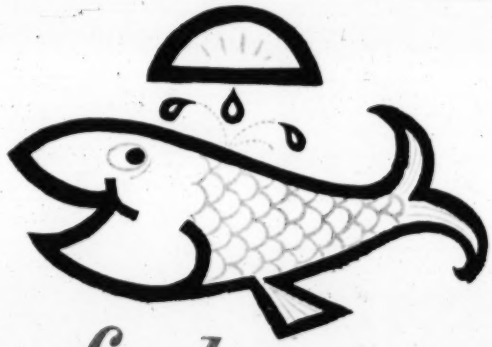

SHREDS of archery target drape glider's nose. Needle, salvaged from a jet, carries instruments.

"Be careful—drive safely"

BY NOW just about everyone knows that the new 1956 General Motors cars are as far out in front in performance and safety as they are in eye-catching beauty.

You will find convincing proof of that in the extra reserve power of their higher-compression engines—instantly delivered through newly improved automatic transmissions offered on GM cars—Powerglide, Variable Pitch Dynaflow and fluid-coupled Hydra-Matic.

You'll find it, too, in the swift-sure tiptoe response of GM Power Brakes, and in other available features like Power Steering and Seat Belts. You find it in Precision-Aimed Head Lamps and in the solid construction of GM Unisteel Bodies with double-locking safety door latches.

Combine all these engineering advances with GM's pace-setting styling in hardtops, estate wagons, convertibles and sedans, and you'll see why so many agree that the key to any '56 GM car is your key to greater value.

Teen-Agers, LAST CHANCE to win your own personal telephone* AND phone number!

. . . PLUS LOCAL PHONE CHARGES PAID FOR A WHOLE YEAR

KRAFT'S EASY JINGLE CONTEST

THINK WHAT FUN YOU'LL HAVE getting and making calls on your own private telephone line (a separate line, not an extension)! A convenience for you and for your parents! They'll be just as pleased as you are—to have you win your own phone service. Better enter the contest today!

HINTS TO WIN: It's a really great food—this famous pasteurized process cheese spread from Kraft. Nibble golden Velveeta chunks; sandwich it; melt it in hot franks or on cheeseburgers. Swell-tasting Velveeta is full of the same wonderful "stuff" that makes milk such a great food.

READ RULES, ENTER TODAY!

PRIZES

*1. There will be 250 awards of telephone service in each of the 3 contests, a total of 750 awards. Each of the 750 prizes will consist of the installation of a telephone in any available color selected by the prize-winner as well as the payment by Kraft Foods Company of the basic local service charges therefor for 12 months. Where facilities permit, a single-party line will be installed. Telephone will be installed in any room of winner's choice and winner's telephone number will be listed, except that if winner is a minor, approval of parent or guardian will be required.

An amount equal to the charge for putting in the telephone in any available color you choose and the basic local service charge for twelve months at the rates in effect at the time service is installed will be sent by Kraft to the telephone company. The winner will pay the telephone company directly for any service not covered by Kraft's payment such as additional messages, out-of-town calls, telegrams, etc. If, for any reason, service should be discontinued, any amount of Kraft Foods Company's payment remaining will be applied against unpaid charges of any kind.

All service will be furnished subject to and in accordance with telephone company tariffs.

If telephone service cannot be installed at the residence of the winner before August 31, 1956, the winner may elect to take an appropriate cash award in lieu of telephone service.

2. Any person 13 years of age or over, living in the continental limits of the United States may enter this contest—except employees of Kraft Foods Company, its advertising agencies, contest judges, and members of their families. Contest subject to federal and state regulations.

3. Write a fourth line for the Kraft Velveeta Jingle as shown on the coupon. Use this entry blank or plain piece of paper. Mail to Kraft Velveeta Contest, Box 1126, Dept. 3, Chicago 77, Ill.

4. Send as many entries as you like for each contest. Write each suggested fourth line for the jingle on a separate piece of paper or entry blank. To be eligible, each entry must be accompanied by the end-flap from any size Velveeta carton.

5. There is 1 contest, two weeks long, still open, with 250 awards of telephone service. All entries for this final contest must be postmarked not later than midnight, April 7, 1956, and must be received by April 11, 1956. No entries will be returned and no correspondence will be entered into. Not responsible for entries lost or delayed in the mail. Entries with inadequate postage will not be considered.

6. Certificate of Award will be mailed to each winner and must be presented to telephone company, by the winner, by June 30, 1956. No one person may win more than one prize. Complete list of winners sent on request to contestants sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

7. Prizes will be awarded to the contestants whose entries are considered by the judges, most original, most unique, and most apt, in each contest. Judges' decisions are final. The contest will be judged by the Reuben H. Donnelley Corporation. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in case of ties. All entries become the property of Kraft Foods Company.

LANCE

Swelling rivers foretell the coming of Spring. Lance is due back at Fort Leavenworth with a complete report on the state of Indian affairs and the survey is only half finished.

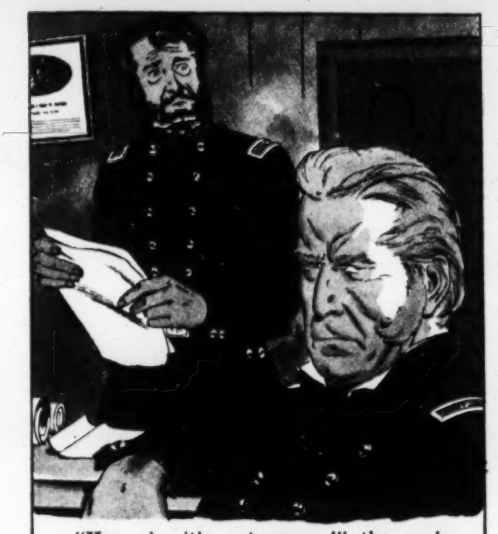

To repair to Leavenworth now would leave the job undone. But to stay and complete the survey would make Lance eligible for court martial on three counts: failure to repair, dereliction of duty, proceeding without competent authority!

At last he makes his decision and pens a summary report to his colonel. It is taken to Laramie where Fontenelle is preparing to embark for St. Louis, and Lance turns again to the west.

The report reaches dragoon headquarters nearly a month later. Colonel Dodge storms. "That impudent young fool! I gave him five months! Put him under arrest!"

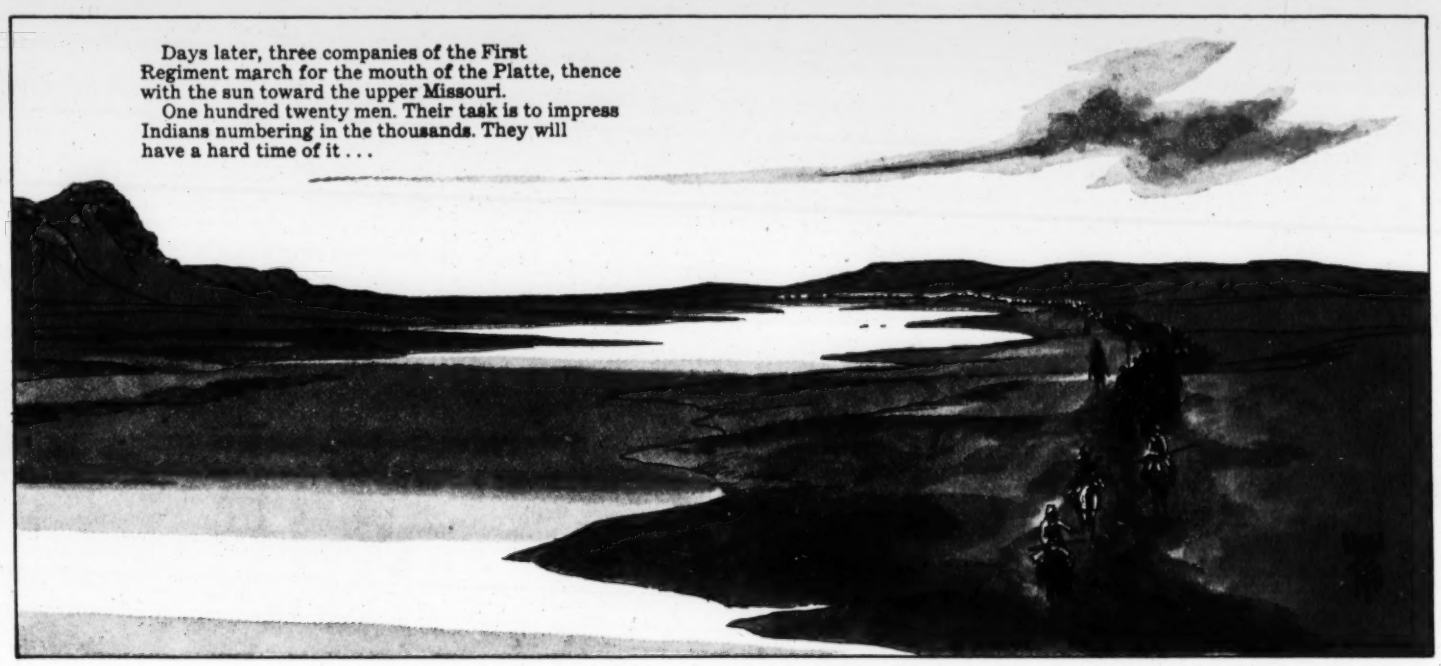

"Yes, sir, it's outrageous!" the major agrees. "He even has the insolence to suggest we immediately field six companies of dragoons for a western expedition!"

Dodge is silent for a moment. "We can't field six," he says. "Cut it in half!"

Days later, three companies of the First Regiment march for the mouth of the Platte, thence with the sun toward the upper Missouri.

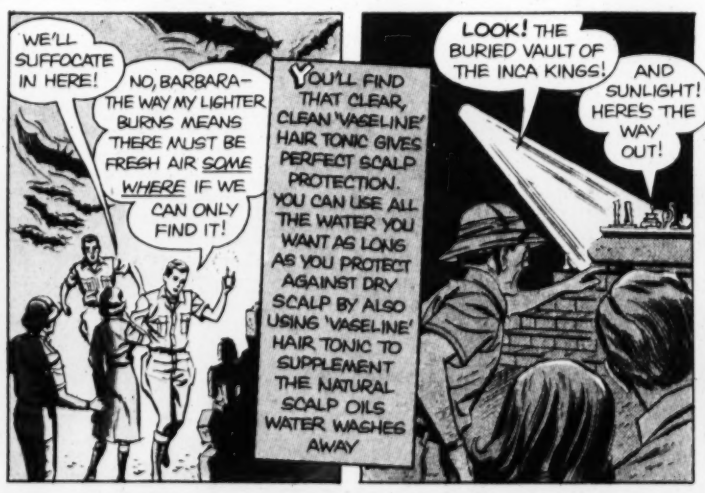

One hundred twenty men. Their task is to impress Indians numbering in the thousands. They will have a hard time of it . . .
